Turks Alarmed, Rush Warships To Black Sea

Straits Feared Red Ob- jective; Hungarian Troops on Move.

BUDAPEST, Friday, June 28.—(UP)—Hungary, after moving troops up to Rumania's heavily fortified western border, sent a demand to the Rumanian government concerning the former Hungarian territory of Transylvania, it was reported early today in diplomatic quarters.

At the same time, Hungary was in close touch with Germany and Italy, apparently awaiting a "go-ahead" signal to strike and reclaim the province lost after the World War.

By The Associated Press.
BUCHAREST, June 27.—Rumania bowed tonight to a Soviet demand for great areas of her territory and moved nearly 2,000,000 men into Transylvania to meet an expected Hungarian attempt to regain that former Magyar province.

Immediately a Turkish naval squadron steamed through the Straits of Bosphorus to the Black Sea, ready to defend the straits against attack.

Deeply Concerned.
The historic guardian of the Dardanelles felt deep concern over Russia's ultimatum to Rumania, demanding not only large land concessions, but, apparently, naval bases on the Black Sea and the Danube.

Turkish planes circled over the straits and anti-aircraft guns were in position. Turkey's main fear was of a general move in this direction, with the straits as the ultimate goal.

Telephone communication with Turkey from outside capitals proved impossible tonight, as Istanbul authorities tightened the censorship immediately imposed after the Soviet demands on Rumania became known.

Despite earlier reports that Red troops already were on the march, it was disclosed late tonight that Russia had agreed to hold back from the actual occupation of the ceded areas—Bessarabia and northern Bucovina—until the last details of the capitulation had been worked out. Diplomats labored at that task. It is expected to be completed tomorrow and that Soviet troops then would cross the frontier.

The capital was quiet tonight. The officially censored press still was not permitted to publish a

Thomas Brigham Paine Dies; Was Business, Social Leader

Atlanta Was Known for His Flawless Speech, Dress and Old World Courtliness; Funeral Services Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Thomas Brigham Paine, a leading figure in the social and business life of Atlanta for many years, died at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon in a private hospital after an illness of less than a month. He was in his eighties.

Flawless in speech, dress and manner, he combined an old-world courtliness with a zest for living that remained undimmed until his fatal illness.

He was present at every gala social function, and no debutante felt that she had been properly presented to society unless he led the grand march, as for many years he led the cotillion at White Sulphur Springs, the famous West Virginia resort where he spent his summers.

Fond of the company of young people, he entertained often at his home at 425 Peachtree Battle avenue in Haynes Manor.

One of the south's first devotees of golf, he followed Bobby Jones from the beginning of his career.

President Lays Braswell Deen Foundation for Seizing Ships

Authorizes Morgenthau To Protect Foreign, Domestic Vessels.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(P)—President Roosevelt authorized the Secretary of the Treasury today to take possession of any domestic or foreign vessels in American ports if necessary to protect them from damage or injury.

A high official said the President's order could be interpreted as groundwork for the possible detention of the ships of France and other German-dominated countries of Europe which are now in American waters.

Mr. Roosevelt acted under the espionage act of June 15, 1917, which authorizes broad control over foreign and domestic shipping.

Explaining the action, the White House said in a statement:

"The powers which are made available for exercise by today's proclamation include the promulgation of regulations, subject to the President's approval governing the anchorage and movement of vessels, and, with the consent of the President, taking possession and control of any vessels if necessary to secure them from damage or injury, or to prevent damage or injury to United States harbors or waters, or to secure observance of the rights and obligations of the United States."

British Preparing To Take Offensive

LONDON, June 27.—(P)—Britain, already preparing to defend herself against invasion, was told by her leaders today that the time is coming when the order will be changed from "hold fast" to "forward."

In a report to the house of commons, which later held a secret session to consider his words, Minister of Supply Herbert Morrison declared:

"We all hope that this period of the last few weeks will be due course change, and we must think of long-term policies and of offensive as well as defensive policies."

$1,725,000 City Bond Issue Recommended

Finance Committee Asks
Vote in September Primary.

Without a dissenting vote, city council's finance committee late yesterday voted to recommend that city council submit to the voters at the September 4 primary a $1,725,000 bond issue, of which $1,550,000 will go to schools and $175,000 to the fire department.

At the same time the committee left open the question of a $2,000,000 bond issue for Grady hospital as proposed by Councilman Frank Wilson and set it as the special order of business for a meeting which will be held this afternoon after the called meeting of council.

The school bond issue proposed, introduced by Councilman Allen Couch, provides for the following allocations:

Henry Grady school, $650,000.
Murphy Junior High school, $600,000.
Maddox Junior high, $300,000.

The proposed bonds for the fire department, which was sponsored by Councilman Cecil Hester, will be used for rehousing the central station and modernizing and installing the $300,000 signal system.

It was pointed out this figure is subject to adjustment inasmuch as the exact cost of this work is yet to be determined.

The bond issue proposal will go to city council Monday afternoon, Chairman Ed Gilliam said.

Before voting to recommend the $1,725,000 for the fire department, the committee turned down a proposal by Councilman John White to include in the bond issue a $150,000 appropriation for new equipment.

Mayor Hartsfield led the attack on this, pointing out that bonds should cover only items which could be classed as a capital improvement. He also promised to veto any proposal that included such an item. He emphasized that these things should come out of current operating costs.

J. Bulow Campbell Is Ill in Baltimore

J. Bulow Campbell, outstanding southern financier, was reported seriously ill yesterday in a Baltimore hospital.

Campbell, who resides on Andrews drive, Atlanta, was stricken while on a business trip. Baltimore physicians declined to define his ailment, but said his condition was "fairly good."

Chairman of the board of the Campbell Coal Company, he is one of the group of Atlantans who made a fortune out of Coca-Cola. A director of several southern corporations, he is also chairman of the board of trustees of Berry Schools and a member of the board of directors of Rabun Gap-Nacoochee School.

Russians Clamp Down On Army Discipline

MOSCOW, June 27.—(P)—The newspaper Red Star disclosed tonight that the recently-appointed Defense Commissar Timoshenko had so tightened discipline in Red army guardhouses that prisoners are forbidden to listen to the radio, smoke, sing, play games or receive letters and packages.

Red Star thus commented: "Those who violate the discipline will be disgraced and subjected to a severe regimen. It is necessary in the interest of our army that it be merciless to all who think the laws are not written for them, who don't wish to renounce their petty bourgeois habits."

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE—A "dark horse" until only a few weeks ago, Wendell Willkie, New York utilities leader, captured the Republican nomination for president on the sixth ballot at the Philadelphia convention early this morning. Senator Taft conceded the nomination to Willkie before the sixth roll call had been completed.

Peace Offered To Britain by Nazis, Report

Would Leave England
Empire, N. Y. Hears.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(P)—Important business and financial sources, with large interests in Europe, said today they had received information they considered authentic through neutral contacts that Germany had made "sensational" peace overtures to England.

They said this information indicated the offer would leave England with some 95 per cent of her present empire, but would provide for internationalization of Gibraltar and the Suez Canal.

The information, these sources said, was to the effect that the approach had been made through Generalissimo Franco at Madrid.

(In Berlin, reports of peace feelers were laughed off in informed German circles as "nonsense.")

(The latest version of these laughed-off rumors heard in Berlin is that a Hitler peace speech is scheduled for tomorrow, the anniversary of the signing of the Versailles treaty.

Authentic German circles said "the world seems to believe something big must happen.")

An authoritative British statement in London yesterday said "there is absolutely no truth in reports from abroad that Sir Samuel Hoare has broached the question of peace or armistice terms in Madrid." It added that Sir Samuel on the contrary stressed the determination of Britain to continue the struggle.

Another expression of determination to carry on the struggle against Germany was contained in a British ministry of information broadcast from Berlin asserting that "Britain is totally unprepared for defense." The ministry said Britain "has not the slightest intention" of laying down her arms.

A purported German commentator's broadcast from Berlin asserting Britain is making "undercover" gestures toward the Axis powers was termed by authoritative British sources "positive rubbish and absolute rot." Germany denied there was any such broadcast.

Dewey Passed Quickly; Taft Stages Battle

Crowd Tense, Victory in
72 Votes Clinch It.

By The Associated Press.

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(Friday)—Wendell Willkie, the political miracle man, stamped the Republican national convention this morning into a sixth-vote nomination as its 1940 presidential candidate.

The Indiana-born utilities executive, who has fought the New Deal up hill and down dale for years, surged into the convention with 105 votes on the first ballot, gained by big jumps on

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(P) Note to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt:

"Did you slip into the Republican convention for part of a session? The rumor that you did curled the hair of several very good Republicans. Your cousin, Alice Roosevelt Longworth, gasped at the idea and then laughed, 'Anything's possible.'"

It didn't help any either that one of the people attending the convention had seen you driving north through Wilmington, each succeeding roll call until the nomination was his.

Running third at the start to Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft, he quickly passed both, and then he and Taft left Dewey so far to the rear that during the fifth ballot the New York district attorney withdrew and released his delegates.

It was a spectacular noisy crowd that watched Willkie reach the last rung of his brief and abrupt rise from dark horse to convention stamper and Republican nominee.

From the start it was for Willkie. He shouted for him, he yelled for him, stamped and applauded every time a single gain for its candidate was registered. Taft had his supporters in the galleries, too, but judging by the noise, they were badly outnumbered at all times.

The break to Willkie came abruptly on the last three ballots. Governor Alf M. Landon, the 1936 nominee, announced that his Kansas delegation had swung solidly from Senator Capper to Willkie. On the same roll call Willkie bagged 75 New York votes, where he had had only a few of them before.

When the sixth call of the roll began the race had narrowed down to one between Willkie and Taft, and the latter got away to a lead. Sensing the moment it had been awaiting, the moment in which a possible future president of the United States was being made, the crowd leaned forward.

Crowd Sucks Breath.

Its burst of applause came in short, puffy, deafening shouts, as each state added to Willkie's total. Finally, Virginia's vote gave Willkie 503 votes—two more than enough. But such tallies are tricky things. Votes previously cast can be changed. The crowd literally sucked its breath.

But at that dramatic moment the announcement came that Pennsylvania, which had previously "passed," had caucused and was ready to cast its powerful bloc of 72 votes.

"Seventy-two votes for Wendell Willkie."

Willkie Boom Started While On Visit Here

'Best Offer So Far,' He Said When Told of Johnson Suggestion.

The first suggestion that Wendell L. Willkie might become President of the United States was made seven months ago when the utilities executive was in Atlanta on business.

Made by General Hugh S. Johnson in a radio broadcast, it offered Willkie as the "ideal businessman" to become President of the United States. In reply Willkie said:

"It's the best offer I've had so far."

The day before he replied to General Johnson's "offer," the utilities executive—not then seriously considered as a candidate—had described himself as "a liberal in every sense of the word."

"I just can't see what kind of a government we now have," he said. "And what's more I can't hazard a guess what kind we will have in the future. I only know what kind we need."

Describing what he considered the vital changes necessary in the United States government, Willkie then declared:

"The greatest contribution this nation can make to preserve democracy is by keeping alive completely the democratic processes which have made the United States the greatest nation on earth."

DEWEY AND TAFT PLEDGE THEIR SUPPORT

PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—(P) (Friday)—Thomas E. Dewey sent the following telegram to Wendell Willkie early today:

"I congratulate you on your nomination as the Republican candidate for president and I pledge you my full support in the fight ahead."

Senator Robert A. Taft sent the following message:

"Heartly congratulations. You may count on my sincere and strenuous assistance in restoring to this country a government based on reason, common sense and business principles."

Four Shots Fail To Kill Bear, 'Hunters' Give Up
SPRINGER, N. M., June 27.—(P)—A Springer couple encountered a fat bear in the mountains and gave chase in their car. A wheel pinned one of bruin's paws. They called "Wild Bill" Letcher, deputy game warden, who decided to kill the animal as a menace to stock. He hauled out his six-gun. The first shot made the bear blink. The second blew out a tire. The third hit the radiator and another punctured the gas tank. Letcher decided to get his rifle but the motorists' hearts softened. They moved the auto off bruin's paw and he fled to the timber.

Police Believe Armored Car Chauffeur Kidnaped With Cash.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(P)—An armored car driver and $27,000 he was transporting to the Federal Reserve Bank vanished today, police reported, after the truck had been halted to allow its two guards to eat.

Police, expressing the theory that the driver, Thomas F. Phelan, employed by the United States Trucking Corporation, had been kidnaped with the money, began an immediate search.

The money was being transferred from a Manufacturer's Trust Company branch bank.

4 MASKED ROBBERS HOLD UP BANK.
RIEGELSVILLE, Pa., June 27.—(P)—Four masked robbers, one armed with a machinegun and the others with pistols, held up the First National Bank in this southeastern Pennsylvania town at noon today and escaped with cash estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000.

They fled toward Philadelphia in an automobile driven by a fifth man. The car bore New Jersey license plates.

ONE-YEAR REVIVAL.
CARROLLTON, Ga., June 27.—The Rev. W. L. Brackman, of Bremen, said he had just concluded a revival that lasted a year and included three services a day.

NEW FIRST LADY?—Mrs. Wendell Willkie moved one step nearer the White House early today when Republicans in Philadelphia nominated her husband as their candidate for president. The attractive wife of the utilities executive attended sessions of the convention that saw her husband plunge into the lead on the sixth ballot.

Willkie Wins Nomination on Sixth Ballot

Willkie, it's spokesman announced.

That clinched it, and the crowd went into a frenzy.

Governor Bricker, of Ohio, perspiring in the heat of the powerful photo and television lights which beamed down upon the delegates, strode to the platform with a motion that the nomination be made unanimous. He has been a principal supporter of Senator Taft.

Foe of New Deal.

That set the crowd to roaring its approval, too, but Chairman Joseph W. Martin announced he could not recognize Bricker for that purpose until the roll call had been completed, although he would be glad to do so later. The nomination was made unanimous when the ballot was completed.

Willkie's drive for the presidency began only a few weeks ago. His record as a battler against the New Deal, his bluff, homespun manner and his way of dealing with people attracted attention to him at once. So rapid was his rise that although he came to Philadelphia with only a small minority of the delegates pledged to him, his secondary strength was obviously enormous, as was revealed on tonight's successive ballots.

(The Willkie nomination was almost without precedent in Republican political annals, the United Press pointed out. He has never held elective office. Until a few weeks ago his presidential candidacy did not exist. Then Willkie enthusiasts started a whirlwind drive that ended with this morning's victory.)

He is President of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, huge electric utilities holding company, and the utilities issue was raised against him. It was argued that that issue would be brought up in the campaign to come. Some leaders of the party were against him, feeling that an older party member should have the nomination and recalling that Willkie was a registered Democrat as recently as 1932.

Dewey Fades Out.
But once the ball started rolling tonight, there was little doubt of the outcome. Dewey faded out of the picture like a morning glory at high noon. For a moment a two-man Taft-Willkie contest was in the making, but the utilities man and his supporters forged

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(UP)—Here's how Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, a leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination, viewed the contest this afternoon:

On the first ballot: Taft, about 240 votes; Dewey, 320 votes; Willkie, 150.

On the third or fourth ballot: Taft nominated.

straight ahead and were not to be denied.

Willkie received word of his nomination in his 16th floor hotel suite surrounded by cheering crowds. Hair tousled and necktie awry, the nominee sat smiling broadly as he heard the returns come in over the radio.

He appeared somewhat dazed by the victory, although he had confidently expected it.

His confidence had waned somewhat when Taft made gains on the fifth ballot. He commented then: "Well, it looks as if it might be either of us. Should he win we can say that at least we stirred them."

New Definitions Of Liberty Urged

FARMVILLE, Va., June 27.—(P)—Raymond J. Kelly, of Detroit, national commander of the American Legion, voiced his belief today that the United States "must have a redefinition of what constitutes freedom of speech, of assembly, and of the press."

Speaking at a patriotic community rally here, the American Legion official said that "I, for one, do not want my liberties as a citizen of the United States taken from me by those who would use the constitution itself to abolish the basic liberties contained therein."

"You and I know that the very forces of subversion themselves, which seek to overthrow our constitutional government, hide behind the protective sections of the bill of rights which they seek to destroy."

High School Girl Strangled to Death

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—(P)—The body of Ruth Gornek, 15-year-old high school girl, was found today near a path in a wooded area of suburban University City.

She had been strangled with the skirt of her play suit, her skull apparently was fractured, and there were other bruises on her body. An all-night search had been made for the attractive, slight-built daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Gornek when she failed to return home from a swimming pool in a University City park yesterday afternoon. Three large stones, with blood on them, were found near the body.

ZOG, QUEEN IN LONDON.
LONDON, June 27.—(P)—Former King Zog of Albania, Queen Geraldine and Zog's sisters arrived in London today. They have been living in France.

Rumors Spread Like Wildfire At Convention

Willkie Rushes Out; 'Big Deal' on Fire? No, Just Supper.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(UP)—Rumors of dark plottings, deals, sellouts, gangings and other conduct unbefitting a politician and a gentleman spread rapidly through this convention city to-night as the delegates began selection of a Republican presidential candidate.

Possibly a few of them had some basis in fact, but many were the result of that trait of human nature as seeing-significance-in-minor-matters. It is a trait that manifests itself in political circles more than anywhere else.

Appearances Deceive.

But appearances can deceive.

For example: J. Russell Sprague, campaign manager for Thomas E. Dewey; Colonel R. B. Creager, one of Senator Taft's managers; Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, floor manager for Wendell L. Willkie, were observed in a huddle and the word spread that "it's a deal." The men came out of the huddle with an agreement for a routine recess.

Willkie rushed out of his headquarters with such speed that on-lookers were certain something momentous was afoot. He was going after a bite to eat.

Dewey was reported to have visited Alf M. Landon, of Kansas. His headquarters said, "It was a social call." It might have been at that.

A woman approached Frank E. Gannett and called him "Toots." It was Mrs. Gannett.

The chief of the convention's police squadron was seen darting through the swinging kitchen doors of the hall cafe, and there was speculation that he was looking for bombs as a result of a story published yesterday about a nonexistent bomb plot. He came out of the kitchen with a sandwich.

Gets Lowdown.

A man went up to a fellow from Iowa and asked for information about the state's candidate, Hanford MacNider. "Sit down and I'll tell you all about him," said the fellow from Iowa. It was MacNider.

A man in the Pennsylvania delegation slugged his coat during a demonstration and the cry of "fight" went up. It was just former Senator George Wharton Pepper getting set to lead cheers for Governor Arthur H. James.

A youngish looking man was telling his companion in the hotel lobby the reasons why Wendell L. Willkie should be President. A Willkie rooster overheard and remarked to the person with him: "See there? Youth is for Willkie." That particular youth had better be. It was 20-year-old Phil Willkie, the candidate's son.

The last example is the most painful. Eight tons of ice was placed in the hall's cooling system. The rumor spread that now it would be cool. It wasn't. It was hot.

Housing Group, City Planners In Zoning Fight

City Planning Commission Recommends Store Near Project.

A battle for zoning power between the Atlanta Housing Authority and the city planning commission is raging over Atlanta and Fulton county, it developed yesterday during a meeting of the city planning commission.

The housing authority was accused by Walter S. McNeal Jr., member of both the city and county planning commission, with "trying to usurp our authority."

A proposal whereby the housing authority would put up $30,000 to employ an engineer to make a zoning survey of Atlanta's businesses, residences and streets was brought to the city planning commission this week "behind closed doors," McNeal said, after it had been originally proposed to some members of the commission at "getting up time" in the Atlanta Lawyers Club.

Rejects Offer.

The city planning commission turned down the housing authority's offer—with the counter suggestion that the commission would gladly receive any donation the housing authority wanted to make but that the commission would employ the engineer to control zoning and that all reports of the engineer would be made to the city planning commission and not the housing authority, McNeal related to the county planning commissioners.

The city group has already fired a salvo in the zoning power battle by recommending location of a store near the Capitol Homes housing project.

"The Housing Authority did not want to zone this plot of land for business, but we could not see why residents of the homes should be made to walk five or six blocks for a loaf of bread," explained McNeal. "The plan was entirely suitable for business and therefore we recommended it to council favorably."

Hear Report.

The county planning commission heard McNeal's report on the status of the battle between the city and the housing authority but took no action. Frank Neely said the proposal had never been made to the county group officially, and it was decided to wait until the proposal is made before taking action.

"I don't think it will ever be brought here now," said McNeal. "I think this kills it."

C. F. Palmer, chairman of the housing authority, was out of the city, and James "Terrell" Jr., director for the authority, refused to comment on the developments.

Rivers Pardons Man Convicted In Racket Case

Philip Cordovano's Wife Ill in New York, Gov. error Says.

Governor Rivers yesterday granted a conditional pardon to Philip Cordovano, who was convicted in Fulton superior court on a larceny after trust charge and sentenced to from three to five years in connection with an alleged "fake telegram racket."

The record showed Cordovano had served approximately 13 months of his sentence.

In granting the pardon, the Governor said Cordovano's wife was ill in New York state and needed his services for support.

"It appears that the ends of justice will be best met by granting a conditional pardon to Philip Cordovano so that he can rehabilitate himself and support his family now residing in the state of New York," the executive order read.

Cordovano was convicted of larceny after trust in April, 1939, after he had allegedly obtained $1,690 from Andre Wallach by sending a radiogram to Wallach's secretary purporting to have been sent from Wallach who was on the S. S. Normandie in mid-Atlantic. The secretary turned the money over to Cordovano for a package, as authorized in the radiogram. The package contained a few pounds of sugar.

Bridges Heads Underwriters' Group in City

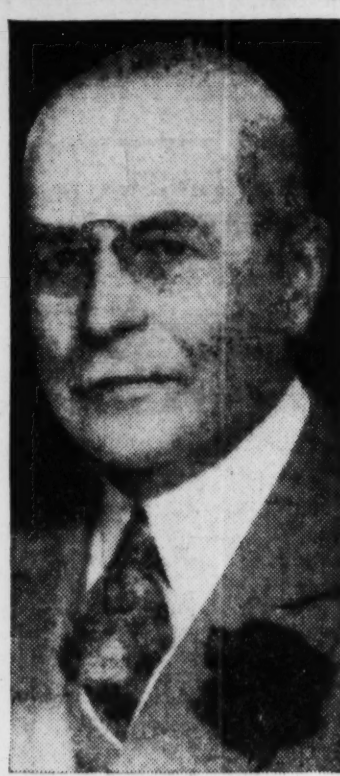

Harry Indell, Retiring President, Is Presented Gift by Colleagues.

S. Russell Bridges Jr. has been elected president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association, succeeding Harry W. Indell, it was announced at the club luncheon yesterday.

Officers named to serve with him are W. Straton Hale, first vice president; W. J. Rountree, second vice president; Thomas H. Daniel Jr., Holcombe T. Green, Charles B. Harrell Jr., John M. Jackson Jr., Edwin F. McCarty and Lawrence Willet, directors.

At yesterday's meeting, the retiring president was presented a golf bag in behalf of the club, the presentation being made by Henry M. Powell, publicity chairman. The outstanding event of his administration was the mid-year meeting of the National Life Underwriters' Association, held here in April.

The new president, Mr. Bridges, holds the degree of chartered life underwriter from the American College of Life Underwriters and has served as treasurer and vice president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters.

After a successful career in this business, he formed a partnership in the stock and bond business with Joseph E. Gaitens and when Mr. Gaitens moved to New York, John E. Murphy was taken into the partnership. For a time, Mr. Paine resided in New York, conducting a brokerage business there.

Later he opened his own private banking business, Thomas B. Paine & Company.

At times he served as a director in the First National Bank and in the Trust Company of Georgia.

After his retirement from active business, he maintained an office in the Trust Company of Georgia building where, fond of using a typewriter, he would drop in daily to write a few letters.

He was married in 1902 to the former Miss Douglas Gay, daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. Edward S. Gay.

Surviving, besides his wife, are a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Paine Saffers, of the late Captain William Saffers, of the United States army, and a granddaughter, Douglas Paine Saffers. Also surviving are a number of

Students To Study Two Mill Towns

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio, June 27.—(AP)—Twelve students, plus a professor and his wife, pulled out of Antioch College today on an unusual mission. As Antioch's first "traveling workshop," they will study, for academic credit, one northern and one southern mill town, and return about August 22.

Purpose of the trip is to analyze a community in action—see how it eats, plays, worships, makes a living and governs itself. The students will interview ministers, health officers, town officials, mill owners, labor leaders, housewives, and the proverbial "man on the street."

Towns chosen for the experiment are Lewiston, Maine, and Anniston, Ala.

Jurors Probe Company Hired To Line Roads

U. S. Jury Turns From Study of Gasoline Sales.

The United States grand jury, investigating reported irregularities in the State Highway Department, switched from a study of gasoline sales yesterday to investigation of a company once hired to paint lines down the center of Georgia highways.

The company, according to Raleigh, N. C., court records, charged the state $14.50 a mile for lining the roads during 1937 and 1938. Later the highway board had the same type of work done for $5 a mile.

Investigators learned that while the same records show the state paid $81,000 for road-stripping, the contracting company received only $46,000. The remainder, according to records, was paid to an agent "and others."

The above facts were made a matter of public record when the American Highway Marking Machine Company went into bankruptcy.

Subpoenaed to appear yesterday were J. B. Barton, of Atlanta, the agent mentioned in the company's records; Barton's son, Ed M. Barton, of Raleigh, allegedly the person who obtained the $14.50 contract with the state; R. Roy Carter, of Raleigh, now receiver of the concern; A. J. Fletcher and B. B. Sapp, officers of the bankrupt company.

Appearance during the morning of Georgia's three highway board members, W. L. Miller, chairman; Herman Watson, and L. L. Patten took up most of the jury's time and resulted in Carter, alone of the Carolinians, being called in for questioning.

Shift in the subject matter being investigated by the jury lent support to the theory that the present jury is only sifting various reports turned into United States Attorney Lawrence Camp's office, and that any indictments will be presented later if at all.

Until yesterday the jury was interviewing officials and employees of the American Oil Company and attaches of the State Highway Department regarding the sales of gasoline and motor oil to the highway department.

BAR GROUP TO MEET.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 27.—The annual meeting of the Third Judicial Circuit Bar Association will be held in Phenix City Friday and will attract lawyers from four counties. Charles O. Stokes, of Ozark, will preside. About 50 lawyers from Russell, Bullock, Barbour and Dale counties will attend.

World's Future Hangs on U. S., Roberts Thinks

Former War Reporter Backs F. D. R., Says Nation Unprepared.

The United States eventually must settle the fight between democracy and totalitarianism, as England cannot hope to survive the fury of a German blitzkrieg for more than six weeks, W. Adolphe Roberts, famed author and former war correspondent, predicted here yesterday.

The trained eye which has observed many armies in the field cast itself hastily over the American defenses and said he "wouldn't trade them for a pin, if we had a common frontier with Germany." A standing army of 2,000,000 is necessary for the United States if this country is to be prepared when the fight between democracy and totalitarianism is finally settled, he said. To adequately prepare defenses, two years will be necessary and improved alliances between American nations are essential, he added.

The wholesale German attack on England will begin about July 1, Roberts said. (Last spring he predicted the German attack on the low countries and France for May or early summer.)

"Roosevelt is the leader for us," Roberts declared in surveying the difficult foreign relations this country now faces. "I hope to heaven he will be re-elected. To have a Republican in office would be a tragic error. It is Roosevelt's duty to accept the nomination and it is our good luck that we have him at the helm."

Roberts foresees the possibility of an English peace move, which, he said, would mean the movement of British government to Canada, thus making our position even more dangerous.

Inaugural Fete Is Set Tonight By Lions Club

Robert Hale Will Succeed Victor Todd as President.

Instead of its weekly luncheon meeting today, the Atlanta Lions Club will hold an elaborate inaugural party at 7 o'clock tonight at the Atlanta Woman's Club when retiring President Victor Todd will be succeeded by Robert Hale.

The program, which will take place during the dinner, will include the introduction of the following new officers: Robert Hale, president; E. L. Gunn, vice president; Chan Burton, second vice president; Neil Riley, third vice president; Jim Anderson, treasurer; George Brown, secretary; Claiborne Glover, Lion tamer; Tom Moore, assistant Lion tamer; Brigadier Bob Young, chaplain; Earle Holden, tail twister; Bill Zuber, assistant tail twister; Ollie Rooves, Lioness editor, and R. B. Brantley, Kennon Perry, Lloyd Clough, and Carroll Cross, directors.

Dr. Paul Key, district secretary, will present Todd with the jeweled past president's button, and District Governor Wade Wright will present the lamp to the retiring president. Wright will also make the presentation of the district secretary gift to Dr. Key.

Licenses Available From Motor Club

Drivers' licenses may be obtained at offices of the Atlanta Motor Club, in the Biltmore hotel, beginning at noon today, Charlie Bishop, secretary, announced last night.

The offices will be open until about 5 o'clock this afternoon and tomorrow from 8 o'clock in the morning until 12 midnight. Two state patrolmen will be on duty to accommodate applicants.

Lon Sullivan, commissioner of public safety, explained that the jam at the state capitol was becoming so intense additional facilities were needed.

Placid Living Of Past Found In Douglasville

Good Fishermen, Good Athletes Are Pride of Town.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., June 27. Douglas county—Way back yonder when the city of Windsor was known as Jug Tavern, and Commerce was Harmony Grove, or maybe even further back, when Harmony Grove was Groaning Rock, there was a village at the intersection of the old wagon trails that followed the Indian paths along the comb of the Tallapoosa ridge. It flourished under the title of Skinned Chestnut.

It got the name from an ancient tree that stood there, gaunt and dead and peeled of its bark by time and the gnawing of the horses and mules of the farmers who came in to have their mules shod at the blacksmith shop that stood close by.

Need a Dignity.

There wasn't much there then, but the smithy, and a house or two, and maybe a store and a grist mill, but it grew slowly, and finally the folks around decided that "Skinned Chestnut" was not quite dignified enough for a place that was beginning to thrive.

So in 1875 the town was incorporated and took the name of the Little Giant, Stephen A. Douglas, and thus Douglasville came into being.

Travelers scudding along the Bankhead highway from Atlanta to Birmingham won't see the old chestnut tree today. It's been gone for many years. But if they stop and listen a minute along the highway, which is the main street of the town, they still can hear the musical ringing of the blacksmith's hammer.

Tied With Past.

It's sort of typical of the town, that sound which now has just about been lost to modern ears. For Douglasville, for all fact that it gleams with new paint, shows a hustle and bustle of life, and boasts three manufacturing plants which are humming busily, is in many ways tied closely to an older, more placid day.

It is manifested in the glowing forge of J. W. McLarty's blacksmith shop, back of the main street on a little alleyway where the old hitching rails of a wagon yard still can be seen, and in the clang of McLarty's mighty hammer on muleshoe and plowshare.

It is manifested now and then by the work of the traveling artist who writes ads for sugar or salt or flour sales in such ingenuities on the sidewalks in front of the stores. It shows up in the chalked announcements of baseball games on the sidewalks, and in the corrugated tin awnings supported by iron posts, or well-whittled wooden uprights, which shade the sidewalks from the summer sun.

Typical Scenes.

It is manifested in the pink and blue handbills you see a small boy carrying around once in a while, leaving them on counters or stuffing them in doors, announcing a fiddlers' convention, or a big singing at the courthouse.

It is revealed in the sight of a man in overalls going into the office of Bob O'Kelley, editor of the Douglas Enterprise, with a ham in a sack and coming out with a receipt for his paid-up subscription. Douglasville leads the good life. Let others sweat and strain and strive feverishly. Douglasville wonders if the fish are biting on Dog river.

Live Leisurely.

Ask a Douglasville man who is its most substantial citizen and he will pass over the question briefly. But he will tell you with great pride that J. P. Dodson, the undertaker; Dr. R. E. Hamilton and Clark Carver, who carries the mail, are the best bladed fishermen you ever saw. And he will tell you about John Hill, the best baseball player Douglasville ever turned out.

Ask him who has made the biggest contribution to Douglasville's civic life and he will ignore the question to point out that J. O. Sayer, the cashier at the bank; Gordon Banks, merchant and chairman of the board of education; Pop Hewitt, manager of the power company branch; Lamar Smith, from Sim's 5-and-10; Howard Thompson, who carries the mail, and Mayor Astor Merritt whipped the living daylights out of Carrollton in a shuffleboard game the other night.

That gives you an idea of how well Douglasville understands the more worthwhile things in life. When other towns were scrambling around getting the WPA to build new city halls and fire houses and post offices and what-

Golden Oats 'Become' Clover Under Spalding Farm Methods

Combines Used in Double Cultivation of Soil; One Crop Ripens While Another in Next Row Grows On, Uncut.

By WILLARD COPE.

By a sort of mechanical wand waving, involving the use of two large orange-colored "combines" that look like army tanks, a miracle of transformation was being performed by two crews of sweating men yesterday on a 60-acre field along the Chattahoochee at the Johnson Ferry bridge.

What was at first an expanse of tall, golden oats became, under the ministrations of the machines, a stretch of green pastureland, carpeted thickly with white and crimson clover, not yet in bloom, interspersed with lespedeza.

It was an example of efficient land-use and pasture-building all but unique in Georgia.

By this means the land was kept available for productive purposes without the loss of a day. The "combines," traveling rapidly on wheels with impressively large rubber tires—each machine having a revolving metal paddle reminiscent of a side-wheel river boat—cut the oats, sacked the grain and blew the straw back upon the field, from which it will be raked and stored as a filler feed for livestock.

The clover and lespedeza thus revealed became an immediate pasture for grazing cattle. What had happened was that the owner, Hughes Spalding, had planted winter oats in the usual way last October, and followed this with the sowing about March 15 of the clover and grass seed between the rows.

not, Douglasville asked for and got a new gymnasium.

Then they went further than that. They hired a tall fellow named John Carpenter, an Auburn graduate, and started off the doggonest recreation system you ever saw in a small town. They lined off the gym floor for badminton and shuffleboard and table tennis and what-not. They put up volleyball courts and sand boxes outside and bought some ABC blocks for the little fellows.

Now something is going on at the gym all the time. There's supervised play for the little folks and the grammar school kids in the morning. There's softball and tennis and what-not for the high school people in the afternoon. And at night half the town comes out while butcher, baker, blacksmith and banker play games not too hard on middle-aged hearts.

John Carpenter, with Claude Vansant and J. C. Howard, look after it all, John being a trained athlete and a specialist in many games. He has only one grief. He makes people stay off the gym floors if they haven't got soft-soled shoes. And John Carpenter, who wears a size 13-B, can find himself any soft-soled shoes.

County, City United.

Douglas county is a small county. Douglasville thinks of itself, not so much as a separate entity, but just as a part of the county. Whatever Douglasville has, it asks the county to share. The play program at the gym brings folks in from all around. There's another tie-in. A beautiful new agricultural building is going up at the county high school. To it, in the late fall, farm folks will come to can the beans, tomatoes, corn and okra and berries that grow in the gray land in profusion. Now that its nearly finished, they are also plugging for a community house with a swimming pool.

Colonel R. H. Hutcheson, the county commissioner, is Douglas county's strongest booster. He knows its people, its soil, its history, its potentialities. It has gold and granite and timber, brick clay and iron and water power. Its potentialities are great. Its per capita income is comparatively high. Some day, says Colonel Hutcheson, in a little history of the town and county which he has written his plans for a big all-day singing. There's a fiddlers' convention coming up.

YOUTHFUL FARMER STUDIES NEW WAY—Ten-year-old Russell Osborne, who lives on the Spalding plantation, observes the developing white and crimson clover and lespedeza pasture which the oats have protected since March. He gains this lesson in efficient use of land by the simultaneous growing of two sets of crops, which prevents the loss of a day of utilization.

Politics will be warming up soon, and Douglasville loves nothing better than a barbecue and a speaking. There'll be plenty of quail this fall, and it looks like the foxes will be barking from every ridge by first frost.

Crops are good and everybody, it looks like, will have plenty to eat and wear, with some left over. There's time enough left for what some folks call progress, when the fish are all gone from the streams, the quail from the fields, the foxes from the hills.

Experts said this procedure had been followed with lespedeza for a long time, but that the use of clovers in this way was new. Normally, the clovers have been planted in separate fields in the fall, and by now have blossomed and gone to seed unless continuously grazed.

The Spalding clovers in the combination field likewise soon would mature and seed except for the grazing. Immediate introduction of cattle will keep them green. The life of such a pasture was said to be at least two, to three years, without replanting.

It had been planned to hold an instructive demonstration, for the benefit of all interested farmers—in view of the progressive employment of machinery in agriculture—but rain had made unsuitable the date set last Tuesday. The cutting yesterday proceeded apace, with few to observe save the two crews of three men each. Great interest in the proceeding was manifested by the staff of Sid Truitt, county farm demonstration agent.

Rise of power-farming in the south, especially on units of less than 100 acres, was estimated yesterday by informed persons to have doubled in the past five years. Small tractors and combines are growing in popularity.

Arnall Takes 'Bull by Horns,' Prevents Fight

Ferdinand Smells Flowers Now Instead of Being Stooze for Rates.

By LUKE GREENE.

A carking good bull fight seemed to be in the offing for Atlanta yesterday until Ferdinand started smelling the flowers.

Now there will be no bull fight. Officials of the attorney general's office took the fight out of Ferdinand. He was snorting and rearing to go until they stepped in, patted him on the nose, and got him out of the notion. Now he just wants to smell the flowers.

Here is how it happened: During the course of a conversation in offices of the Georgia Public Service Commission, some one mentioned the fact that a hearing on livestock freight rates would be held in Atlanta July 15. It seems the south is disgruntled over the high cost of shipping livestock to the east.

Just to stir up a little interest in the meeting, one of the conversationalists suggested that a bull fight might be staged in Grant Field. The idea was that after the bull was killed, the Atlanta packers would rather around and be-moan the fact that they couldn't use the bull because there was no demand for it here and they couldn't ship it east because the rates were too high.

The idea really looked good for a while. You could almost visualize one of those Mexican affairs with thousands screaming from the stands, and at the same time a consciousness of the freight-rate problem.

Then it was suggested that before the idea grew too big the attorney general should be consulted about the law. That was the downfall of a great idea. Ellis Arnall turned thumbs down, said the Georgia law forbade cruelty to dumb animals or something to that effect.

It may be that some day Ferdinand will grow tired of smelling the flowers, and, like Jack Dempsey, hit the comeback trail. But until then leave him in peace.

Rural-Urban Conference To Start Today

Hundreds of Georgia Women To Gather Here for Two Days

The first traces of dawn on the eastern horizon this morning will find hundreds of Georgia rural women heading toward Atlanta for the third annual Rural-Urban conference which opens at 9 o'clock in the city auditorium.

Long before the roosters have a chance to ruffle the quietness of the countryside with their lusty crows, many of these women will be up preparing breakfast and getting ready for their annual pilgrimage to the big city.

Some will trickle in from the back woods sections of the north Georgia mountains. Others will come from the broad plains and coastal regions of the southern part of the state. They will crowd into school buses, trucks, automobiles—anything that will transport them to the Rural-Urban conference.

Two-Day Program

Awaiting them in Atlanta will be a full two-day program, during which they will glean new ideas and learn how better to co-operate with their city sisters.

These country women, who are accustomed to a quiet, uneventful existence, will have a big fuss made over them. They will be welcomed by Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield, be entertained in Atlanta's finest homes and mingle with the leaders of women's activities in the state.

Among the speakers today will be Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, whose subject will be "The Need of Women in Government." Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the University of Georgia, also will address the group on "The Place of Higher Education as a Community Service."

At noon the country women will spread their picnic lunches, consisting of fried chicken, ham, potatoes and other products of the farm, which they will share with their city hosts. This part of the program has been labeled a "Georgia Products Dinner."

Variety of Forums

During the afternoon they will participate in forums on a variety of topics ranging from the correct use of the ballot by women and cancer control, to self-improvement in reading and canning. After the forums they will see a play which will be presented as a memorial to the late Dr. Charles Herty.

Highlight of tonight's program will be a play produced by the State Department of Public Health entitled "For Your Health's Sake." The script was written by Dr. Justin Andrews, of the health department. It will present incidents that are commonplace occurrences in the experience of local health workers.

The program will continue tomorrow with a mass peace demonstration conducted by Atlanta ministers, more addresses and more forums.

Mrs. Robin Wood, director of the conference, who was ordered to bed yesterday by doctors because of overexertion in preparing for the program, is scheduled to preside over the sessions.

'Railroad Day' Fete To Be Tomorrow

"Railroad Day," the first officially proclaimed railroad celebration in which citizens are called on by Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield to participate to call public attention to the railroad industry and its importance to Georgia, will be observed tomorrow at Lakewood.

Several thousand rail, express, Pullman and allied employees, their families and friends will hold an all-day picnic, featuring music, games, a baby contest, beauty contest, dancing and a real Georgia barbecue. The barbecue will begin at 1 o'clock and last until 8.

The Atlanta Model Railroad Club will display working models of engines, cars and other railroad equipment made by members not connected with the railroads.

The Georgia Rainbow drill team of 60 girls will go through a series of drills, and the most perfect baby, the prettiest girl in the railroad fraternity and the largest railroad family will be chosen. There will be no political speeches.

Job Classification Session Today

City council will meet in special session at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to consider a job-classifying report from the city personnel board, based on the work of a group of consultants, which places the 3,100 city employees into 310 classifications.

Council will be asked to approve the classifications, after which the personnel board will fix a salary range for each of the classifications and provide a program for pay increases.

Speeder Escapes Fine, Feared Spies' Pursuit

DETROIT, June 27.—(UP)—Traffic Judge George T. Murphy has given tacit approval to people who hurry in belief they're safeguarding United States secrets.

James Gordon, an engineer who said he had access to navy blueprints, was taken into court on a charge of reckless driving, as was John Chisholm. Gordon explained he speeded when Chisholm's car chased his, fearing spies were after him. Chisholm said he was only angry because Gordon tooted his horn in traffic.

Judge Murphy found Gordon innocent, but said Chisholm must pay a $50 fine or serve 10 days in jail.

Homer Nelson Appointed Prosecutor of Alapaha

Homer Nelson, of Adel, was appointed prosecutor of the Alapaha superior court circuit yesterday for the unexpired term of the late Henry C. Morgan, of Homerville.

Sworn in by Governor Rivers, the new prosecutor said he soon would qualify to run for the office in the September 11 Democratic primary. The appointive term runs until January 1.

A former legislator of Cook county, Nelson started practicing law at Adel in 1919. He is a World War veteran.

FIFTH CANDIDATE—Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, became the fifth candidate in the Governor's race yesterday when he qualified with Mrs. Kathleen S. Hogan, assistant secretary of the state Democratic executive committee. He paid his $350 entrance fee in two $100 bills and three $50 bills. (Story on Page 1.)

Deen Releases His Platform To Peril U. S., For State Race

Candidate for Governor Advocates Raise in Salary.

In announcing his candidacy for governor of Georgia yesterday, Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, issued a five-page statement in which he said he would "at no time engage in petty bickering, backbiting, mud-slinging, or scandalizing."

Excerpts from his statement follow:

I would recommend to the legislature the appropriation of the total moneys now received by the state to the various departments, including sufficient funds to maintain the seven-month school term and free school books, which will require in round numbers $4,000,000 more than has been provided for the schools by the legislature.

I would recommend to the legislature that approximately $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 be added to the present funds for the State Department of Public Welfare to be matched by a similar amount of federal funds, with which to pay the $5,000 to $6,000 persons who are eligible for public assistance, but who are not receiving a dime.

With the University System receiving less money than it did in 1926, 14 years ago, and with more than twice the number of students I would recommend to the legislature that adequate provision be made out of the total general fund for the University System.

This plan would decrease receipts to the Highway Department from around $24,000,000 to around $15,000,000. I recognize the fact that we need more roads, some super highways, and some of our present roads repaired and improved, but also realize that with world conditions as they are and the present national defense program being provided by the congress of the United States, which will call for billions of dollars of new taxes, that the people of the state of Georgia cannot and should not be asked to pay one dollar of additional state taxes for any purpose during the next two years and perhaps longer.

It is regrettable, of course, that it would become necessary to amend the highway acts so as to do away with the allocated funds and put them in general funds. . . . however, there is no alternative except by new taxes.

I would recommend to the legislature reimbursement by the state to the counties for losses sustained under homestead exemptions.

I would recommend to the legislature an amendment to the constitution and existing law to provide for the election of a governor for a term of four years with an increase in his salary from $7,500 to $12,000 a year, and making him ineligible to be re-elected and also making it unlawful for a candidate for governor to accept from any person, corporation, group or from any other source any campaign donations of any kind whatsoever.

I would live within the limitations of the constitution and the laws of the state with respect to use of the national guard.

While I subscribe to most of the program now in effect in Georgia, I do not agree nor have I agreed at any time with every phase of the program, and certainly do not agree with some of the methods of its operation.

No corporation, big interest or little interest, nor politicians, no group, nor factions, are financing my campaign.

A fellow who will buy his way in office will usually sell his way out and along with him will sell out the people with the office.

Nazi Victory To Peril U. S., Harvey Warns

Emory Professor Urges Americans To Cease 'Wishful Thinking.'

A plea that Americans cease all wishful thinking about the outcome of the current European war was sounded yesterday by Dr. Mose L. Harvey, assistant professor of history at Emory University, in a luncheon address before members of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"We Americans have no right to put too much faith in the chance that England may be able to beat back Germany," he declared. "We ought to recognize the fact that there is every chance of Germany's becoming master of Europe, a mastery which would create great economic difficulties for us."

"We would be continually menaced by a strong military power, threatened by a move within our own ranks toward the Nazi philosophy, and possibly faced with a military attack before we're ready to meet it."

"We are faced with the absolute necessity of doing all we can to try to secure the defeat of Germany by England or to get ready for any contingency if a British victory proves impossible."

Faith in a faulty military plan was blamed by the young professor for the French defeat.

"That plan was to depend on the defensive as a means to win the war," he explained. "The British and French were to win by not fighting, according to a plan based on the idea that in modern warfare the defensive has the advantage over the offensive. It was faith in a plan that had proved successful in the first World War."

Dependence on this plan has brought disaster, not only for the French, but perhaps for the world, said Dr. Harvey, who last fall returned from a three months' study of the war-infested continent.

Death of Floyd Man Laid to Suicidal Shot

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., June 27.—A jury under Floyd county Coroner O. D. Minge today rendered a verdict of death by self-inflicted gunshot wounds in the case of J. L. Wilkerson, who died yesterday at his home near Aragon.

Neighbors testified that Mr. Wilkerson had been in declining health for some time, and notes which he left for members of his family indicated he had been despondent since the death of his wife more than a year ago.

Mr. Wilkerson had been an active member of Crossroads Baptist church many years. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. E. C. Shelley, of Brownville, Tenn.; three sons, Preston and Donald Wilkerson, of near Aragon, and Grady Wilkerson, of Chattanooga; two sisters, Mrs. L. W. McKelvey, of Taylorsville, and Mrs. J. L. Popham, of Waco, Texas; and a brother, Tom Wilkerson, also of Waco.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning in Crossroads Baptist church. The Rev. J. E. Smith will officiate, with burial in the church cemetery.

Club Urges Tax To Halt Cobb Venereal Disease

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

POWDER SPRINGS, Ga., June 27.—The Progressive Men's Club recommended in a resolution today that the County Advisory Board make an additional half-mill levy on the tax rate, as a year for financing a program to eradicate venereal diseases in Cobb county.

The addition of the half-mill, the petition read, will enable county health authorities to employ three additional nurses, as well as establish free clinics for the treatment of communicable diseases at points readily accessible to all persons in the county.

The resolution was sent Commissioner C. M. Head and members of the County Advisory Board.

Russian Planes Darken Sky as Rumania Bows

servists; Fliers Guard Bucharest.

BUCHAREST, June 27.—(AP)—Amid reports that Red warplanes were darkening the horizon and that Red troops, tanks and artillery were massing at her frontier, Rumania's grand council, under the presidency of 46-year-old King Carol II, gave reluctant consent to demands which authoritative sources outlined as follows: Return of Bessarabia, 17,146 square miles of fertile country, inhabited by more than 3,000,000 persons, which once was part of the Czarist Russian empire and to which Red Russia never formally renounced her claim.

Cession of the northern part of Bucovina province, once part of the Austro-Hungarian empire, but how much of Bucovina's 4,030 square miles and 911,000 inhabitants Russia wanted was not known.

Control of Constanta, Rumania's big Black sea port, Constanta, as a Red naval base; Supervision of Galati and Braila, two Rumanian ports controlling all navigation on the Danube, one of Germany's principal lifelines, and Railway bases at certain Rumanian ports along with certain other incidental concessions. (Reports to Berlin said "control" of Tulcea, another Danube port, also was demanded.)

While Rumania still pleaded for time to dicker, gendarmes went from house to house, farm to farm and factory to factory calling up Rumanian reservists; planes patrolled the Bucharest airport, and aircraft guns were mounted on the capital's tall buildings.

But, so far as Russia was concerned, this was only a precautionary gesture. Unrelenting on her ultimatum, Russia won Rumanian concessions apparently without firing a shot.

As regards Hungary and her demands for 24,020-square-mile Transylvania, there was a show of resistance. It was learned officially that Rumanian troops were being concentrated in Transylvania, near the Hungarian frontier.

Official quarters expressed belief that King Carol had decided to grant all Russia's requests in order to be able to throw all his 1,500,000 armed men against the expected Hungarian attempt to regain Transylvania, lost by Hungary in the World War settlements.

Bulgaria's claim on the southern part of 8,979-square-mile Dobruja remained a more undetermined factor in Rumania's future. There was no sign of extraordinary military activity in Bulgaria—or Hungary, for that matter—but foreign observers pointed out that both have strong forces on their borders with Rumania.

Responsible Bulgarian sources at Sofia expressed belief that Russia's success was the long-awaited opening wedge for remaking the Balkan map.

A Bulgarian army of 250,000 remained on the Turkish frontier, in apparent preoccupation over Turkish aims rather than the winning of the historic Dobruja claim against Rumania.

Entire Length
Is Illuminated

Final Link From North Avenue to 10th Street Completed.

Whiteway lights blazed along the entire length of Peachtree street for the first time last night when the switch was pulled illuminating 68 lamps in the eight blocks from North Avenue to Tenth street.

Installed at a cost of approximately $6,000, the new whiteway posts complete the city's illumination of Peachtree from Five Points to the city limits, where Peachtree road begins.

Preceding the pulling of the switch, by J. W. Thomas, president of the Peachtree and Tenth Street Merchants' Association, short ceremonies were held at the Peachtree and Tenth intersection. Speakers were Mayor Hartsfield, Councilman John A. White and Dewey L. Johnson, superintendent of electrical affairs.

140 Foreign Ships Are in
U. S. Harbors

Normandie, Queen Elizabeth, World's Largest,
Tied Up in N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—Approximately 140 foreign flag vessels, including the world's two largest passenger liners—the British Queen Elizabeth and the French Normandie—are now in New York harbor.

The $60,000,000 Normandie, 83,423 tons, has been here since shortly after the war started last September. The 85,000-ton Elizabeth, still uncompleted, made a secret dash to the United States in March. They are tied up at adjacent piers on the North river.

Across the river at the Hoboken pier is the Holland liner, Nieuw Amsterdam, idle since May 14. Besides the Normandie, four French freighters are here, along with a Norwegian freighter leased by a French company. 6-Year Program Sought;
Group Will Lighten
President's Duties.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today directed government agencies concerned with construction to submit their plans to the national resources board, which will develop a six-year program.

White House officials said that it was proposed to send the board's program to congress about the time the President submits his annual budget message.

In addition to co-ordination of the federal construction program, Stephen T. Early, Presidential secretary, said that the order was aimed at taking some of the routing of budgeting and planning federal construction off Mr. Roosevelt's shoulders.

Reds Occupy Region Taken By Rumania

word of the Red ultimatum or of King Carol's acceptance.

(Hungarian troops were on the move from the Carpathians down to the Tisza river, facing Rumania's 300-mile defense line called "the King's wall" along its entire length, the United Press said.)

(There was no suggestion anywhere tonight that Hungary is disposed to mediate over the question of Transylvania, now that Soviet Russia appears to have started the dismemberment of Rumania with an ultimatum calling for the surrender of Bessarabia and part of Bucovina province. The disintegration of Rumania on a scale parallel to that of Czechoslovakia was forecast in responsible Hungarian quarters and diplomatic circles, with Russia setting the pace.)

(Next, it was said by Hungarians, must come satisfaction of their claims to Transylvania and Bulgaria's claim to Dobruja. "Within the next 24 hours decisive events probably will occur," said an informed Hungarian spokesman.

(The situation now becomes one of now or never.) The Swiss radio said Russia, in addition to demanding Bessarabia, north Bucovina and certain port control from Rumania, also insisted upon control of Rumanian oil fields and a different political system in that country.

Rumania agreed to the ultimatum, the radio report said.

Axis Consent.
Whether she fights Hungary or not, whether she presses her own territorial claim for southern Dobruja or lets it lie, Rumania, World War heir to Balkan supremacy, was well on the road to dismemberment.

Apparently Germany and Italy gave their consent to Russia's latest coup. Axis ministers were in long and earnest consultation with King Carol II in his hours of deliberation and decision.

(A tripower agreement among Germany, Italy and Russia dividing zones of interest in southeastern Europe opened the way for the Soviet's ultimatum against Rumania, it was stated in well-informed Nazi quarters early Friday, the United Press said.)

All told, Rumania stands to lose nearly half of her 113,884 square miles and return to Balkan obscurity—a satellite wavering between the gravitational pull of the Axis powers in the west and the Red empire in the east.

Today, with the Soviet already in the Carpathian passes on Hungary's northern frontier by reason of the disappearance of Poland and Czechoslovakia, the Red army moved closer to that same curving barrier on the east.

Stalin chose an opportune moment to move in the Balkans and extended a panSlavic sway that has been a Russian ambition from the days of the tsars.

Nazis Too Busy.

Germany is too busy in the west apparently to pay heed; Italy has joined her in the war and may not be in the mood to help Hungary carry out that proposed rush to the Carpathian barricade in Rumania.

Both in Berlin and Rome "disinterest" in the Rumanian situation was expressed, but informed opinion in the Balkans was that only because of the emergency in the west could Germany tolerate a situation which would leave Russia controlling Danube ports and otherwise dominating German economic interest in the Black sea region.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav cabinet met upon receipt of the Rumanian news. When Italy entered the war Yugoslav leaders announced they expected Russian help if Italy attempted an invasion of their soil.

The German radio, in a report from Belgrade, said there was no question of Yugoslav observing her Balkan entente obligations with Rumania providing assistance only in case of aggression by another Balkan power, not in the case of Soviet Russia.

Bulgaria was believed to be still dependent upon her long-standing "little brother" relationship with Russia for support of her claims to Rumanian territory.

But she has been tremendously impressed by German victories in the west and has grown a bit uneasy over her future relations with Russia—a fact which obviously has irritated the Soviet.

Dalton Bride To Wear Brooch Embodying Great Sentiment

• • • WHEN LOVELY Laura McCarty is arrayed in her bridal robes tomorrow, to become the bride of William Candler at a ceremony taking place in Dalton, she will wear an exquisite pearl and sapphire crescent-shaped brooch. Sentiment is embodied in the pin which the groom-elect will give his fiancée, because the piece of jewelry was given his mother on her wedding day by his father, the late William Candler, when their ceremony took place in Cutbert, Ga.

Laura will present her bridesmaids silver sports pins in the shape of miniature coffee spoons, exact copies of the coffee spoons of an "Old Lace" pattern contained in the chest of "Old Lace" silver, which the bride-elect's parents gave Laura and William.

Silver key rings are William's gift to his attendants, and, by the way, it is interesting to note that Dr. Montague Boyd, an usher in William's wedding, was a groomsmen in the bridal personnel of his parents. Ushers in the McCarty-Candler wedding are brothers and best friends of the late William Candler.

The groom-elect's mother, who married Howell Ross Hanson several years ago, gave the betrothed couple an heirloom silver coffee urn. Mr. Hanson presented them with a gorgeous silver service of "Plymouth" design. A mahogany Duncan Phyfe table is the gift of Rena and W. H. Chambers, the groom-elect's sister and brother.

Mrs. Oda T. Sperl, aunt of the groom-to-be, gave them an original Benjamin Franklin print to adorn the walls of their home. Laura's mother, Mrs. William S. McCarty, of Dalton, presented her daughter with two rosewood chairs of the Victorian era, which have needlepoint upholstery and have been in the family for three generations.

Martha and Henry Heinz Jr. selected a portable radio which will accompany Laura and William on their honeymoon to the Hawaiian Islands.

• • • WHEN PRETTY Nancy Stair becomes Mrs. Marvin Mitchell tomorrow evening she will look like a fairy bride, wearing a gown of misty net fashioned in a distinctive design. Her gown is typically bridal and will form the something new she will wear for her wedding. The something borrowed will be the exquisite rose-point lace veil belonging to Mrs. S. R. Bridges Jr., and worn by the former Julia Colquhoun when she became a bride several years ago. The veil, an import, will be caught to Nancy's dark hair by a wreath of orange blossoms. For the something old, she will wear a beautiful gold necklace set with three diamonds which has been in her family for many years.

To insure luck, she will wear a silver sapphire in her shoe, and the something blue will be a forget-me-not tucked in her bridal bouquet.

Handsome gifts continue to pour into the Stovall boulevard residence of Nancy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stair, where the marriage will take place. One of the handsomest gifts is from Louise Woodruff and is a large silver tray and pitcher. Mr. Woodruff gave Nancy the privilege of selecting her own gift, and the two pieces of silver she chose hold a conspicuous place in the array.

There is also a silver tray from Angelique Ledaux Provosty, of New Orleans, a lifelong friend of Nancy. The two girls have the same birthday, and before Nancy moved to Atlanta to reside she and Angelique held double celebrations each year. The very first gift to arrive for Nancy and Marvin was a handsome set of bookends from Dr. Hugh Halley.

Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Wolff sent a large pewter sandwich

McCarty - Candler Wedding Attracts Many Atlantans

The marriage of Miss Laura McCarty and William Candler, which will be a brilliant event of tomorrow taking place in Dalton, will attract prominent Atlantans.

Among those attending will be Mr. and Mrs. Howell Ross Hanson, the latter being the mother of Mr. Candler. Mrs. Ada T. Sperl, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chambers, Miss Bennie Louise Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Candler, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Candler, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinz, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinz Jr., Judge and Mrs. John Candler, Dr. and Mrs. Jesse York, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Candler.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Asa Warren Candler, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Candler, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Candler II, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edmondson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Homer Thompson, Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Candler, Mrs. Edgar Chambers Jr., Mrs. Robert Hare, Mrs. John Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Joan Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. C. Smith. Also Dr. and Mrs. Carter Smith, Dr. and Mrs. Montague Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. William McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. John Mullin Jr., Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Bousse, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Smith.

Mrs. McCaskill Honors Bride

Mrs. June McCaskill entertained at luncheon recently at the East Lake Country Club in compliment to Mrs. Albert Earl Hill, a popular recent bride. Mrs. McCaskill served as bridesmaid in the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Hill which was an event of social interest. Mrs. Hill is the former Miss Theresa Edwards.

The hostess chose for the centerpiece of her luncheon table a white Wedgwood bowl filled with multi-colored lilies, roses, sweet peas and other summer garden flowers. The place cards bore figures of dainty brides.

Covers were placed for the honor guest, Mrs. Hill, Misses Thelma Brown, Frances Morris, Florence Foster, Nell Foster, Mesdames John J. Poole, Sam Morris, Harry Gorman, R. B. Cates, S. H. Phillips, W. S. Phillips and the hostess, Mrs. McCaskill.

Cuban Visitors Arrive in Atlanta

Senor and Senora Filiberto Almazan and Senora Angelina D'Abigdon de Hernandez, of Cuba, arrived yesterday to visit their brother, Antonio Martinez Jr., and his family at 375 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Bragg-Alexander.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Joyce Bragg and David Cleon Alexander Jr., the ceremony having taken place recently.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lark S. Bragg Sr. of Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander are residing in New Orleans, Louisiana.

MRS. WILLIAM HUNT EPPERSON.

Miss Kathryn Simmons Weds Mr. Epperson at Grace Church

Miss Lillian Kathryn Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howell Cobb Simmons, became the bride of William Hunt Epperson at a beautiful afternoon ceremony solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday at Grace Methodist church. The Rev. Henry H. Jones officiated, and the musical program was presented by Mrs. Robert F. Cunningham, organist. Mr. Epperson is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Guerrant Epperson, of Hapeville.

The palms massed the rear of the church altar which was centered with a bowl of Madonna lilies and white snapdragons. Flanking the altar was tall floor standard topped with seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers.

George Harrison was best man for Mr. Epperson and the ushers were Willard Copeland and Edwin Sterne Jr. Miss Katherine MacDonnold was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a French blue lace gown and an off-the-face hat of similar material. Her flowers were a bouquet of roses, sweet peas, and delphinium, displaying all the colors of the spectrum and tied with blue satin ribbon. The lovely young bride was given in marriage by her father, Howell Cobb Simmons. She chose for her marriage a gown of shell-pink marquisette over pink taffeta, designed with a fitted bodice, a heart-shaped neckline, long full sleeves gathered into bands of lace at the wrists, and a flowing skirt. Her hat was a picture model of leghorn and her flowers were Johanna Hill roses, swainsons and lilies of the valley, showered with valley lilies and tied with pink ribbons.

The bride and groom left for a wedding journey to points of interest in Florida, after which they will reside in Miami. Mrs. Epperson traveled in a frock of brown mesh trimmed in white and worn with a brown silk turban, brown and white accessories, and a full-length brown coat.

Mrs. Simmons, mother of the bride, was gowned in brown mesh trimmed in white and worn with brown and white accessories. Her flowers were orchids.

Out-of-town guests attending the marriage included Mrs. J. F. Simmons, paternal grandmother of the bride, and Miss Addie Simmons, both of Jasper; Mrs. W. A. Brown, of Nelson, the bride's maternal grandmother; Mrs. W. T. Hall, of Graham, N. C.; Mrs. W. H. Imman, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Brown and Miss Betty Bennett, of Zebulon.

Marriage Revealed.

Mrs. Minnie Lee Day, of Jacksonville, Fla., announces the marriage of her daughter, Donna, to Scott Moser, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Moser, of Atlanta, which was solemnized last September 2 in Heflin, Ala.

Kantor-Facher.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kantor announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helene Beatrice Kantor, to Bernard Facher, of New York city, the marriage having taken place June 15 in New York.

Miss Moore Weds R. C. Harrison In Forsyth, Ga.

FORSYTH, Ga., June 27.—At a beautiful afternoon ceremony solemnized at 5:30 o'clock today at the Forsyth Methodist church, Miss Mary Alice Moore, of Macon and Forsyth, the daughter of Mrs. James Monroe Moore and the late Mr. Moore, became the bride of Richard Columbus Harrison, of Atlanta. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Hamby Barton, pastor of the Epworth Methodist church, Atlanta.

Miss Sara McGee at the organ rendered music, and Mrs. Paul Chapman sang.

Ushers were Harry Fuss and Drew Hornsby, of Atlanta.

Carol Cooner, of Americus, small piece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore blue point d'esprit over blue taffeta. A hat of garden flowers completed her costume and she carried an old-fashioned nosegay of garden flowers.

Mrs. Curtis Tucker, of Forsyth, was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a gown of shell pink lace. Her hat was a tiny arrangement of natural flowers, and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers.

James Monroe Moore Jr. gave his sister in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Roy Mills, of Jacksonville, Fla. The bride wore a gown of marquisette and Chantilly lace with elbow length mitts of lace. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was caught to her hair with a bandeau of valley lilies, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids, showered with valley lilies.

After the wedding Mrs. James Monroe Moore held an informal open house for the out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Moore wore a gown of black and white chiffon, a small hat of black straw completing her costume. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. C. D. Harrison, mother of the groom, was gowned in navy sheer with matching hat of straw and gardenias.

Mr. Harrison and his bride left for a trip through North Carolina and Virginia, and after July 8, they will be at home at 1343 Peachtree street, Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Harvey entertained last evening at a rehearsal party at their home on Emory circle honoring their daughter, Miss June Harvey, and her fiancé, Hartman Eager, of Valdosta and Atlanta, whose marriage will be a brilliant event of today.

The buffet table in the dining room was centered with a graceful arrangement of white summer flowers and throughout the house a profusion of pastel summer flowers was effectively arranged. The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Harvey's mother, Mrs. Ada M. Emery, and her daughter, Miss Grace Emery, of Birmingham, Mich.

Guests included members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

West End Club Aids Red Cross.

For the convenience of West End residents and adjoining communities, the Civic Club of West End will open their clubhouse, 1115 Gordon street, five days each week, Monday through Friday, from 9 until 1 o'clock, to sew for the Red Cross.

All organizations, as well as individuals, are invited to sew any part of any morning. Organizations wishing to reserve a special time for their use are requested to telephone Mrs. W. Carl Raper, president of the Civic Club, Raymond 8816. Workers are to bring their own thimbles, needles, scissors and thread. Electric machines are furnished.

Miss Mary Knott Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. E. Hervey Reese Jr. entertained Miss Mary Knott, bride-elect, at a miscellaneous shower and steak supper at North Fulton park recently.

Present in addition to the honor guest were Mesdames Grace Mobley, Lou Dickson, Inez Shaw, Billie Sures, Frank Greene, Maude Welden, Ruth Arnold Jimmie Brewer, Annie Holt, Viola Fauss, W. D. Maybin, J. S. Kisses, Clara Young, Lillian Eaves and Mary Harrison.

Miss Knott was honor guest Saturday at a luncheon and kitchen shower given by several members of the Atlanta Credit Women's Club. Covers were laid for Mesdames Mattie Lewis Huey, Evelyn Latimer, Jane Baumgartner, Betty Lewis, Sybil Arbery, Henrietta Kite, Elizabeth Reese, Louise Wimbley, Misses Mary Cook, Lola Beck, Marietta Faust, Julia Womack, Anne Porreca and Sara Rollins.

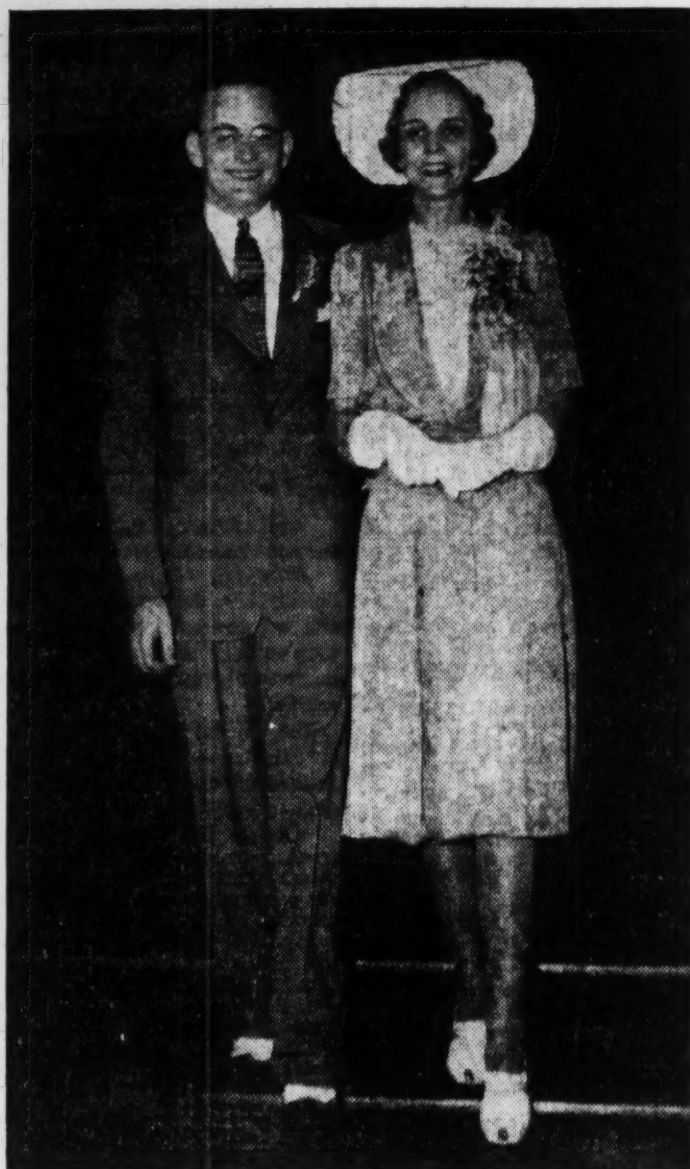

Fields-Dean.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 27. Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Kathleen Fields, of High Point, N. C., to Durrell Thurston Dean, of Asheville, which was solemnized Sunday evening, June 16, in Greenville, South Carolina.

The bride was becomingly attired in a dress of white sharkskin with matching accessories and a corsage of tiny red roses with baby breath completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Dean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Fields, of Pleasant Garden. She attended Pleasant Garden High school, and is a graduate of Burrus Memorial Training school. For the past year and a half she has been a member of the nursing staff of Wesley Long hospital, Greensboro, North Carolina.

Mr. Dean is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Dean, of East Point, Ga. He attended Georgia Military Academy and Georgia School of Technology. He is a member of the officers' reserve corps, and is connected with Remington Rand, Inc., in Asheville, N. C.

Dr. and Mrs. William B. Wiley, who were photographed at their recent marriage, have returned from their wedding trip to Jacksonville Beach. They will leave Sunday for Savannah, where Dr. Wiley will be attached to the Marine hospital. Mrs. Wiley is the former Miss Bernice Johnson, daughter of Roscoe Trammell Johnson, of Griffin.

Miss Laura Hayes Marries Arthur Douglas Wauchope

Miss Laura Tappan Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Hayes, became the bride of Arthur Douglas Wauchope, of Decatur, at a ceremony performed yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist church in Decatur at 5:30 o'clock.

Rev. J. W. McKibben performed the marriage service. Miss Frances Burgess, organist, and Miss Myra Barber, soloist, presented a program of music.

The church altar was banked with palms and smilax, interspersed with cathedral candelabra holding white burning tapers. Urns filled with white gladioli completed the decorations. White satin ribbons marked the pews reserved for the relatives and close friends.

Ushers were Robert Hayes Jr., brother of the bride; Rev. Robert Ernest, Rev. Joe Boyd and Horace N. Stanton.

Miss Dorothy Hayes, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of hyacinth blue marquisette fashioned over matching taffeta, and trimmed with blue lace. She wore pink rosebuds in her hair and carried a bouquet of pink roses, blue delphiniums and other pastel colored garden flowers.

The lovely bride entered with her father, Robert S. Hayes, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his cousin, Professor Robert Wauchope, of the University of Georgia, who served as best man. Her beauty was enhanced by her wedding gown of white marquisette over bridal satin. The bodice was designed along princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline trimmed with Alencon lace and the long, flared skirt ended in a fan-shaped train at the back. The bride's veil of Brussels lace was caught to her hair with a coronet of valley lilies, and she carried a bouquet of valley lilies and white orchids. Her only jewels were a string of pearls, which were a wedding gift from the groom.

Mrs. Hayes chose for the occasion a gown of navy chiffon, trimmed with white lace and white accessories. A shoulder bouquet of pink rosebuds completed her costume.

Mrs. Wauchope, mother of the groom, was gowned in a green and white print, with which she wore white accessories and a shoulder spray of white roses.

Mr. Wauchope and his bride left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside in Decatur. For traveling Mrs. Wauchope chose a navy blue frock with a collar of light blue embroidered linen. A white hat with navy veil and white accessories completed the smart costume.

Miss Selden Gives Luncheon at Club.

Miss Nancy Stair, whose marriage to Dr. Marvin Mitchell will be an event of tomorrow evening, was honored yesterday at a luncheon at which Miss Caroline Selden was hostess at the Piedmont Driving Club. Sharing honors on this occasion was Mrs. William Benedict, a recent bride, the former Miss Mary Bryan.

The luncheon was held on the screened porch and the table was centered with a crystal basket filled with Madonna lilies, lemon lilies and other pastel colored summer flowers. Flanking the central decoration were crystal bowls filled with gardenias.

Invited for the occasion were 12 friends of the honor guests.

Minter-Colvin.

The marriage of Miss Mary Minter to James Colvin was solemnized on June 15. Dr. Louis D. Newton officiated at the ceremony which took place in the study at Druid Hills Baptist church.

The bride wore an ensemble of brown and white. Her corsage was talisman roses and lilies of the valley. After a motor trip into the Great Smokies the couple will reside at 963 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Miss Snyder Weds Roy E. Johnson

Wearing a bridal gown of lavishly embroidered eyelet batiste, Miss Betty Lee Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Snyder, was married Sunday afternoon to Roy Earnest Johnson, son of Mrs. Solon Johnson, at the Capitol View Baptist church. The Rev. Dr. W. Lee Cutts performed the ceremony at 12:30 o'clock before an assemblage of relatives and friends. A program of music was presented by Miss Elinor Webb, organist, and Louie Williams, soloist.

Misses Marie Black and Frances Hunt were bridesmaids, wearing white batiste gowns trimmed in Kelly green velvet ribbon and white off-the-face hats. They carried bouquets of garden flowers tied with green ribbon.

Marvin Byrd served Mr. Johnson as groomsmen.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, I. D. Snyder, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Marvin Hutchinson. The bride's gown was made along princess lines, featuring a square neckline, puffed sleeves and a full skirt. Her hat of white linen straw emphasized the halo effect. The bridal bouquet was of orchids and valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Johnson chose for her son's wedding a black sheer model trimmed in white, and she wore a cluster of gardenias.

Owing to the illness of the bride's mother no reception was held, the bridal couple leaving by motor for a wedding trip in the mountains of north Georgia. The bride traveled in a navy blue and white suit worn with a lingerie blouse, white accessories and a cluster of purple-throated orchids.

Upon their return the bridal couple will reside in Atlanta, where the bridegroom is connected with the First National Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hardaway from Newman and Mrs. J. F. Cosby and daughter, Betty, of LaGrange, were out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Thomson Fetes Forsythia Club.

One of the most enjoyable occasions of the year for the Forsythia Garden Club was the seated luncheon given the club members recently by its president, Mrs. Logan Thomson, at her country home on Marietta road. This was the last meeting for the summer.

Centering the dining table was an exquisite arrangement in the manner of a garden, consisting of delphiniums, fever few and white sweet peas and gardenias. With each place card was a gardenia corsage.

Mrs. George Hoyt opened the meeting with a prayer, followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting. On the program were Mrs. Robert Latta, Mrs. Tom Johnson, Miss Mary T. Moon and Men's Garden Club and president Charles R. Perry, a member of the of the Dahlia Club of Georgia.

Canada Builds Reservoir for British Aviation

Nation Ready To Train Fliers, But Lacks Planes.

(Canada's war efforts and what these may mean to the United States are disclosed here in the fourth of a series of articles written by a staff correspondent of the Washington Star and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

By THOMAS R. HENRY.

For North American Newspaper Alliance. OTTAWA, Ont., June 27.—Shortly after the war started, Canada was handed a big job—bigger than anybody realized except those immediately entrusted with its execution.

This job was to turn out 25,000 air fighters—fully equipped and trained pilots, observers and gunners—a year.

With its wide-open spaces and freedom from any possibility of air attack, the Dominion was to be the air personnel depot of the British empire.

It was to be an empire project—the British commonwealth air training plan. Canada, Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand were to be partners.

Canada would supply the airfields, airdromes and her proportion of the power. This was by far the most expensive part of the undertaking, and was to have been the Dominion's major role in the war.

Great Britain was to supply the greater part of the training planes and send her prospective air fighters across the Atlantic for their final training before going into battle. Australia and New Zealand also were to send advanced flying students. Within a year, it was planned, there would be an unending stream of fully trained air fighters crossing the Atlantic.

Canada Does Its Job.

Canada is rapidly accomplishing her part of the program. Scattered over the country there are already more than 100 air training centers in operation. The supply of training planes from England has now been cut off, at least temporarily. England has urgent need at home for everything that will fly. Only a few men have arrived from Australia and New Zealand. These dominions are finding it more economical to train their flying personnel at home.

Canada remains with the facilities to train and equip, with about everything except planes, an aerial army of 25,000 men every 12 months, and these eventually may be the men who will break the back of Germany. For training planes, the Dominion must now depend on the United States.

The most frequent uniform encountered on the streets of a Canadian city today is the airplane blue of the flying cadets—the vast majority of them clean-cut young Canadians with better than high school educations who have been passed by medical inspectors as being as near physical perfection as possible for human beings.

In this process of mass production, a finished air fighter is turned out in from 26 to 32 weeks, depending on the job for which he is intended. After being rigidly selected, the cadet spends four weeks in an initial training school. During this time, he rarely leaves the ground.

He is taught the rudiments of military procedure, learns the mechanism of an airplane from ground models, and is constantly under the eye of experienced fliers and medical officers. At the end of this period, the candidates are divided into four groups—those who promise to become competent pilots, men with little promise of handling an airplane efficiently, but who are likely prospects as air gunners and air observers, and those who fail to make the grade in any direction.

Early Training.

Once sorted out, the prospective pilots are sent to an elementary training school, where they learn to handle a plane in the air. This requires eight weeks. The candidates then pass to the intermediate and advanced schools, where they are given practice with the types of fighting planes they will actually fly in service. Each course requires eight weeks.

At the end of this time, the pilot who has started, presumably, without the least knowledge of flying or the mechanism of an airplane—is supposed to be competent in all the maneuvers he ever may be called upon to make in actual combat. It was to be the intermediate and advanced schools that candidates were to be brought from overseas.

Stricter still are the requirements for air gunners and air observers who never will be called on actually to fly a plane. The gunner's course is longest of all—requiring 32 weeks. The observer can finish his course in 26 weeks. At the end of this training, the men are placed in a pool to await overseas orders. There are many Americans in these flying schools. They have crossed the border and enlisted at Canadian recruiting stations.

Besides the training personnel supplied by Canada itself, more than 200 officers of the Royal Air Force are now in Canada as instructors. The program is being speeded to the limit as it becomes apparent that a constant supply of trained air fighters is one of the vital requirements for winning the war.

CHURCH CONVENTION.

DALTON, Ga., June 27.—The annual convention of the Church of God of the Union Assembly will be held at the Church of God in Dalton, beginning next Thursday and continuing four days. Ministers and delegates from Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama, North and South Carolina and southern states will attend. Sessions will be held each morning, afternoon and night.

Drive To Boost Armed Forces Meets Success

Survey Shows Most Stations Have No Difficulty Filling Quotas.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

The nation's new recruiting drive, launched on June 1 by the army, navy and marine corps, is meeting a good response in most sections of the country. Here is a survey of the results to date:

New York—From June 1 to 18 a total of 967 men were accepted for the army indicating that the area has a good chance of reaching its quota of 2,570 for the month. Sixty per cent of the applicants to date have been rejected after failing to meet physical and mental tests.

Washington—Enlistments at the recruiting station in the national capital so far in June are the second highest reached in the last 16 months. Since the first of this month 41 regulars have been recruited and two reserves taken into the army.

Boston—Industrial activity caused by war orders has proved a stumbling block to the army's recruiting drive in the first corps area. Rhode Island was called on to enlist a total of 66 men and reached that mark June 15. Massachusetts has enlisted only 149 out of a quota of 408. Connecticut has only recruited 45 out of 156. Maine has enlisted 64 out of 78. New Hampshire 35 out of 44, and Vermont 27 out of 33.

Philadelphia—Recruiting is proceeding briskly for both the army and the navy in the Philadelphia area, with quotas being easily exceeded.

Atlanta—Colonel Daniel D. Tompkins, in charge of recruiting for Georgia and Florida, reports about 35 new men are being sworn in each day at the Atlanta office, with the figure occasionally climbing into the sixties. The 21 other offices in the fourth corps area under his supervision are showing equally gratifying results.

Cleveland, Ohio—Despite the rigid physical examinations and the stiff requirements as to qualifications, the local recruiting stations have had no difficulty in filling their enlistment quotas.

Detroit, Mich.—Recruiting officers here find no difficulty in filling quotas. The army recruiting office in the first half of June has accepted 178 recruits. Rejections for physical disability have been high. The navy recruiting office has been meeting monthly quotas at the rate of 125 a month for the last fiscal year. Marine recruiters report an average of 100 recruits a month.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Lieutenant Colonel Ford Richardson, of the army recruiting service, says he has experienced no difficulty in filling quotas required of him. Approximately 40 men a day seek to enlist, and within the last month 200 have been accepted.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Recruiting for the army, navy and marines has yielded three times the normal complement in the Kansas City district in the last ten months, but the total accepted of 2,088 men does not tell the entire story. Because of high physical standards, the navy and marines have been rejecting seven out of ten applicants. The army's ratio is even higher, because many men have applied who knew beforehand that they had no chance of acceptance in the navy or marine corps.

DALLAS, Tex.—Texans are so anxious to enlist in the armed services of the United States that the recruiting offices of the army, navy and marines corps here are finding it difficult to handle the rush. The navy station has enlisted 155 men and has signed up more than enough to attain its June quota of 200. The army recruiting station had enlisted 229 men so far in June and will have sent more than 400 men by the end of June. The marine corps, whose Dallas office covers all of Texas, has accepted 49 men since unlimited enlistment started on June 1.

OMAHA, Neb.—The seventh army corps area is 10 per cent ahead of its recruiting quota for June, according to Colonel K. B. Lemmon, corps area recruiting officer. With 647 men sworn in at the half-way mark of the month, the corps area has only a fraction less than 60 per cent of its quota of 1,086. The naval recruiting office here, which has a quota of 90 for the month, has already sent out 60 men.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Marine recruiting officials are having difficulty in filling their quota for June. Their quota, although earmarked "unlimited," is set at 250. Thus far they have enlisted only 18. Navy officials have already nearly enlisted their June quota of 150. Army recruiting officials say they are experiencing no trouble in reaching their quota of 219 men in June and has already accepted 141.

Eye Training Results Please School Officials

Mechanical Device Helps Students Increase Reading Rate.

H. Reid Hunter, assistant superintendent in charge of Atlanta high schools, disclosed yesterday that experiments which the department has been conducting quietly for more than a year to correct the faulty reading habits of school children had progressed so far by the use of a new mechanical invention that the results have been far greater than anticipated.

He said only one of the devices is now being used in the Atlanta system, but it will be circulated next semester in various schools so that a larger number of "retarded students" can profit by the apparatus, which can double, and in some cases triple, the rate of reading speed.

Retards Many. "Many students," he said, "who are retarded by what appears on the surface to be mental deficiency are merely poor readers and can, with proper training, be taught how to keep up with their classmates."

Although it is impossible now to determine what percentage of school failures are "merely poor readers," it is estimated by some authorities that further experiments with the device might easily "cut the mortality rate in half." The machine itself operates much like a player piano. A roll of paper is inserted in the magazine and, as it unravels steadily, groups of words appear across a window. As the subject learns to read these groups at a relatively slow rate of speed, the groups are increased to sentences and, later, the speed is made more rapid.

Officials Are Subjects. Two Atlanta school authorities—Dr. Harold H. Bixler and Dr. E. R. Enlow—were first used as subjects by Dr. W. W. Smith, of Atlanta. Although both men are said to be "unusually rapid readers," both showed signs of improvement after treatment by the device.

Dr. Hunter said the system was not contemplative immediate extension of correction work. "The machine we have operates out of O'Keefe Junior High school," he said. "We are attempting to acquaint teachers and parents with its use and, eventually, when it is widely recognized, we hope to install additional machines."

The average college graduate reads at the rate of 325 words per minute, an increase of 270 words per minute from his first grade days. College students also average about 10 regressions per 100 words and nearly 80 fixations.

Sharp SHOOTIN'

LAWSON LITTLE HAS A NEW ANSWER.

It was a bit confusing.
I had been out to the City Women's golf matches in the early morning or the middle of the night. It just depends on how you look at 9 a. m.

From there it was a hop, skip and a mashie to Capital City, where Miss Dorothy Kirby waited for the cake-cutting.

There were nine more holes, with a gentleman who borrowed Miss Kirby's carving set and used it with the same ruthless precision.
All in all, it was a pleasant day. Anyhow, the sun was shining.

Then there was a trip to the office.
Several papers were scattered around, also a golf magazine or two.

The first article was in Golfing.
"Trademark of a Champion" was the title. "The answer is confidence," wrote Harry Nash, "the confidence of the athlete, cognizant of his fitness and skill."

Then there was Earl Ruby's column in the Louisville Courier-Journal. Earl was quoting a pride of the Blue Grass on his idea "that Lady Luck plays one shot in every five for the average tournament golfer."

Which happens to be what Walter Hagen was getting at when he said:
"Hell, all I do is swing at the ball. Luck does the rest. When luck's with you, you can't lose. When it's against you, you might as well stay in the locker room."

That was all very interesting, but who wants to haunt a locker room?
Next came a long article on Lawson Little, who forsook a silver spoon for one which will manhandle that darn little golf ball.

W. J. McGoogan wrote the story in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Said Little, according to McGoogan:
"I have been accustomed all my life to a few cocktails be-

'Credit' Golfers Capture Prizes At Druid Hills

There were plenty of prizes running around loose at the third annual golf tournament of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men yesterday at Druid Hills.

Winners included:
Blind bogey: First, R. L. Clement and Morris Hendrix; second, Holcombe Green, Art Kern and G. M. Clements; low gross, Frank Anderson; most birdies, Sonny Coole; low net, John Partridge; high gross, Walter English; most pars, L. J. Pirkie; high net, C. S. Marlet.

A dinner party, attended by members of the association who do not play golf as well as the tournament players, was held in the clubhouse.
D. B. Alexander is president of the association and J. Tom Smith was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Caldwell Returns To Smokie Lineup

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 27.—(P)—After managing the Smokies from the bench for the last two seasons, Neil Caldwell will put himself back into the lineup at first base tomorrow night when the Smokies open a series at Memphis.

Caldwell said today Buck Stanton, first sacker, had a bruised hand and would be placed on the 10-day injured player suspended list.

The Smoky skipper has been working out daily with the team for two weeks and said he was in "good shape" for regular duty.

Belcher To Run In A. A. U. 440

FRESNO, Cal., June 27.—(P)—America's greatest track and field athletes, denied a chance to gain international glory because of war-wrecked Olympic games, stage a two-day domestic version of the games tomorrow and Saturday nights in the 52nd running of the national A. A. U. championships.

A staggering array of stars, nearly 300 from every section of the country, will compete in Fresno State College stadium. The track is ranked one of the fastest.

The 400-meter dash will bring together Lee Orr, of Washington State College, the new NCAA champion; Grover Klemmer, University of California freshman; Warren Breidenbach, of Michigan, and Charles Belcher, formerly of Georgia Tech, among others.

Lakewood Trials Scheduled Sunday

Time trials will be held Sunday afternoon for drivers who expect to enter the big automobile race program set for Lakewood park on July 4. Entrants who live farther from Atlanta than 50 miles may qualify the morning of the race, but others must roar around the big red oval for five miles Sunday to qualify.

The Fourth of July program, which will begin at 3 o'clock, will include four events between stock models and four between racing models. The feature event of the day will be the soiree between the three fastest stock cars and the three fastest racing cars.

Rumania Cedes 'Reds' 20,000 Square Miles

Two Provinces Have Population of More Than 4,000,000.

By the United Press.
Bessarabia and Pucovina, latest territorial acquisitions of Russia which were relinquished when Rumania agreed to terms of the Moscow ultimatum, contain more than 20,000 square miles and more than 4,000,000 persons. Here is statistical information about the two provinces:
Bessarabia:
Area—Approximately 17,150 square miles, third largest of Rumania's provinces lying along the Danube river boundary between Rumania and Russia, facing the Russian Ukraine.
Population—About 3,150,000, including somewhere near 1,000,000 Ukrainians and Russians, 80,000 Germans and several hundred thousand Jews. There also are Bulgars and Poles.
Type of land—Rich corn and wheat fields.

History—A province of Czarist Russia for more than 100 years, it became Rumanian in 1918 by a vote of the Bessarabian national council but Russia never has recognized the transfer and still regards it as legally her own. The change was formally recognized by Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan as part of the World War revisions in 1920.

Bucovina:
Area—About 4,000 square miles, a small province at the northern tip of Rumania jutting into Russian-held Poland just west of Bessarabia.

Population—About 917,000, according to a 1938 census. Approximately half of its people are Ukrainians and Jews form about 10 per cent of the population. There also are Greeks and Armenians.

Type of land—Like Bessarabia, chiefly agricultural.

History—A crown province of Austro-Hungary until the end of the World War when, in a post-war meeting of Rumanians at Craiova, its capital, union with Rumania was voted. The treaty of Saint Germaine ceded it formally to Rumania. Rumanian armed forces had occupied the province before that time, however.

Roosevelt Signs Emergency Bill For Army, Navy

$1,768,913,000 Provided for Forces; Defense Parley Is Held.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(P)—President Roosevelt today signed a $1,768,913,000 bill for emergency army and navy needs, conferred with members of his cabinet on his plan for western hemisphere economic solidarity, and went over progress of the advisory defense commission's work.

Little news was forthcoming from either of the cabinet or defense commission conferences.

On leaving the White House Secretary Wallace said that there was still considerable work to be done on the hemisphere defense plan. He declined to predict when it would be completed.

Others in this conference who were even less communicative were Secretaries Morgenthau, Hull and Hopkins.

When the defense commission members left the White House William S. Knudsen, member in charge of production, said that he expected a decision within a week from the Packard Motor Company as to whether it would undertake manufacture of engines for America's fighting planes.

Lehman Favors Universal Training

NEW YORK, June 27.—(P)—If Britain is "decisively" defeated, "we will have no more choice between peace or war than did Norway or Belgium or Holland," Governor Herbert Lehman declared today.

The only reason we have been safe in the past has been because we always have had the protection of the great fleet of a friendly sister democracy—Great Britain," he said in a speech prepared for a luncheon of the Military Training Camps Association.

"Obviously, we must do everything possible to protect ourselves. I do not believe that we can secure the required number of men for our armies except through selective universal military training.

"Even in times of peace I have long favored universal military training. In this emergency I consider it absolutely essential to our defense."

Oswald Mosley Tried in Secrecy

LONDON, June 27.—(P)—Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, was tried secretly in chancery court today.

Imprisoned under wartime laws in Brixton jail since May 23, Mosley appeared under escort of guards in a closed car.

RUSSIA MOVES WEST—Here is how Russia, in four steps, has moved west: (1) Partitioning of Poland, (2) Conquest of sections of Finland, (3) Occupation of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, and (4) Ceding yesterday by Rumania of Bessarabia and Bucovina. Meanwhile, Rumania prepared to stop any Hungarian move to take Transylvania. Bulgaria openly covets another Rumanian section—Dobruja.

Allen Explains Japan To Alter New Federal Her Position Defense Tax On East Indies

Levy on Tobacco, Movies, Whisky, Beer Effective July 1.

Details of the new federal taxes on cigarettes, theater tickets, whisky and beer yesterday were explained for the benefit of wholesalers, retailers and movie exhibitors by Marion H. Allen, collector of internal revenue for Georgia.

The revenue act for 1940, designed to raise funds for national defense increases taxes on the articles effective July 1.

Taxes Floor Stocks.
The tobacco tax, raising the impost half a cent on a standard package of 20 cigarettes, has the effect of placing a floor stock tax on all cigarettes in the hands of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, even down to a single package, Allen said.

He cautioned all dealers to inventory their stock by midnight June 30 and preserve an accurate record of the amount of cigarettes on hand. Tax on the goods will be determined by the taxpayer and must be paid not later than August 1. Blank forms for the return will be given out on request by his office, he stated.

Wine Not Covered.
Inventory must be taken of liquor stocks by the same date, Allen reported, adding that forms for filing floor tax returns will not be available until after July 1. Wine is not covered by the new measure.

Federal taxes are now chargeable to theater tickets costing more than 20 cents, Allen continued. Every theater or person required to collect the tax on admissions must file a return and pay the tax to Allen's office on or before the last day of the month following the month in which the tax was collected.

Advance Units Of Nazis Reach Spanish Border

German Commander Assures Passage of Americans From France.

IRUN, Spain, at the French Border, June 27.—(P)—German advance guards arrived at the Spanish-French border today.

Howard Bucknell, counselor of the American embassy in Madrid, immediately got in touch with the German commander to insure the passage into Spain of the last Americans awaiting repatriation.

Spanish and German authorities exchanged salutes.

The first Germans to reach the border were 20 soldiers of the radio propaganda section of the German army force, traveling in a radio-equipped truck. Colonel Von Brunn, military attaché of the German embassy at Madrid, received the soldiers, who said they had left Paris Tuesday, passing through without difficulties.

The commander of the German detachment told Bucknell there would be no objections to Americans crossing the border. Accordingly 34 Americans with 11 non-American dependents moved over the frontier. Bucknell said he expected 60 or 70 more to cross later today.

Germans Raid British Coast; Hanover Is Hit

Royal Air Force Makes Daylight Attack on Nazis.

LONDON, June 28 (Friday)—(P)—High flying German bombers, making their nightly foray against England, dropped bombs along the southeast coast early today. The thud of the explosives could be heard at a distance.

The bombers came singly, spaced at almost regular intervals.

British defense planes were in the air by the time the first raiders reached the coast. Some of the raiders were reported driven back to sea without crossing the coastline.

Meanwhile, British planes bombed oil tanks at Hanover yesterday, started fires and killed and wounded several persons, DNB, official German news agency, reported today.

(One of the two bombers, which dived from clouds to make the attack, reached the tanks but was shot down, DNB said.)

The air ministry announced last night that the Royal Air Force yesterday bombed German occupied airdromes at Waalhaven, near Rotterdam in Holland, and at Bonn, near Cologne, and Dortmund, east of Essen, Germany.

Further daylight raids were made today over Germany. Oil refineries at Milsburg, near Hanover, at Bremen, and a factory near Salzgitter were attacked, the ministry said.

With the landing of a crew of a German Heinkel bombers on the English east coast today, the ministry added, it was confirmed that three Nazi bombers were destroyed in overnight attacks on Britain.

A fourth was seriously damaged, it was said.

In the home defense, neutral military observers declared that Britain's effort to put together a trained force of a million men to meet invasion was going forward satisfactorily.

This is the plan:
A first-line defensive force of 500,000, well-trained and reasonably well equipped.

A citizen-army of 500,000 for the second line.

A national reserve of local defense volunteers, organized only to combat parachute troops.

Minton Picked as Senator by State Conclave; F. D. R. 'Indorsed.'

INDIANAPOLIS, June 27.—(P)—Indiana Democrats, whooping it up in a noisy and wide open state convention, today picked Lieutenant Governor Henry F. Schriener as their standard bearer for governor and renominated United States Senator Sherman Minton, strong New Dealer, without opposition.

They approved, though indirectly, a third term for President Roosevelt while cheering their own candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, who keynoted the convention with a "keep out of war" speech.

The third-term indorsement came in an eleven-hour resolution offered by National Committeeman Frank M. McHale, head of the McNutt-for-President campaign. The resolution reaffirmed confidence in the "statesmanship, patriotism and fidelity to the ideals of democracy of the distinguished former Governor (McNutt) of this state" and indorsed his (McNutt's) position "in advocating the renomination of President Roosevelt."

U.S. Never Favored Bessarabian Split

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(P)—Historically, Russia's territorial claim against Rumania has a measure of moral support from the United States.

This government never took any official action recognizing Rumania's acquisition of Bessarabia, which she seized after the World War. For years government maps still showed Bessarabia as a part of Russia, though occupied by Rumania. Since 1931, however, the maps have shown it as Bessarabia within Rumania.

The reason for this, officials explained, was that the United States took a stand against carving up a World War Ally—as Russia was—without the consent of that country.

Hracek, Tumlin Reach Finals

Mealist Wins Over Vines, 5-4, In Semi-Finals

Finals in City Tourney Tee Off at 9 O'Clock at Druid Hills.

Mrs. Horacek, the medalist, and Mrs. D. Tumlin, will meet today in the finals of the annual city golf tournament over the Druid Hills course. Starting time in the championship match will be 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Horacek reached the finals yesterday with a 5-and-4 victory over Mrs. C. Vines and Mrs. Tumlin advanced with a 2-up decision over Mrs. J. O. Rhine.

Mrs. Horacek, who shot a 39 on the first round, turned in a 40 yesterday to hold a 7-up lead. Mrs. Tumlin and Mrs. Rhine were all square after 46 on the first nine and Mrs. Tumlin won in a battle of stymies on the back side.

Following the championship match, members of the Druid Hills Club and their guests will compete in the regular ladies' day tournament.

At 1 o'clock there will be a mixed foursome for which all entries in the city tournament will be eligible. Mrs. H. S. Rawlings and Mrs. S. W. Swinney will be the first flight, followed by Mrs. C. Elsas, 5-4, and Mrs. Bailey, who defeated Miss Jean Fraser, 3, in the semi-finals yesterday.

In the flight Miss Llewellyn Wilburn and Mrs. S. W. Swinney will be the first flight, followed by Mrs. C. Elsas, 5-4, and Mrs. Bailey, who defeated Miss Jean Fraser, 3, in the semi-finals yesterday.

Dixie Steel Trips Postmen, Wins First Half Title

The Dixie Steel team clinched the first-half title in the Atlanta Commercial League when they downed the Post Office club, 8 to 5, in a rain-out tilt played yesterday on Genn field.

Though the Post Office 13 to 12, the Steelmen made better use of their blows to win, with Pat Patterson leading the assault with four trips, Hurler Leonard Mayo had a two-bagger and one-bagger in three trips.

Lee Webb doubled two singles, a double and triple for the losers. Munday had three for four, including a double, and Jake Gardner spanked two singles in three trips up. Mayo fanned seven Post Office batters.

Duke, Mississippi Golfers Win Again

MANCHESTER, Vt., June 27.—(AP)—Half of the eight quarter-finalists in the National Collegiate Amateur golf championship were won by the Dixie Steel team yesterday.

The Dixie Steel team won the first round of the championship yesterday, defeating the Post Office club, 8 to 5, in a rain-out tilt played yesterday on Genn field.

The survivors are Bill Clark, of Dartmouth; Eddie Foy, the Holy Cross football player; Bill Cordingley, of Harvard; Harry Haverstick, of Swarthmore; Cary Middlecott, of Mississippi; Stewart (Skip) Alexander, of Duke; F. Dixon Brooke, of Virginia; and Bill Hall, of Iowa State.

Rogers Wins Doctors' Meet at Capital City

Dr. Harry Rogers hit the bogey with a 74 in the doctors' tournament at Capital City yesterday.

Dr. J. L. Pittman and Major Fowler tied at 75. Dr. John Duncan had a 73.

Sharp SHOOTIN' by AL SHARP

LAWSON LITTLE HAS A NEW ANSWER.

It was a bit confusing. I had been out to the City Women's golf matches in the early morning or the middle of the night. It just depends on how you look at it.

From there it was a hop, skip and a mashie to Capital City, where Miss Dorothy Kirby waited for the cake-cutting.

This large cake walked in and came out in eight different pieces, each slice representing a point in the margin of victory.

Then there were nine more holes, with a gentleman who borrowed Kirby's carving set and used it with the same ruthless precision.

All in all, it was a pleasant day. Anyhow, the sun was shining.

Then there was a trip to the office.

Several papers were scattered around, also a golf magazine or two.

The first article was in Golfing. "Trademark of a Champion" was the title.

"The answer is confidence," wrote Harry Nash. "The confidence of the athlete, cognizant of his fitness and skill."

That didn't help much.

Then there was Earl Ruby's column in the Louisville Courier-Journal. Earl was quoting a pride of the Blue Grass on his idea "that Lady Luck plays one shot in every five for the average tournament golfer."

Which happens to be what Walter Hagen was getting at when he said:

"Hell, all I do is swing at the ball. Luck does the rest. When luck's with you, you can't lose. When it's against you, you might as well stay in the locker room."

That was all very interesting, but who wants to haunt a locker room?

Next came a long article on Lawson Little, who forsook a silver spoon for one which will manhandle that darn little golf ball.

W. J. McGoogan wrote the story in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Said Little, according to McGoogan:

"I have been accustomed all my life to a few cocktails be-

'Credit' Golfers Capture Prizes At Druid Hills

Winners included: Blind bogey: First, R. L. Clement and Morris Hendrix; second, Holcombe Green, Art Kern and G. M. Clements; low gross, Frank Anderson; most birdies, Sonny Coolidge; low net, John Partridge; high gross, Walter English; most pars, L. J. Pickle; high net, C. S. Marlet.

A dinner party, attended by members of the association who do not play golf as well as the tournament players, was held in the clubhouse.

D. B. Alexander is president of the association and J. Tom Smith was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Rae, Hogg, Fuller Hit Blind Bogey

Three of 60 bogey-hunters hit the right number in the contest at East Lake yesterday. They were O. O. Rae, R. H. Hogg and W. A. Fuller, who registered 80's.

Other prize winners included: 78—A. R. Moore, S. M. Haw, B. E. Sale, A. N. Patton, Travis Johnson, L. W. Hill, W. T. Etzel, Dr. H. E. Merritt; 77—W. L. Markert, A. Buck, R. C. Munsell, W. T. Banning, P. D. McCrory, J. W. Simmons, S. P. Murray, J. B. Hutson, George Suggs and E. D. Key.

GAME WANTED.

The strong National Biscuit nine, first-half pennant winners in the Atlanta Scott circuit, is seeking to play some team within a radius of 75 miles of Atlanta on July 4.

Anyone interested in call Lewis Quinn, team manager, at Calhoun 3907.

TIGERS WIN.

The East Point Tigers defeated the East Point Pirates by a 6-to-5 count yesterday. Jackson of the Tigers was the leading hitter with four hits in five trips. Stewart, hurled for the winners and Peace for the losers.

DELAND, Fla., June 27.—(AP)—The baseball season hasn't reached the halfway mark, but they're already practicing football at Stetson University here.

Eleven members of the football squad who are attending summer school are being drilled by Carl (Doc) Johnson, director of men's activities, in the absence of Coach Brady Cowell and Ben Clements.

Rumania Cedes 'Reds' 20,000 Square Miles

Two Provinces Have Population of More Than 4,000,000.

By the United Press.
Bessarabia and Pucovina, latest territorial acquisitions of Russia which were relinquished when Rumania agreed to terms of the Moscow ultimatum, contain more than 20,000 square miles and more than 4,000,000 persons. Here is statistical information about the two provinces:

Bessarabia:
Area—Approximately 17,150 square miles, third largest of Rumania's provinces lying along the Dniester river boundary between Rumania and Russia, facing the Russian Ukraine.

Population—About 3,150,000, including somewhere near 1,000,000 Ukrainians and Russians, 80,000 Germans and several hundred thousand Jews. There also are Bulgars and Poles.

Type of land—Rich corn and wheat fields.

History—A province of Czarist Russia for more than 100 years, it became Rumanian in 1918 by a vote of the Bessarabian national council but Russia never has recognized the transfer and still regards it as legally her own. The change was formally recognized by Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan as part of the World War revisions in 1920.

Bucovina:
Area—About 4,000 square miles, a small province at the northern tip of Rumania jutting into Russian-held Poland just west of Bessarabia.

Population—About 917,000, according to a 1938 census. Approximately half of its people are Ukrainians and Jews from about 10 per cent of the population. There also are Greeks and Armenians.

Type of land—Like Bessarabia, chiefly agricultural.

History—A crown province of Austro-Hungary until the end of the World War when, in a post-war meeting of Rumanians at Cernowitz, its capital, union with Rumania was voted. The treaty of Saint Germaine ceded it formally to Rumania. Rumanian armed forces had occupied the province before that time, however.

Roosevelt Signs Emergency Bill For Army, Navy

$1,768,913,000 Provided For Forces; Defense Parley Is Held.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed a $1,768,913,000 bill for emergency army and navy needs, conferred with members of his cabinet on his plan for western hemisphere economic solidarity, and went over progress of the advisory defense commission's work.

Little news was forthcoming from either of the cabinet or defense commission conferences.

On leaving the White House Secretary Wallace said that there was still considerable work to be done on the hemisphere defense plan. He declined to predict when it would be completed.

Others in this conference who were even less communicative were Secretaries Morgenthau, Hull and Hopkins.

When the defense commission members left the White House William S. Knudsen, member in charge of production, said that he expected a decision within a week from the Packard Motor Company as to whether it would undertake manufacture of engines for America's fighting planes.

Lehman Favors Universal Training

NEW YORK, June 27.—(AP)—If Britain is "decisively" defeated, "we will have no more choice between peace or war than did Norway or Belgium or Holland," Governor Herbert Lehman declared today.

The only reason we have been safe in the past has been because we always have had the protection of the great fleet of a friendly sister democracy—Great Britain," he said in a speech prepared for a luncheon of the Military Training Camps Association.

"Obviously, we must do everything possible to protect ourselves. I do not believe that we can secure the required number of men for our armies except through selective universal military training."

"Even in times of peace I have long favored universal military training. In this emergency I consider it an absolutely essential to our defense."

Oswald Mosley Tried in Secrecy

LONDON, June 27.—(AP)—Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, was tried secretly in chambers today.

Imprisoned under wartime laws in Brixton jail since May 23, Mosley appeared under escort of guards in a closed car.

U. S. Planes To Start Central American Tour

PANAMA, June 27.—(AP)—An unspecified number of United States army planes will take off from dawn tomorrow on a trip to Central American capitals. They are to return July 2.

Official sources said it was "routine training."

RUSSIA MOVES WEST—Here is how Russia, in four steps, has moved west: (1) Partitioning of Poland, (2) Conquest of sections of Finland, (3) Occupation of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, and (4) Ceding yesterday by Rumania of Bessarabia and Bucovina. Meanwhile, Rumania prepared to stop any Hungarian move to take Transylvania. Bulgaria openly covets another Rumanian section—Dobruja.

Allen Explains Japan To Alter New Federal Her Position Defense Tax On East Indies

Levy on Tobacco, Movies, Whisky, Beer Effective July 1.

Details of the new federal taxes on cigarettes, theater tickets, whisky and beer yesterday were explained for the benefit of wholesalers, retailers and movie exhibitors by Marion H. Allen, collector of internal revenue for Georgia.

The revenue act for 1940, designed to raise funds for national defense increases taxes on the articles effective July 1.

Taxes Floor Stocks.
The tobacco tax, raising the impost half a cent on a standard package of 20 cigarettes, has the effect of placing a floor stock tax on all cigarettes in the hands of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, even down to a single package, Allen said.

He cautioned all dealers to inventory their stock by midnight June 30 and preserve an accurate record of the amount of cigarettes on hand. Tax on the goods will be determined by the taxpayer and must be paid not later than August 1. Blank forms for the return will be given out on request by his office, he stated.

Wine Not Covered.
Inventory must be taken of liquor stocks by the same date, Allen reported, adding that forms for filing floor tax returns will not be available until after July 1. Wine is not covered by the new measure.

Federal taxes are now chargeable to theater tickets costing more than 20 cents, Allen continued. Every theater or person required to collect the tax on admissions must file a return and pay the tax to the collector on or before the last day of the month following the month in which the tax was collected.

Advance Units Of Nazis Reach Spanish Border

German Commander Assures Passage of Americans From France.

BRUN, Spain, at the French Border, June 27.—(AP)—German advance guards arrived at the Spanish-French border today.

Howard Bucknell, counselor of the American embassy in Madrid, immediately got in touch with the German commander to insure the passage into Spain of the last Americans awaiting repatriation. Spanish and German authorities exchanged salutes.

The first Germans to reach the border were 20 soldiers of the radio propaganda section of the German air force, traveling in a radio-equipped truck. Colonel Von Bruns, military attaché of the German embassy at Madrid, received the soldiers, who said they had left Paris Tuesday, passing through without difficulties.

The commander of the German detachment told Bucknell there would be no objections to Americans crossing the border. Accordingly 34 Americans with 11 non-American dependents moved over the frontier. Bucknell said he expected 60 or 70 more to cross later today.

The radio troops, actually soldier-reporters, said the main German forces still were some 250 miles from the border, north of Bordeaux. They said the Germans had delayed occupying Bordeaux, probably until tomorrow, to permit the French government to move to Clermont-Ferrand, in south central France, or back to Paris.

The afternoon newspaper Tribuna carried a dispatch from Madrid stating that it was "understood in Madrid that the disarmament of French troops has already begun and is proceeding rapidly."

The commercial news agency Agence Economica e Finanziaria said Italian officials were studying means of re-establishing trade relations with France.

Two Bandits Get $50 In Liquor Store Holdup
Two white bandits last night held up the G. Thomas Liquor store, at 711 West Peachtree street, escaping with $50 in cash, Francis Thomas, clerk, reported to police.

Thomas said one of the men, armed with a .45 automatic, entered the store while another remained outside on guard.

Royal Air Force Makes Daylight Attack on Nazis.

LONDON, June 28 (Friday)—(AP)—High flying German bombers, making their nightly foray against England, dropped bombs along the southeast coast early today. The thud of the explosives could be heard at a distance.

The bombers came singly, spaced at almost regular intervals.

British defense planes were in the air by the time the first raiders reached the coast. Some of the raiders were reported driven back to sea without crossing the coastline.

Meanwhile, British planes bombed oil tanks at Hanover yesterday, started fire and killed and wounded several persons, DNB, official German news agency, reported today.

(One of the two bombers, which dived from clouds to make the attack, reached the tanks but was shot down, DNB said.)

The air ministry announced last night that the Royal Air Force yesterday bombed German occupied airfields at Waalhaven, near Rotterdam in Holland, and at Bonn, near Cologne, and Dortmund, east of Essen, Germany.

Further daylight raids were made today over Germany. Oil refineries at Misburg, near Hanover, at Bremen, and a factory near Salzgitter were attacked, the ministry said.

With the landing of a crew of a German Heinkel bombers on the English east coast today, the ministry added, it was confirmed that three Nazi bombers were destroyed in overnight attacks on Britain. A fourth was seriously damaged, it was said.

In the home defense, neutral military observers declared that Britain's effort to put together a trained force of a million men to meet invasion was going forward satisfactorily.

This is the plan:
A first-line defensive force of 500,000, well-trained and reasonably well equipped.
A citizen-army of 500,000 for the second line.

A final reserve of local defense volunteers, organized only to combat parachute troops.

Minton Picked as Senator by State Conclave; F. D. R. 'Indorsed.'

INDIANAPOLIS, June 27.—(AP)—Indiana Democrats, whooping it up in a noisy and wide open state convention, today picked Lieutenant Governor Henry F. Schriener as their standard bearer for governor and renominated United States Senator Sherman Minton, strong New Dealer, without opposition.

They approved, though indirectly, a third term for President Roosevelt while cheering their own candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, who keynoted the convention with a "keep out of war" speech.

The third-term endorsement came in an eleventh-hour resolution offered by National Committeeman Frank M. McHale, head of the McNutt-for-President campaign. The resolution reaffirmed confidence in the "statesmanship, patriotism and fidelity to the ideals of democracy of the distinguished former Governor (McNutt) of this state" and endorsed his (McNutt's) position "in advocating the renomination of President Roosevelt."

Italians Attack British Bases In Egypt, Malta

Warship and Aerial Bombardments Claimed in Communique.

ROME, June 27.—(UP)—Italian warships bombarded the British base at Sollum, Egypt, with "considerable effectiveness," and Italian aerial bombardment of Malta, in the Mediterranean, is being pushed relentlessly, the 16th Italian war communique said today.

In Cairo the British middle east command admitted that Malta was bombed five times in the 24-hour period ending at 6 o'clock Wednesday. Italian planes killing 23 civilians and wounding many others while inflicting slight property damage.

Cairo also admitted that a British frontier post on the British Somaliland-Ethiopian frontier had been captured by an Italian force which included tanks after a four-hour attack forced the British to withdraw.

The communique also said there had been "contact" between Italian and British naval units off Salina in the Lipari islands, but no details were given.

The afternoon newspaper Tribuna carried a dispatch from Madrid stating that it was "understood in Madrid that the disarmament of French troops has already begun and is proceeding rapidly."

The commercial news agency Agence Economica e Finanziaria said Italian officials were studying means of re-establishing trade relations with France.

Belgian Government Negotiating — Germans
BERLIN, June 27.—(AP)—The German radio said tonight the beginning of German-Belgian governmental discussions had been announced by Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot.

Speaking from Bordeaux to his countrymen, Pierlot—whose government insisted upon fighting on after King Leopold had ordered a surrender—declared, according to the German report:

"In carrying out the unanimous order of the Belgian nation we (the government) went to France to continue the war on the side of our Allies. The fate of arms turned against us.

"We have established contact with the (German) occupation authorities and with the authorities that remained in Belgium."

Gasoline Saving Device Sought In DeKalb Suit

10 Million Dollars Asked by Motor Power, Inc.

The fantastic story of how a Florida inventor built a gasoline-saving device which, during the past 13 years, grew to be the object of a $10,000,000 damage suit was told yesterday in DeKalb county superior court. The inventor, Charles J. Weeks, of Jacksonville, was not present to hear the legal bickering over possession of the device, because in 1927 he sold his rights to George L. Pratt, Atlanta research engineer, who is now defendant in the suit.

Pratt was on the stand yesterday when the court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning. He was being examined by Judge Edgar Watkins, counsel for and a stockholder in Motor Power, Inc., which filed the suit May 31 in an effort to recover the invention, a model of which is on Pratt's personal automobile.

During the day Pratt filed an answer to the suit, in which he charged that the corporation owed him $12,000 for his services as technical adviser and $100,000 as payment for two improvements to the Weeks invention which Pratt made and assigned to the company, which he helped organize in 1934.

It was upon this question of possession that the trial was based. Judge Watkins told the court, presided over by Judge James C. Davis, that the corporation "wanted to know if Pratt's possession of the invention was a colossal fraud" or whether the stockholders really had a valuable device. Pratt contends he has not completed his development of the machine and demanded payment of what he alleges is due him.

Uses Exhaust Gas.
The invention, along with Pratt's two improvements, is said to double the miles-per-gallon efficiency of automobile and airplane engines. It employs exhaust gases by separating them and returning them to the carburetor, where they are remixed with fresh fuel.

It received widespread attention when the suit was first filed, when Motor Power company officials disclosed they had "showed plans of the apparatus to German government agents." The opinion was advanced that the invention was being used by Nazis as a fuel conservator on tanks, armored trucks and airplanes.

As court adjourned, a settlement was indicated when Judge Watkins asked Pratt if he would object to turning the device over to the corporation for marketing "if the court would set a figure" to be paid him for his work and improvements.

Pratt said he could see no objection to giving the improvements, along with the original invention, to the corporation if the board of directors paid him for his services and work. He asked for time to consider what actually was due him, and there the trial rested.

Alonzo McGahee, Salesman, Dies

Alonzo W. McGahee, 81, retired traveling salesman, died yesterday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. R. B. Burrows, at 844 Parkway drive.

Other survivors include a grandson, Hugh Holcombe. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill with Dr. Lester Rumble officiating. Burial will be in Hogshead.

Hitler Triumphant Day Reported Set

LONDON, June 27.—(P)—Reuters (British News Agency) quoted a Zurich, Switzerland, dispatch from a correspondent in Berlin tonight as saying:

"Adolf Hitler is planning a triumphal entry into Berlin on August 1—after victory over Britain."

Italians Use Tanks In Attack on British

CAIRO, June 27.—(P)—A "strong detachment" of Italian troops, reinforced by tanks, has attacked and occupied one of the British frontier outposts on the border between Ethiopia and British Somaliland, the British military announced today.

A statement said the attack was repulsed for four hours by the small garrison consisting of a police force under a British officer. Then the garrison withdrew intact. There were said to have been no British casualties.

The statement said there was nothing to report on the Libyan front.

Famous Bridge Engineer, Ralph Modjeski, 79, Dies

LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(P)—Ralph Modjeski, 79, famous as a bridge engineer, died yesterday.

Modjeski was born in Krakow, Poland, the son of Madame Helena Modjeska, famed tragedienne. He became naturalized in 1883 under the name of Modjeski, the masculine form of his mother's stage name.

Canal Defense Believed Topic Of Army Men

Speculation Aroused When Officer Admits Guns Were Moved.

QUARRY HEIGHTS, C. Z., June 27.—(UP)—Defense of the Panama canal was believed to have been discussed today at a meeting of United States army officers representing the commands of all units in the Panama canal department.

The meeting was said by army leaders to be purely routine and was described as an "orientation conference" for the benefit of recently arrived high-ranking officers.

However, following the admission of Brigadier General Jacob L. Devers that "live mine" fields have been laid at both entrances to the canal and that heavy railroad guns which guard the vital waterway have been moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic side, the conference aroused speculation regarding its full purpose.

Department headquarters admitted that construction had been started of an underground command post to house the headquarters communications center, but insisted that the project was part of a routine building program planned months ago. Any other interpretation of the reasons for the underground post, army officers said, would be an "exaggeration and a distortion."

The army also sought to dispel any possible alarm over reports that the canal's 25,000 soldiers had been placed on a virtual "war footing." Although the men were on an "alert" basis, it was said, they were only being given "routine practice."

British May Seek Union of Ireland

DUBLIN, June 28.—(Friday)—(P)—A statement in the Eire (Ireland) senate by Vice Premier Sean O'Malley that the question of the Eire-Union border is again under consideration has given rise to rumors that Britain may be seeking union of North and South Ireland for defense.

O'Malley told the senate Wednesday that it would not be "advisable" to say more "at this time," but reliable sources disclosed today that secret meetings have been held along the border.

Officials declined to discuss the nature of the meetings, but it was learned from an informed source that Prime Minister de Valera has refused an offer of the six Northern Ireland counties if the cost amounted to involving Ireland in the European war.

83 Million War Budget Asked for New Zealand

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, June 27.—(P)—A budget calling for the expenditure of 37,500,000 pounds (about $83,250,000) for war purposes during the 1940-41 fiscal year and providing increased income taxes was presented to the house of representatives today by Prime Minister Walter Nash.

The budget levied an income tax of 12 1-2 per cent per pound for the first 100 pounds of taxable income instead of 1 per cent, the present rate. It will increase to 60 per cent of each pound for incomes above 3,800 pounds (about $11,500).

NYA Students Operate Five, Ten Beauty Shop

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. CARROLLTON, Ga., June 27.—Included in the practical training program of 70 National Youth Administration students at West Georgia College is a beauty shop that affords a shampoo, set and wave for the hair for a nickel—if the patron is willing to let nature dry her tresses.

Otherwise, says Miss Fletcher Pitchford, chief operator, it's a dime. Manicures are available for a dime, too. Of course, it's by and for the students.

Uruguay Minister Quits In Row Over Nazis

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 27.—(UP)—Interior Minister Manuel Tiscornia resigned today after the powerful Colorado party, to which he belongs, withdrew its support of him because of his attitude toward the recent congressional investigation of Nazi activities.

Undersecretary of Interior Nelson Garcia Serrato quit on Tuesday, also as a result of the probe. Garcia was said to have been in disagreement with press and radio sections of the subservient activities of law which was promulgated last week by President Alfredo Baldorino to curb "un-Uruguayan" activities.

Nine Per Cent Increase In New Orders Reported

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(P)—The Commerce Department reported tonight a nine per cent increase in new orders booked by representative manufacturing concerns in May.

Undersecretary Edward J. Noble said that the gain in orders, over April, was most pronounced in durable goods, particularly iron and steel.

At the same time, manufacturers reported a three per cent increase in the volume of unfilled orders on hand, and a slight decrease in inventories.

Party Heads Express Faith in Chamberlain

LONDON, June 27.—(P)—"Complete confidence" in former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain as party leader was reaffirmed today by the executive committee of the national conservative party. The committee expressed "warm appreciation" of Chamberlain's service to the country, countering opposition demands that the champion of appeasement be ousted entirely from the cabinet.

The committee also pledged support to the Churchill government in their determination to prosecute the war to a victorious conclusion.

Although Chamberlain was replaced as prime minister by Churchill May 10 he remained leader of the dominant conservative party.

Party Heads Express Faith in Chamberlain

LONDON, June 27.—(P)—"Complete confidence" in former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain as party leader was reaffirmed today by the executive committee of the national conservative party. The committee expressed "warm appreciation" of Chamberlain's service to the country, countering opposition demands that the champion of appeasement be ousted entirely from the cabinet.

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 28, 1940.

For Summer Thirst

Summer's large thirsts are quenched only by large, cool drinks. Here are some to make at home or to take on picnics and other outings.

GINGER ALE NECTAR: 12 oranges, 6 lemons, 1 cup canned pineapple juice, 1-2 cup maraschino cherries, sugar to taste, approximately 1 1/2 to 2 cups; 2 quarts ginger ale.

Squeeze the oranges and four of the lemons, slicing the other two. Add pineapple juice. Cut a few strips of the orange and lemon rinds, add 1 pint water and with the sugar boil five minutes. Cool this syrup. Combine syrup with fruit juices and add chilled ginger ale. Serve over cracked ice. Sixteen servings.

MILK SHAKES: Vanilla: To one cup milk add two teaspoons sugar and one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Shake well and serve. A whole egg, or just the white, may be added, if desired.

Orange: Substitute one-fourth teaspoon orange extract, or two tablespoons fresh orange juice for the vanilla in above.

Coffee: Add two tablespoons of strong coffee.

Chocolate: Add three-fourths cup of milk and two tablespoons chopped ice to two tablespoons chocolate syrup. Shake well and serve.

Chocolate Syrup: Add one cup of boiling water to two ounces of chocolate. Stir thoroughly and add one cup sugar. Boil three minutes. When thoroughly blended, cool and add three teaspoons vanilla.

Any of these milk shakes (particularly if served with straw) will get the finicky youngster to take lots of milk during hot weather. Enough syrup for several drinks may be prepared and stored in a covered jar in the refrigerator.

For another nourishing beverage, pour freshly made hot cocoa or chocolate over one-half glass of cracked ice. Add one tablespoon whipped cream and serve. A grating of nutmeg may top the cream.

A luscious, easy-to-make pie is this with a crumb shell and no top crust. Raspberries are the filling.

Raspberry Cream Pie With Crumb Shell

A raspberry cream pie, astonishingly easy to make, is suggested for topping off a summer dinner. Make it this way:

Blend 1 1/3 cups sweetened condensed milk (1 can) and 1/4 cup lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Fold in 1 cup fresh or frozen raspberries. Pour into a crumb pie shell, cover with 2 whipped cream, sweetened with 2 tablespoons confectioner's sugar. Chill well before serving.

Crumb Shell

One cup fine corn flake or rice cereal crumbs.
One-third cup butter.
One-fourth cup sugar.
Melt butter, add sugar and crumbs. Mix thoroughly, then press mixture evenly and firmly around sides and in bottom of pie plate. About 10 minutes in a 350-degree oven will "set" this crust well. Then chill it before adding filling.

Allow 25 to 30 minutes to the pound for a roast leg of lamb; 20 to 30 minutes for broiled chicken; 1 to 1 1/2 hours for roasting a chicken that weighs between 3 and 4 pounds. Rare roast beef requires only 8 to 10 minutes per pound.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Extra food values and flavor may be added to dry prunes by cooking them with lemon juice, and one or two slices of lemon, one stick of cinnamon and honey for sweetening. Prunes soaked overnight usually cook tender very quickly over rapid heat. Sliced orange and orange juice may be added during cooking, with no extra sweetening. If sugar is desired, use sparingly and add it last.

Moist and nourishing on the picnic lunch are sandwiches of banana bread, in which one cup of bran is combined with 1 1/2 cups sifted flour. These are delicious merely with butter, or they may be spread with cream cheese.

Cut marshmallows, dates, raisins, figs, watercress, chives, pimiento and parsley with wet scissors.

Measure syrup, honey or molasses in cup or spoons which have been rinsed in cold water or coated with shortening.

Tomato-Cheese Salad
This tomato and cheese salad is a particularly happy luncheon or dinner choice since it may be made in advance. With the gelatin base, the salad is improved by storing in the refrigerator for a day. Try it in one of the decorative aluminum molds.

One package gelatin, one cup boiling water, one cup tomato puree (a soup or juice may be used that is not too highly seasoned), one tablespoon finely chopped onion, two tablespoons finely chopped parsley, one package (three ounces) cream cheese, four tablespoons top milk.

Dissolve gelatin aspic in boiling water. Add tomato puree, chopped onion and parsley. Chill in refrigerator. When partially set, fold in cream cheese which has been blended with the top milk. Pour into individual molds which also have been chilled, or use one medium-sized mold. Chill until ready to serve. Serve on a bed of crisp watercress or lettuce hearts, and serve with mayonnaise or French dressing.

Beef Pot Roast.
For six people, buy a 4-5 pound beef pot roast (rump or boned and rolled chuck), put in a deep pan, just cover it with cold water to which 1 tablespoon of salt has been added, and let come quickly to a boil. Then simmer gently for 3 hours, or until the water has almost evaporated and the meat becomes browned. Turn it several times in the browning process.

This browning of the meat in its own juices at the end of the cooking period rather than at the beginning gives the pot roast a delicious flavor.

To cook with dumplings, remove the meat and keep it warm. Add enough water to the stock to make 2 1/2 cups. Drop the dumplings in, cover the pan closely and boil for 10 minutes.

Apricot Ice Cream.
Wash a dozen ripe, fresh apricots, cut in half, remove the pits

It's Time To Plan Picnics

In view of the fact that hundreds of thousands of the world's people have lost their independence since we last celebrated ours, the Fourth of July, 1940, should have a profound significance for all Americans. This year we'll pack our picnic baskets and nose the family car out onto the highway with more appreciation of American and the American way of life than we've ever had before. Our mountains will look higher and more rugged, the sand on the beaches whiter, the lemonade and watermelon will be sweeter, the fried chicken more tender and crisp.

Traditionally, America celebrates her Independence Day out of doors and with picnics, and all Americans, young and old, love a picnic or barbecue. Even the most fastidious will agree to take part in the battle against ants and mosquitoes in order to have the fun of eating in some chosen outdoor place. Some love to cook at the picnic spot, while others prefer to do the cooking at home where cooking facilities are modern. There's something to be said for both opinions, and the best way to solve the problem is to take a vote in the family.

If you choose to cook the whole meal outdoors the Boy Scout in your family can give you good advice. A meal-in-one called "Scout chowder" is a masterpiece for combining food value, economy and ease of preparation.

Picnic goulash is an excellent choice for simple outdoor eating. This one can be made at home, poured into a vacuum jug and confidently carried along with sandwiches, fruit or melon and drink for a filling, fine feast at noon-time.

Picnic Goulash.
1 pound beef, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 pound veal, cut in 1-inch cubes
1-4 cup flour
1 tablespoon salt
Pepper
2 tablespoons fat
2 1-4 cups tomatoes (1 No. 2 can)
2 cups hot water
12 small white onions

2 cups lima beans
1 1-3 cups canned whole kernel corn
1 teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons cold water
Roll meat in the flour combined with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Heat the fat in a kettle, add meat and cook until browned. Add tomatoes, water and remaining 2 teaspoons salt; cover and cook until the meat is almost tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Add onions and lima beans and cook for about 30 minutes, or until onions and beans are done, then add corn. Mix 3 additional tablespoons of flour and the paprika with cold water; add a small amount of the hot liquid and mix until smooth. Stir into the hot mixture, simmer for a few minutes, pour into a vacuum jug, and cork tightly. Serves 8.

Potato salad is on the "must" list for the picnic bill of fare if there are many hearty appetites to appease. This salad combines, in delectable fashion, potato salad with that perennial favorite, the frankfurter.

Frankfurter Potato Salad.
2 cups cooked potatoes, diced
1 small onion, chopped fine
1-4 cup green pepper, chopped fine

1-2 cup cucumber, diced
8 or 10 frankfurters, cooked and diced
1-3 cup chili sauce
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Salt and pepper to taste
2-3 cup salad dressing

Combine all ingredients except mustard, chili sauce and salad dressing; combine these three in a separate dish and blend well before adding the salad mixture. Chill salad well before serving. Serves 6.

No picnic would seem complete unless there were deviled eggs on the bill of fare. Make 12 deviled eggs this way:

Deviled Eggs.
For tender hard-cooked eggs, without discoloration over the yolk, place eggs in pan, preferably on a rack and cover with cold water. Bring water very slowly to simmering and cook at simmering stage, (never let them actually boil) 20 to 25 minutes. Plunge into cold water to chill promptly. Keep in refrigerator until ready to use.
2 tablespoons cream or mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 1-2 teaspoons mustard
1 1-2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3-4 teaspoon salt

1-4 teaspoon pepper
Cut hard cooked eggs in half. Remove yolks and mash or put through sieve. Add seasonings and beat until very smooth and fluffy. Refill shells. Garnish tops with chopped chives, parsley, paprika or caviar.
A little deviled ham, anchovies or sardines may be added to the yolks, if desired.

Plenty of cooling, thirst-quenching drink is indispensable to a successful picnic. Spiced iced tea, lemonade, iced coffee, gingerale, grape juice or other fruit juices may be your choice. There are only two rules to remember about picnic beverages: No. 1. Be sure to have enough, as picnickers are notoriously thirsty; and No. 2. Don't make drinks too sweet, since these do not quench thirst as well as do drinks that are only slightly or moderately sweetened.

No matter what else you have your family will expect a cake or some luscious cookies to pop out of the picnic basket at dessert-time. Fruit filled cookies, fruit pies and cake with not too soft icing go well on picnics.

Women have no monopoly on the art of cooking. Boy Scouts can do right well in the kitchen, even though the kitchen is an improvised one out-of-doors. Billy Wallace is cooking eggs on a hot rock while Larry Dean makes biscuits, which are to be baked in a tin oven. To cook the eggs, Billy puts a thick piece of bread, center scooped out to hold an egg, on the flat rock, beneath which a fire is built. He breaks an egg on the bread slice, and presto, there is a baked egg on toast!

Crude bread-making equipment is being used by Larry, but he turned out surprisingly good biscuits. A tin can serves as biscuit cutter. This is proof, if proof be needed, that Boy Scouts can feed themselves if and when it is necessary. These boys were photographed at Bert Adams Scout camp.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Society Punch.

Submitted by Mrs. S. E. Norton,
Rt. 3, Conyers, Ga.

Boil together 3 cups sugar and 4 cups water for 5 minutes. Chill, and mix with 4 cups pineapple juice, juice of 8 oranges and 4 cups ice water. Slice 4 oranges thin without removing rind, add 2 cups crushed or grated pineapple and 1-2 cup maraschino cherries. Pour over block of ice in punch bowl. Serves 25 persons.

Bread and Butter Pickles.

Submitted by Miss Blanche Phillips,
89 Twelfth Street, N. E., Atlanta.

Slice 9 cups unpeeled cucumbers and 2 cups sliced onions. Sprinkle with salt and allow to drain 1 hour. Boil 2 cups vinegar, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 3 cups sugar, 2 teaspoons turmeric, 1 3-inch stick cinnamon, 4 green peppers sliced or chopped. Cook all together for 20 minutes. Put in sterilized jars and seal. Ready to use in one week.

French Dressing Variations

French dressing is popular for its simplicity and tart adherence to true salad character. But even a delicious dressing feels the need of change occasionally, and so various additions to French dressing have their place in every recipe file.

A pleasant version of this universally liked dressing, for service with a single fruit or a medley of fruit flavors, uses two-thirds cup of French dressing as the foundation. To this is added one-third cup of cottage cheese and one-third cup finely chopped or sliced ripe olives. You may use the ready-prepared or sliced ripe olives, and blend cheese and olives well. The resulting dressing is especially appropriate for service with pineapple, grapefruit and orange sections, or with sliced tomatoes. The addition of ripe olives, minced to unusual fineness, and mild onion or chives in similarly fine texture is another simple source of extra flavor for the piquant blend of seasoning oil and vinegar or lemon juice.

3 teaspoons salt 1 cup prepared mustard

Cut corn from cob, peel onions, remove seeds from pepper. Put cabbage, onions and pepper through food chopper. Add salt, sugar and vinegar and cook for 30 minutes. Remove from fire, add mustard, mixing thoroughly and return to stove. Bring to boiling point, put in sterilized jars or cans and seal. Makes 10 pints.

Ice Cream.

Submitted by Mrs. R. W. Spencer,
204 Barry Street,
Decatur, Ga.

1 cup sugar
1-2 cup boiling water
3 eggs
1 pint cream
Beat eggs separately, then fold together. Cook sugar and water until it threads; pour on eggs and beat until cool. Chill. Whip cream, add egg mixture, flavoring as desired, and freeze. Do not stir while freezing.

Plum Sauce.

Submitted by Mrs. Homer Fortson, Carlton, Ga.

1 gallon plums
7 cups sugar
1 1-2 cups vinegar
3 cups water

Wash and stem plums. Place in large saucepan with the water and boil until seeds come to top, about 1-2 hour. Skim seeds off or leave them in as desired. Add sugar and vinegar and cook until thick, about 1 1/2 hours. Seal in jars while hot. Delicious with meats or vegetables.

Readers Requested These Recipes

Our readers have written in asking that we print a recipe for chocolate chiffon pie and directions for making French pastry. In the mail comes a request from Mrs. C., Athens, Ga., for the recipe for chocolate chiffon pie and one from an Atlanta reader for French pastry. We are pleased to print these two recipes.

French Pastry.

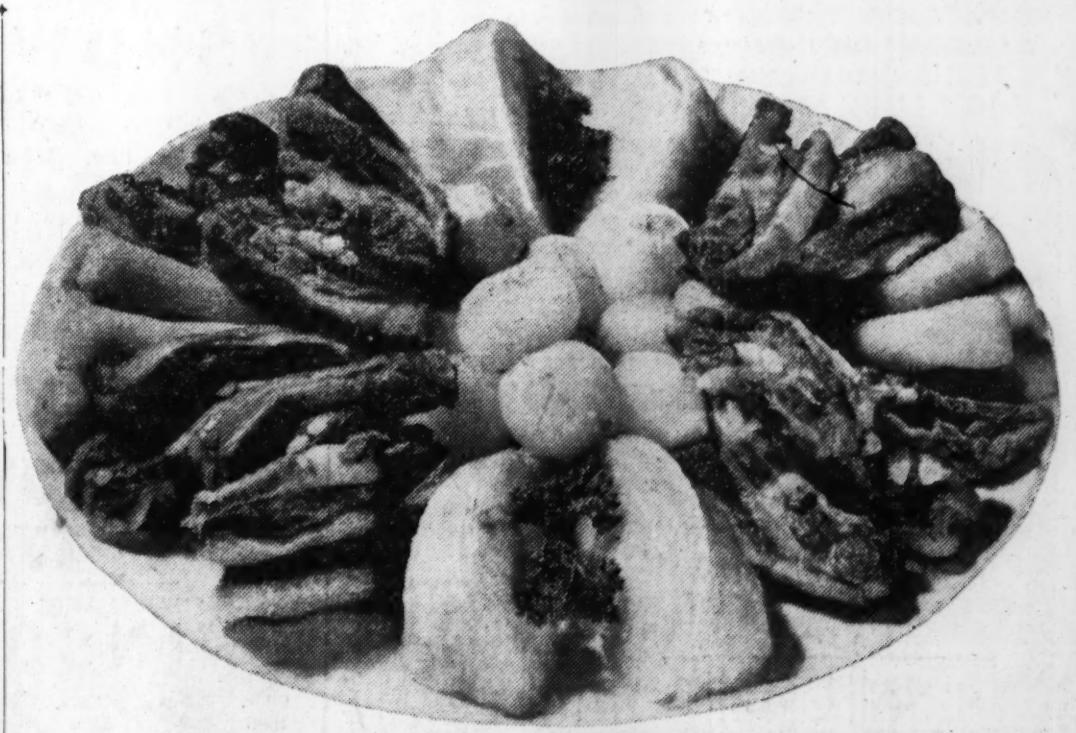

11-2 cupfuls flour
1-4 teaspoonful salt
1 cupful butter or margarine
Yolk of 1 egg
Ice-cold water

Divide the butter into three equal portions, put these between the folds of a cloth and press until thin and about five inches square. Put aside in the refrigerator until needed. Sift flour and salt, beat egg yolk, and make a paste of this with the flour and about one-fourth cupful of ice-cold water. Knead for several minutes on floured board, and let stand for 5 minutes. Roll out in a strip about 10 inches long and 5 wide with sides straight. Now take one portion of the butter and place on the half of the dough nearest you. Enclose the butter in the dough and press down on all sides. Turn the dough halfway over and roll out as before and put in the second portion of butter as the first. Repeat with the third and set the pastry aside to chill. When the pastry is cold, place again on the board and turn halfway over as before and roll out into a long strip with even edges. Fold over three times like a piece of paper, turn the pastry halfway over and roll out again. Roll out the pastry in this manner at least eight times. Bake until delicately brown in an oven with temperature rising, beginning at about 375 degrees and rising to about 425 degrees.

Chocolate Chiffon Pie.

1 1-4 cups milk
2 egg yolks
3 egg whites or 1 cup whipped cream
2-3 cup sugar
2 squares of chocolate
Dash of salt

Soak gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold milk for about 5 minutes. Scald the remaining cup of milk in a saucepan over low heat or in a double boiler. Beat egg yolks and gradually add sugar and salt. Add hot milk to egg yolk mixture. Return to heat and stir until slightly thickened. Add the chocolate and gelatin and stir until the gelatin is dissolved, and the chocolate, which should be chopped, is melted. Pour into a bowl and chill over ice cubes or cold water. Mix thoroughly and fold in the egg whites, beaten until stiff and dry, or the cup of whipped cream. When mixture will hold its shape, pour into pie shell or cracker crumb shell and place in refrigerator to stiffen. Serve with whipped cream, or cover with whipped cream, as desired.

Lamb riblets with vegetables make fine eating.

More Leaders Enrolled for C.M.T.C. Camp

Professional Men Will Take Training for 30-Day Period.

A city manager, a soft drink bottler, a salesman and a druggist were added to a wide assortment of Georgia business and professional men who have been accepted for enrollment in a specialized military training camp opening at Fort McPherson July 8, Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday.

These men, used to giving orders, will take orders from army sergeants for 30 days in a school designed to train 300 business and professional leaders from the southeast in national defense. So far applications have been received from Georgia, North Carolina, Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana.

To date successful Georgia applicants are H. M. Renner, city manager of Cedartown; Horace Alan Dale, chief clerk of the CCC's film section, Atlanta; William W. Few, of Gainesville, hotel operator; Harvey M. Smith Jr., Atlanta interior decorator; Herbert P. Haley, Albany soft drink bottling company executive; Douglas W. Clark, of Athens, aviation salesman; Fred O. Barrow, of Rockmart, drugstore owner.

The training camp at Fort McPherson will be under the direction of Brigadier General Robert O. Van Horn, who directed the first camp of this nature in Plattsburg, N. Y., in 1916. A well balanced program of military training and recreational activities for the duration of 30 days will be offered and the schedule will include every phase of work given to regular CMTC trainees.

Men at Convention Spend $21.65 Daily

The importance of visitor trade to Atlanta was emphasized yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield and Faber Bollinger, at a monthly luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau. Bollinger, executive vice president of the bureau, reported on a recent survey made of one convention to determine what financial benefits accrued to Atlanta business firms.

He said the survey revealed that the average amount which each of the delegates spent per day for this one meeting was $21.65, of which a big share went to business other than hotels and restaurants.

Patriotism Draws Men to Marines

The gratifying number of young men enlisting in the Marines is inspired by patriotism rather than economic reasons, according to Sergeant Carl Naman, who interviews many applicants a day at room 612 Ten Forsyth Street building.

The sergeant pointed out yesterday that, while recruiting officers are primarily concerned with the candidates' physical condition, education and moral background, "more and more applicants are revealing a devotion to their country that is by no means inspired by questioning on our part."

That is true, the sergeant said, in spite of the fact that peacetime enlistment is carried on without fanfare or the stimulus of a grave national emergency.

Dog Preferred Naval Reserve Over Car By Daylight Thief

'Toughy,' Newly Installed as Machine's Guardian, Is Missing.

"This," gloated W. B. Poe, of 278 Twelfth street, "will fix 'em. Anybody that tries to 'glom,' or abstract, this car while I'm gone will have plenty of troubles for his pains."

He looked with confidence at the large black-and-white bulldog, weighing 25 pounds, ensconced comfortably on the front seat, rolled down one window of the automobile slightly to give the guardian plenty of air against the hot afternoon sun—and strolled off, whistling blithely.

An hour later—about 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon—he returned to where he'd parked the machine on Ivy street below the 100 block.

The car remained. But a glass had been smashed, and the watchdog was gone. Poe told police later the dog's license number was 141.

His name was "Toughy."

Headquarters at Naval Armory, With Lieutenant Griffin in Charge.

Atlanta naval reserve officers will open recruiting headquarters at 9 o'clock this morning in the Naval Armory on Third street as part of the national drive to enlist 5,000 men in the naval reserve. The office will be in charge of Lieutenant G. C. Griffin, U. S. N. R.

Successful candidates, Griffin said, may be issued appointments as reserve midshipmen and assigned to a 90-day course with pay leading to a reserve ensign commission.

Candidates must be willing to request initial active training on a naval ship without pay, though he will be furnished transportation, food and clothing. First cruise, Griffin added, is scheduled to leave New York July 16.

Opening Date Of N. Fulton Park Set July 4

Senator George Tentatively Accepts Invitation To Speak.

North Fulton park on Powers Ferry road will be officially opened July 4 with a celebration sponsored by the North Fulton County Civic Club.

Senator Walter F. George has tentatively accepted an invitation to speak, and an exhibition golf match has been arranged featuring Charlie Yates, Harold Sargent, Gene Dahlbender Jr. and Gene Gaillard.

Ceremonies will begin at 10 o'clock that morning with band music and a parade, followed by the featured speaker. Picnic lunch will be served at noon. The afternoon's events include more band music, a burlesque show by the Boots and Saddles Club, and amateur sports contest in the center

SINGING CONVENTION.

86 Per Cent Of Cases End In Convictions In July, August To Start on 2d

DeKalb Superior Court Record Is Cited in Audit.

A conviction record unexcelled in the state was indicated yesterday in statistics released by the solicitor general's office of the DeKalb county superior court division which disclosed that of the 393 felony charges handled during the past 14 terms, 86 per cent have resulted in verdicts of guilty.

Only 11 acquittals—representing 3 per cent of the total—have been rendered in three and one-half years after the returning of 147 indictments to which the defendants did not enter a plea of guilty.

These figures, compiled by Assistant Solicitor David H. Ansley, also reveal that the trial of 42 indictments are still pending but, according to Ansley, many of these will never reach court because the defendants already are serving long prison terms in other sections of the country.

DeKalb county is a part of the Stone Mountain circuit and members of that circuit expressed the opinion that the division's record is "equal to or better than any other county in the state."

Of the felony charges handled directly by the office, headed by Solicitor Roy Leathers, 335 have ended in sentences. Of this number, 246 were arrived at through pleas of guilty and 89 were sentenced after trials in superior court.

64 Transferred.

In completing the court calendar audit, Ansley said the solicitor's office in DeKalb county also transferred 64 cases to other courts. Of the true bills heard in court only five—or not quite 1 per cent—ended in mistrials.

Grand juries from March, 1937, through June of this year have returned 46 no bills and it was this which, Ansley said, is the reason for the high conviction average.

"If we don't believe we have enough evidence to convict a man," he said, "or there is reasonable doubt as to his guilt, we recommend to the grand jurors that they not bill the indictment."

Pleas Lower Cost.

Thus, Ansley pointed out, only those cases which have substantial evidence accumulated against them ever reach court. Where doubt exists, or evidence is meagre, the case is either nolle prossed or an indictment is never sought.

"Also," Ansley said, "our average is helped by the large number of guilty pleas we receive, all of which greatly reduces court operation expenses."

The office handled little better than 28 cases per grand jury term. This does not include the large amount of investigation work and the transfer of cases beyond the court's jurisdiction.

Death of 30 Ducks Is Probed at Park

An investigation into the cause of death of approximately 30 ducks at Piedmont park lake during the past several weeks was begun yesterday by city park and health officials.

George I. Simons, parks manager, said food tossed into the lake by visitors may be the cause. He pointed out that it already has been determined that the swimming pool which is separate from the lake where the ducks lived, has not been affected.

State Letter Carriers

To Meet in Fitzgerald

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. FITZGERALD, Ga., June 27.—City and village letter carriers of Georgia and their auxiliary will hold their thirty-seventh annual convention here July 3 and 4.

The initial business session will be held at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of July 3, followed by a banquet at 8 o'clock that night, at which Ren Sparks, trustee of the Letter Carriers' Mutual Benefit Association, will be the principal speaker.

Edward J. Gairnor, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, and George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at the morning session on July 4, and a motion picture, made at the golden jubilee convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers in Milwaukee last year, will be shown.

A barbecue will be held in Legion park at 1:15 o'clock, with the final business session and election of officers immediately afterwards.

H. B. Edwards Opposed For State Senate Post

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 27.—(AP) H. B. Edwards has opposition, Will H. Stanford, in his campaign for the state senate. Both have served Lowndes county several years in the Georgia house of representatives.

Stanford announced his candidacy yesterday for the sixth district senatorial post from Berrien, Cook, Echols, Lanier and Lowndes counties. It is Lowndes' turn to furnish the district's senator.

Edwards has announced that, if elected, he will be a candidate for president of the senate.

Announcement!

1100 MURPHY AVENUE • ATLANTA • GEORGIA
June 26, 1940.

To Our Friends and Customers:

Last Friday, June 21st, we had the misfortune to experience a fire, which, with its accompanying tons of water, left in its wake a tremendous damage. This tragedy, so devastating, was for the moment very disheartening for it meant a full in the progress of our organization. In the very light of the flaming fire last Friday, we made plans for setting up temporary offices. Plans were made then also for calling upon the VAST RESOURCES of The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company so that we could continue the supply of merchandise to our stores without interruption.

Monday, of this week, the Insurance Company took over the entire contents of the fire and water damaged Warehouse. All merchandise is now THEIR PROPERTY and not one item will enter the doors of our Piggly Wiggly Stores. NOW, even though under temporary headquarters, we wish to thank our many friends and business associates who came to our aid at this trying time. Particularly do we wish to express our appreciation to the Atlanta Fire Department, and to the Atlanta Police Department.

So we are OPEN FOR BUSINESS AS USUAL at all Piggly Wiggly Stores. Furthermore, this unfortunate happening will only add momentum to our ambitions for providing the BEST IN STORES and the BEST IN MERCHANDISE to our customers.

Sincerely,
Branch Manager

THE NATION'S LEADING BROTHERS

TAKE TIME OUT—Aspirants for the title of "Miss Atlanta 1940" disported themselves yesterday at Lakewood Park, where the contest to select the city's most beautiful girl will be held July 4. The picture was taken as the girls took time off from filing contest applications. More than 25 girls have already entered the contest.

Gen. Mitchell Long Ago Told Of Blitzkrieg

Officer Court-Martialed in 1925 for Criticizing Air Service

By MERWIN H. BROWNE

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—"If a nation ambitious for universal conquest gets off to a 'flying' start in a war of the future, it may be able to control the whole world more easily than a nation has controlled a continent in the past."

Omnious enough when made over 15 years ago, this prediction

by Brigadier General William B.

Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army air corps and commander of America's World War air force, seems doubly so today in the light of sweeping Nazi victories in Europe and the fact that many of the Mitchell charges, resulting in his being literally driven from the

Warnings Ignored.

General Mitchell spent the period from the Armistice to his death in 1936 trying to get the government to reorganize its air forces.

He announced flatly that sea-power must make way for air power; that navies were obsolete;

that bombing planes could sink any battleship afloat. Neither armies nor navies could exist in war time unless the air is controlled above them, he said. He foresaw the use of parachute troops and the tremendous driving force of an attacking tank corps.

His pleas fell on deaf ears. His efforts were belittled and he was demoted.

September 5, 1925, the navy's airship Shenandoah buckled and crashed in Ohio and two days later the navy seaplane PN-9 was believed lost at sea on a flight to Hawaii.

Eighty-eight hours later, "Billy"

Mitchell, already noted as a stormy petrel, gave a stinging interview blasting both the navy and War

Departments as incompetent, charging them with criminal negligence, with treasonable administration of national defense, and declaring that high officials were guilty of ignorance, suppression of the truth and giving out misleading information.

Coolidge Upheld Sentence.

The general was court-martialed

in 1925. His biographical sketch in "Who's Who in America" declares:

"On account of criticism of War and Navy Departments for alleged mismanagement of aviation service, was tried by court-martial and sentenced to suspension from service for five years and forfeiture of all pay and allowances; sentence upheld by President Coolidge, but modified by allowance of half pay. Resigned, 1926."

Bathing Nifties Rounded Up After Stampede

Beauties Disport at Lakewood, Giving Vergil
Meigs a Headache.

Anybody who sees a good-looking girl in a bathing suit wandering around in the vicinity of Lakewood Park will please report same to Vergil Meigs, secretary of the Southeastern Fair Association and major-domo of the Fourth of July festivities at which Miss Atlanta of 1940 will be selected.

Meigs is conducting a roundup, following a stampede yesterday afternoon at which a bevy of beauties, supposed to report for the formalities of entering the contest, wandered away from the fair office and began disporting themselves upon the midway.

Meigs at a late hour yesterday afternoon was snatching them off the greyhound, yoo-hooing into the old mill, and chasing them out of the bowling alley to have their measurements taken.

Welfare Head Convicted After Hospital Epidemic

KANKAKEE, Ill., June 27.—(AP)
Circuit Judge James V. Bartley
today convicted A. L. Bowen, state welfare director, of palpable omission of duty for failing to provide safe drinking water at the Manteno State hospital, where 63 persons died of typhoid fever

last summer.

The case was decided on evidence presented last winter before a jury which could not agree on a verdict. The 70-year-old welfare director, who said he would ask for a new trial, faces a maximum fine of $10,000 and dismissal from the state service.

Ask Penalty Delay In Annenberg Case

CHICAGO, June 27.—(AP)—Attorney Weymouth Kirkland announced today he would attempt to have the sentencing of M. L.
Annenberg, wealthy publisher who has pleaded guilty to a charge of evading $1,217,286 in income taxes, deferred until next week.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson is prepared to pass sentence at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

Kirkland, Annenberg's chief counsel, conferred with the judge and United States District Attorney William J. Campbell briefly today before making his announcement. The attorney said he would plead tomorrow morning that other legal business made it difficult for him to appear at the time set.

Exercises Taken Leisurely and Correctly Assure You of a Trim, Supple Figure

By Ida Jean Kain.

Don't make such hard work of exercise! Take it easy. You know now that exercise isn't actually reducing . . . in fact, the fat it burns up isn't enough to notice. But you don't exercise for a trimmer figure, you exercise for a trimmer one!

Start your calisthenics in a leisurely manner, lying on the floor. This position is efficient and relaxing, because no muscles have to be kept in tonic contraction to hold some segments stable, and the different parts can be free to move easily.

Test it yourself. Try bringing the knee up to the chest in the standing position. Now try it lying flat on your back. Taking this type of exercise from the lying down position not only cuts down the physiological cost of exercise, but it is actually more effective. You can pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles, pressing the small of the back to the floor, and thus exercise the important abdominal muscles while resting your back!

Make the same comparison of leg circling exercises while standing.

ing, then lying on the side on the floor, circling the leg from the hips. It is much easier to make wide circles from the prone position, and it's grand hip-slimming exercise.

All exercises taken in the lying down position eliminates strain from the legs and feet and that is quite important if you are very heavy. Furthermore it goes away with the effort of holding yourself erect.

This lying down position is most effective for strengthening the abdominal muscles and flattening the midsection; for slimming the hips and firming the thighs. Good arm and shoulder and chest exercises can be taken by circling the arms overhead on the floor. Waistline exercises are the only ones which are more effective from the standing or kneeling position, for then you can bend, twist and turn more easily.

The purpose of exercise is mainly to tone the muscles, increase one's feeling of fitness and to give one a supple, trimmer figure. Easy exercises in which each movement is exact, are infinitely more streamlining than a set in which you huff and puff and wind up exhausted.

If you need to reduce weight, as well as slim your measurements, better send post haste for the Summer Slimming Menu, enclosing a stamped return envelope to Miss Kain, in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Lie face down on floor, hands beneath chest. Using arms, slowly raise upper part of body, pushing torso as far back as possible, head thrown far back. This exercise stretches arms, front part of body, is good for the chin line.

Typhoid Fever Is On Its Way Out

By Dr. William Brady.

Last year 34 cities in the United States had no deaths from typhoid fever—among these cities on the honor roll were Akron, Bridgeport, Duluth, Elizabeth, Evansville, Flint, Fort Wayne, Hartford, Jersey City, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Springfield, Ulica, Wichita, Worcester. Everyday health resorts!

About 50 of the largest cities in the country, while not on the honor roll, nevertheless managed to achieve first rank in the typhoid poll, by having less than two deaths per hundred thousand population in the course of the year. In the first rank in this respect were Indianapolis, Peoria, Houston, Miami, Des Moines, New Haven, Birmingham, Newark, Louisville, Rochester, Buffalo, Los Angeles, Portland, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Grand Rapids, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington, Seattle, Jacksonville, Omaha, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Dallas, Tulsa, Kansas City, Scranton, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Providence, Richmond.

Some cities, whose names need not be mentioned, had more than two deaths per hundred thousand population in 1939.

Fourteen cities have had no deaths from typhoid in two years. Bridgeport leads the country, having had no deaths from typhoid fever in six years. Fort Wayne has had none in five years, Ulica and South Bend none in four years. New Bedford, Fall River, Lynn and Milwaukee have had none in three years. Lowell, Cambridge, Elizabeth, Kansas City, Kan., and Salt Lake City have had none in two years.

What a happy contrast this record is with the conditions that prevailed 30 or 40 years ago. In my early years of practice each municipality of some 5,000 population expected at least half a dozen cases of typhoid every autumn.

Typhoid is on the way out. It is an old fashioned disease. The credit for this great gain in public health belongs mainly to better sanitation, improved water supply, chlorination of water supply and more efficient control of outbreaks and carriers by the vigilance of the public health authorities and the intelligent cooperation of practicing physicians everywhere.

Unselfishness Is Demanded In Marriage

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: The letter you published from a Smothered Husband struck a responsive cord in my heart. Because I have had a disillusioning experience in marriage. I read your column daily and find comfort and enjoyment in it. I, like the Smothered Husband, repulsed my wife's advances and lost her. Tell your undemonstrative men that if they do not appreciate their wives' affectionate natures their wives will find men who do.

I thought marriage for a man meant bringing home the bacon, and that well done everything would be in the groove. It didn't occur to me to make love to my wife. That phase was over and I argued that money making rather than love making was then in order. She saw it differently and after a few years of impatience on my part and tears on her part she met an old friend, confided in him and divorced me to marry him. She divorced me on grounds of mental cruelty.

I believe it is generally true that a man doesn't realize he must make concessions to the feminine desire to be courted continually. He expects his wife to take him as he is, whatever he is. He loves her or he would not have married her. She would not have married him. Then why is this not enough? This is our line of reasoning.

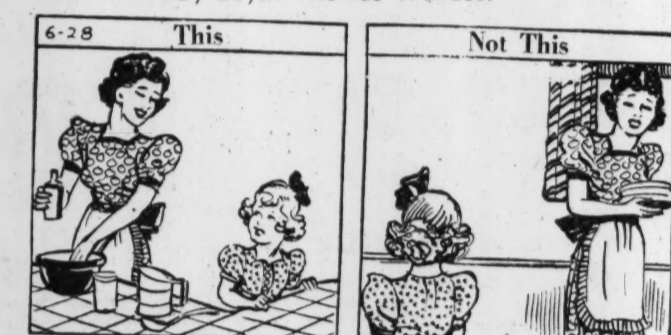

Answer: The new crop of young people taking school and college courses in love and marriage are going to know all the answers. But the older sets still have to struggle along learning by experience, trial and error. This new crop is learning all the slants on masculine and feminine psychology. They are being taught how to adjust one to the other. They are being warned the wives can't take it unless husbands remain courteous and the husbands can't take it unless the wives continue to tell them how wonderful they are.

Not that there's anything new in the new schools for matrimony aspirants. Some thousands of years ago a scholarly teacher said that anybody wishing to save his life had to lose it in unselfish thought and act for the other fellow. If there is any relationship in life that demands unselfishness, it is marriage and the man who makes no effort to understand his wife's thoughts and feelings and the wife who is so taken up with her own attitudes and desires that she doesn't try to understand her husband's mind usually end up disappointed, disillusioned and probably divorced.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I cannot promise you for sure that we will go on a picnic. We will have to wait a while and see."

Daughter: "You promised we could have a picnic and now you say we can't. That's the same as telling something that isn't true."

It is wise to avoid making definite promises to children.

Priced Like Toilet Water, But Has Strength of Perfume

By Lillian Mae.

Feminine, feminine, all is feminine! So goes today's fashions. Flowers on hats, dresses, shoulders. And with the return to the demure, perfumes have returned to the light, feminine, floral types.

I've told you before—perhaps two years ago—about a fragrance which is neither straight perfume, nor yet toilet water. It is the product of a firm which is my earlier memory in connection with perfumes. Now all their lovely odors may be had in this concentrated form which is neither perfume nor toilet water, though a good-sized bottle sells for only one dollar. So you see, you can use it lavishly and have the same results as if you were using the more costly perfume. And the odor lingers as does that of perfume.

The latest scent in which this has been brought out is that of wistaria—the flower that is so loved for the beauty of the pastel colors it embodies and for the delightful qualities of its fragrance. The very lifelike quality of the blossom has been captured and encased in this light, yet lasting, toilettine form.

For a limited time, there is with the bottle a silk tube atomizer at no extra cost. I love to spray the fragrance into my hair—for that's my favorite way of wearing perfume—and over my entire body after a bath or when I feel hot and sticky.

Don't mind if I rave a bit lavishly about this new bottle, for I am very much "smitten" with it. It's something that men find most alluring, for it emphasizes a woman's femininity, quality of naturalness and individual personality, with its light aura of teasing fragrance.

Phone me for the name of the lovely item and purchase yours while you may obtain the atomizer free. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THESE WOMEN! By d'Alessio

"But I didn't say I could sail a boat . . . I just said 'LET me sail the boat!'"

Paint This Set Of Pictures On Glass

Lovely as a French print is "Sunflowers and Zinnias." A thrill to realize you can paint it yourself in lovely flower colors on glass—in its actual size, 9 by 12 inches.

You simply lay a piece of glass over a printed pattern and paint over its shaded parts, which are plainly visible through the glass. And by this same method you can paint over other subjects, too.

In the flower picture the zinnias are bright red and red-purple, the sunflowers are a brilliant yellow with brown centers. For the leaves use shades of green and, for the bowl, delft blue.

Using only three inexpensive tubes of oil paint—red, blue and yellow—you can mix any color. To make red-purple, for instance, you add a little blue to red. For lighter tones, you add white house-hold enamel, for darker tones, black household enamel.

To give a lovely background to your painting, slip a piece of metallic paper behind the glass when the paint is dry. Then frame your picture, painted side in, and hang it in a place of honor in your home!

Other just as lovely designs—romantic scenes of Old World and New, landscapes and seascapes—are given in our set, "Six Pictures To Paint on Glass." These designs, each 9 by 12 inches, include "Treasure Ships at Sea," "Skyscrapers," "Poplars by the River," "Fishing Village," "Sunflowers and Zinnias," and "Old Windmill." Simple directions show how to mix and apply colors, give colors for each design.

Send 15 cents in coins for our set of SIX PICTURES TO PAINT ON GLASS to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of picture set.

Woman's Quiz

Q. How soon, and in what form may meat and fish be given to a young child?

A. Since meat and fish supply valuable proteins, minerals, and vitamins, a child may be given small servings of finely minced, tender beef, chicken, lamb or liver, boiled, broiled or roasted, at the beginning of his second year. He may have such food at least three times a week. By the time he is 18 months old he may have meat or fish every day. As the child's ability to chew increases, he may be given larger pieces, but they must always be tender. Veal, ham, or pork, properly cooked, may be given to children over four. Once or twice a week steamed, baked, or boiled fresh fish may be substituted for meat. Care must always be taken to get rid of the bones, and it is important that the fish should be perfectly fresh. Bacon may be served at breakfast or dinner during the second year and afterwards. It should be sliced very thin and cooked until crisp, but not dark brown nor hard. Rich gravies, fried meats or fried fish should not be given to a child. The only gravy should be meat juice without fat.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington Service Bureau, 1015 15th Street, Washington, D. C. for a reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Joan Blondell Takes Small Part To Help Her Sister

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 27.—"Why did Joan Blondell appear in that awful play?" I ask the lady's husband, Dick Powell, on the set of "The New Yorkers" at Paramount. I saw the play, "Goodbye to Love," at Santa Barbara, and it was pretty weak stuff with enough naughtiness crowded into three acts to petrify the entire Hays office. Joan's part is small. She appears for about 10 seconds only in the second act. And she's supposed to be the star!

"She did it to give her sister Gloria an opportunity to show Hollywood that she can act," Dick tells me. "Joan knew it was mediocre play. So did I, even though I did put up some money for it. You see," continues Dick, "Gloria has been in Hollywood quite a while, but they won't give her a chance in pictures. Warner's had her under contract for six months, but didn't use her. The part in the play was tailor-made for her. And already she's received some film offers as a result."

"The Nazis are everywhere in South America—particularly in Chile," the speaker is Lew Ayres, who has just returned from a six weeks' flying trip to the Latin Americas. We are on the set of "Golden Fleece" at Metro. "There were swastikas all over the place," continues Lew. "Right out in the open," he adds. "I was told that the European war has ruined a lot of businesses down there. They say they have nowhere to send their goods—except to Germany."

Lew tells me that the South American trip, to which he had long looked forward, was rather a disappointment. "I liked Rio, but that was about all." I think Lew would have had a better time if someone had gone along with him. His trip sounded lonely.

"I've just signed another contract here," Ayres tells me. "So that means I postpone my plans to direct pictures for one more year. I'll keep on being an actor just as long as they want me."

sult. The play won't do Joan any serious harm, and it may do Gloria a lot of good."

This creates a new high in sister devotion! There was yet another reason for Miss Blondell's appearance in the Al Woods play. When Joan attempted her Hollywood break-in 10 years ago, she was pretty flat broke and Woods gave her the fare to come out here. Joan paid the money back, but she believes in adding heavy interest—in this case the strength of her name in his play. Quite a girl, this Blondell.

"The Nazis are everywhere in South America—particularly in Chile," the speaker is Lew Ayres, who has just returned from a six weeks' flying trip to the Latin Americas. We are on the set of "Golden Fleece" at Metro. "There were swastikas all over the place," continues Lew. "Right out in the open," he adds. "I was told that the European war has ruined a lot of businesses down there. They say they have nowhere to send their goods—except to Germany."

"I've just signed another contract here," Ayres tells me. "So that means I postpone my plans to direct pictures for one more year. I'll keep on being an actor just as long as they want me."

James Cagney has been fighting for four days on the set of "City of Conquest" at Warner's (The fight will be lucky if it lasts four minutes on the screen). And Jimmy is about to have his eyes gouged out.

"Stick around," invites Cagney, "I'm gonna be very pathetic, stumbling all over the place."

Jimmy's trainer, Al Calahan, joins and asks me to feel his pupils' muscles. "I carefully touch Jimmy's fighting arm. 'Go on, don't be afraid,' urges Cagney. From there, we go on to calisthenics, and he shows me a beauty for reducing the hips. Cagney goes to get a mat to have me do it on and then. And I run from the set."

I land next door, where Cagney's leading lady, Ann Sheridan, is rehearsing a rumba with Anthony Quinn. Does she look tired? "I can't go on," she groans. Quinn lifts her in his arms and swings her around his head. "Don't tell me, you bum," she shrieks the "oomph" girl.

When Miss Sheridan is firmly on her feet again, a big husky guy with a bull whip, Pete Theodore, flicks the whip around the torso of poor Annie with a resounding crack. "Ooh, ooh," she shrieks, dancing about and holding the affected part with both hands. "She has no fear, she tries anything," says Mr. Theodore with pride. What a life, what a life!

Quickly Made

By Barbara Bell.

Make it in a few hours, and a wear it day after day after day! You can see how easy this dress is to put together—merely five pieces, including the sleeves, and the only detailing consists of a few simple darts at the waistline. But you can't really tell until you get it on, how easy it is to wear and work in, how unhampering and becoming. The waistline looks slim but is completely unrestraining—nothing about the dress to tell you up short when reaching into the top shelf or dusting down the stairs.

The front fastening makes it easy to get into. This is an easily tuckable dress, too. Make up design No. 1966-B in seersucker, linen, percale or gingham. Even this simple pattern includes a detailed sew chart.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1966-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 14 (32) requires 3-1/2 yards of 35-inch material without nap.

It's ready! Barbara Bell's new Fashion Book, with almost 100 sparkling new designs for afternoon, daytime and sports! Lovely things for you and the children. All smarter than smart, exclusively designed for you! Send for it today! Spend less, and still have all the latest you want.

Price of pattern 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Sleeveless Frock

By Lillian Mae.

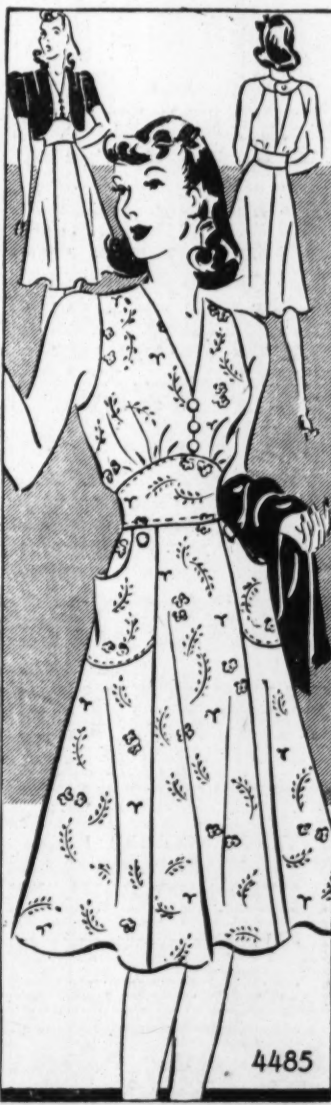

A gay collaborator with the summer sun in this spirited suntan frock, Pattern 4485. It's designed by Lillian Mae in the cool, sleeveless style that every young miss loves and its slimly pointed sunback is held neatly in place by a rounded, buttoned back yoke. That curved-in-front girde divides your waistline, and the action-free, flaring skirt has a smart front panel. Of course, the "saddle-bag" pockets are optional, but just see what a striking effect they give! To prevent unburned shoulders, top off the frock with a matching or contrasting bolero. Gay printed pique or soft rayon jersey make inviting fabric ideas for this summer "must have."

Pattern 4485 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16, dress, takes 3 7-8 yards 35-inch fabric; bolero, 1 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae Pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Cut a smart figure in the summer fashion picture. Make your new wardrobe from the original designs in the Lillian Mae pattern book. A colorful forecast of summer 1940, it includes styles for country and city dweller, "pocket-edition" youngster and "40-plus" matron. There are gay sport clothes, dance frocks, cool prints and cottons for vacations by land . . . by sea . . . by air. Of course the summer bride has not been forgotten. Send today! Book 15 cents.

Send your order to Lillian Mae, Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Today's Charm Tip

In an effort to appear young and interesting some women change coiffures frequently, nail polish, dress colors, but cling to old ideas that served a decade or a generation ago.

Maddox School Bonds Indorsed by Civic Club

The Third Ward Improvement Club was on record yesterday as favoring the allocation of $450,000 from a proposed city school bond issue for improvement to the Maddox Junior High school.

By resolution the organization called upon the mayor and general council to set this amount aside and to submit the bond issue proposal to the voters at the September 4 primary. J. Howard Munroe is chairman of the resolutions committee.

Children Drop From Skies in Swarms Here

Youngsters From Six Weeks Old Up Arrive at Airport.

By DEEZY SCOTT.

Rock-a-bye baby—but in an airplane instead of a tree-top — was sung at the Municipal airport yesterday. It was children's day on the plane "merry-go-round" and they loved it.

The plane motors served as the lullaby singers, and according to his mother, six-week-old R. L. Daniel Jr. sleeps best during the take-off and landing. He didn't exactly express his preference himself for the rocking motion of these maneuvers to the steady going while aloft, but his parents, who are traveling with their young son, said that he showed his feelings about his flying "crib" by his lack of squalls and squirming. The Daniels arrived from Chicago to spend several days in Atlanta visiting relatives.

Scores of other children arrived at the airport yesterday.

One family group, on their way from Birmingham to Jacksonville, were the Fellmans. James, 12; Ruth, 10, and baby brother, Roy, six, were with their mother, Mrs. W. L. Fellman.

From Chattanooga en route to Miami the Camp clan with five-month-old Barbara Angela and her brothers, Ronald, six, and Jackie, seven, arrived, all under the care of their mother, Mrs. U. R. Camp.

The lone eagle was Ridley Derryberry, 10, making his first trip alone by plane, and flying home to Nashville, Tenn., from a visit in Charlotte, N. C.

"I wouldn't mind having you talk to me if you had called me while Jack Dempsey's manager was here," he said.

But Max Waxman, of Baltimore, Md., and for eight years associated with Jack Dempsey, had arrived by an earlier plane and had left the airport before young Mr. Derryberry landed.

Waxman came in from Charlotte, where he had been planning a fight for another one of his boxers, Red Burman. Burman, by the way, will be in the ring July 1 with Dempsey when he fights "Cowboy" Luttrell here.

"Jack won't get here until Saturday," Mr. Waxman said. "The trouble is, we (the United States) expect other nations to buy all of our goods, but we won't buy theirs," he said. "I'm looking forward to seeing all the South American trade barriers ironed out."

Young Mr. Derryberry was no longer interested in hearing about Dempsey, for he had spotted Hugh Hunter, who makes his living mining copper in Lima, Peru. Hunter said he was on his way from Cleveland to Jacksonville to do a little fishing. He's in the United States for several months.

"The trouble is, we (the United States) expect other nations to buy all of our goods, but we won't buy theirs," he said. "I'm looking forward to seeing all the South American trade barriers ironed out."

Third-Term Sentiment Levels After Sharp Rise, Poll Shows

Gallup Declares Roosevelt's Success If He Runs Depends Heavily on European War Crisis; 57 Per Cent Still in Favor.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 27.—A nation-wide study completed early this week indicates substantial sentiment throughout the country for a Roosevelt third term up to the time the Republicans met in Philadelphia to pick their candidate. While the trend of third-term sentiment has leveled off in recent weeks, nevertheless 57 per cent of all voters with a definite opinion on the issue said they would vote for Roosevelt if he runs again.

Third-term sentiment rose sharply after the Nazi invasion of Poland, Belgium and France last month, then leveled off in the present figure. The trend follows:

"If President Roosevelt runs for third term, would you vote for him?"

Approximately one voter in every eight (13 per cent) expressed no opinion.

The sharp increase since April can probably be ascribed to the administration's foreign policy, since other surveys show little change in public attitude on domestic policies.

Since the President's popularity rose sharply on a war crisis, it may decline with equal sharpness if the crisis subsides or changes.

The present situation does not necessarily mean any basic or permanent swing of sentiment toward the New Deal, and the fate of a Roosevelt third term, should he decide to run, is inextricably bound up with the swift and changing events abroad.

The sectional vote follows:

Section	For 3d Term	Against
New England	57%	43%
Middle Atlantic	57%	43%
East Central	52%	48%
West Central	53%	47%
South	73%	27%
Far West	55%	45%

This Sunday the Institute will report the popularity of various Democratic candidates in case Roosevelt does not run.

Cloudy Skies, Federal Prison Possible Rain Gives $123.48 Seen for Today To War Relief

No More Rings Around Sun (Solar Halos), Weatherman Says.

Partly cloudy skies, possible thundershowers and no more rings around the sun have been promised Atlanta today by the United States Weather Bureau.

The ring visible around the sun yesterday may have tied in with bloody events in Europe and been a grim portent to a lot of people who telephoned newspaper offices, but it was only a solar halo to the cold men of science at the Weather Bureau.

Solar halos, they explained, are caused by the refraction of the sun's rays in clouds of ice crystals a couple of miles above the earth's surface.

Atlantans baked during the day, and the mercury at the downtown weather office rose to 87, but according to the Weather Bureau, all that was needed to cool things off and frost the cotton in the fields was a good downdraft from the icy clouds above the city.

Today's clouds will be lower and moister.

Gifts to Atlanta Chapter of Red Cross Total $973 Yesterday.

Help for suffering humanity in war-torn Europe came yesterday from behind the closed walls of the Atlanta federal penitentiary when inmates of the institution donated a total of $123.48 to the Atlanta chapter, American Red Cross.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the donation from inmates of the penitentiary, Phil C. McDuffie, chairman of the Atlanta drive to raise $100,000, announced that General James H. Reeves, executive director of the Atlanta chapter, had received from Norman H. Davis, national chairman, the following telegram:

"American Red Cross relief in Europe being supervised by American personnel. All supplies have been distributed to those for whom they were intended. American Red Cross will continue relief only upon condition that we have full liberty of action and protection of property."

Including the donation from the federal penitentiary, a total of $973.92 was contributed to the drive yesterday, as follows:

Cobb County Rotarians To Induct New Officers

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 27.—Rotarians will entertain their wives and induct new officers at a dinner program at the Marietta Golf Club next Tuesday night, President Al Strang said today.

Edmund Hardine, of Washington, D. C., entertainer, showman, author and speaker, will be among honored guests.

Officers to be installed are: Sherry Hamilton, president; Guy H. Northcutt, vice president; Ewell H. Hope, secretary; Walter E. Schilling, treasurer; the Rev. M. O. Sommers, sergeant-at-arms, and Lamar Franklin, assistant secretary.

Women Invade Emory Campus, Cause Upheaval

Male Students Don Coats, Ties and Shave Every Day.

The feminine touch has invaded the Emory University campus, long noted for its masculine informality both of manner and mode of dress.

With the joint arrival of summer school and nearly 350 co-eds, who are barred from general college work during the winter, came a haberdashery upheaval along the same lines which made Beau Brummel a legendary character.

Many Changes.

Out came coats and ties. Shirts are changed every day. Some observers even contend that the average Emory man is now shaving seven times a week. Shoes have taken on a shine which is absent during the co-edless winter months.

While it is often disputed whether women dress mainly for women or for men, the Emory summer session should leave no doubt as to the purpose of masculine neatness.

The trend in Druid Hills toward formality—both of manner and mode of dress—is explained by the summer school enrollment figures just released by Registrar J. G. Stipe.

Half Are Co-eds.

An increase of 16 per cent in registration brought 702 students to the campus for summer work, of which number nearly 50 per cent are co-eds and more than 40 of the girls are from the school's sister institution, Agnes Scott College in Decatur.

As women students cannot enroll in Emory's general college, only a handful attend the school during the winter for special courses available to them. The summer sessions, however, are wide open to both sexes.

May Be Permanent.

Predominately a male institution in the past, it is expected, however, that more co-eds will be seen on the campus in the future as a result of the University Center program which includes close co-operation between Emory and Agnes Scott.

So what now is a trend at Emory may soon be a permanent situation—with higher cleaning and pressing bills, more shaving lotion, etc.

The summer enrollment, an increase of 98 students over the 604 registered last summer, is broken down into these divisions: college of arts and sciences, 295; school of business administration, 12; graduate school, 148; demonstration school, 114; law school, 29; theology school, 69, and library school, 35.

2 Court Suits Lost By Money Lender

Two persons sued by a money lender in the civil court of Fulton county were defended successfully yesterday by the committee on enforcement of usury laws of the Atlanta Bar Association, Victor Meador, attorney, announced.

The defendants were G. R. Compton, taxi company employee, and Eugene Grice, power company worker, who were sued by P. H. Mell. Meador and John B. McCollum, acting for the bar committee, won both suits for Compton and Grice. Meador claimed Compton had paid Mell $10 on a $10 loan, and that Mell sought $11 additional.

In the case of Grice, Meador said the defendant had borrowed $15 and paid $16.27 interest, but still owed the principal of the loan.

College Park's U. S. Employees Thirty Club To Meet Tonight Stamp Details

Members Will Suggest Civic Improvements for City.

Members of College Park's Thirty Club will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Woman's Club to offer suggestions for community improvement, which will be incorporated into the civic organization's platform.

President Harry Looney said yesterday he wanted every member to bring a suggestion "whereby College Park may be made a better place in which to live, worship and rear a family."

Present at the meeting will be Mayor George W. Harris and city councilmen, who will hear the suggestions and aid in considering the feasibility of putting each idea into operation.

Some community problems which need improvement, according to Dr. Walker Curtis, program chairman, are parking, recreation, ash cans, slum clearance, parks and playgrounds, and water.

ALLEN TO SPEAK.

MOULTREE, Ga., June 27.—

Delacey Allen, of Albany, will address voters of Colquitt and adjoining counties at the courthouse here at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the interest of the candidacy of Eugene Talmadge for Governor.

Agriculture Staff Will Attend Conference This Morning.

Earle W. Dahlberg, of Washington, will review the food stamp program at a joint conference of division employees of the United States Department of Agriculture at 10 o'clock this morning in the Kimball House.

Conference was called by the department's Agriculture Club and by the county agent with the land utilization and agricultural adjustment committee. Speakers in addition to Dahlberg will be Joseph C. Kirchner, regional forester, United States Forest Service, and Dr. W. C. Dendinger, associate veterinary inspector, division of public stockyards inspection, Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

Dahlberg, who has been sent to Atlanta to get the food stamp plan in operation by July 15, also will review the details of the program at the Rural-Urban Conference at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and at a meeting of WPA workers and supervisory employees at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Helen Keller Celebrates 60th Year, Can't Be Gay

WILTON, Conn., June 27.—(AP) Helen Keller, the blind author and lecturer, celebrated her 60th birthday at her home here today, but it was "a day of mourning rather than a day of gaiety."

Miss Polly Thompson, secretary, who is Miss Keller's "eyes and ears," quoted her as saying: "The world is in such a state, I cannot be gay by any manner of means."

"Me Too" Program

At a time when, more urgently than ever before, the United States needs patriotic leaders, the best the Republicans seem able to offer in their convention is party politicians.

Requiring a platform on which to appeal for the nation's votes, all they can do is indorse, in ambiguous words, the program which the Democratic administration is now striving, with every ounce of resource and energy, to carry out. A program, be it noted, that would today be much further advanced than it is had not Republican obstructionists in congress refused to heed the frequent warnings and appeals that came from the White House.

According to report, the Republican platform will contain a plank including these words: "The Republican party stands for Americanism, preparedness and peace." It is sincerely to be hoped it does, though evidences at Philadelphia indicate some doubt. It is unfortunate that the Republican party did not "stand for preparedness and peace," months or years ago, when Democratic leaders were pleading for larger appropriations for army, navy and air force, when Democratic statesmen were begging for no delay in amendment of that dangerous and farcical, mis-named "neutrality law."

Apparently the Republicans themselves are confused. Many of their spokesmen, in recent months, have tried to blame the present administration for deficiencies in army and navy defense. Yet former President Hoover, speaking before his party convention this week, declared this country is, at least temporarily, safe behind the Atlantic ocean and "our magnificent navy." He must have forgotten the condition of that navy seven years ago, when the Roosevelt administration replaced his own. In whatever degree the navy is "magnificent" today it is largely due to the building program that has been conducted during the past seven, Democratic, years.

No one would willingly see an hiatus in the two-party system of conducting American governmental affairs. It is evidence of democracy that, even in utmost crisis, this system continues. Even as in England, when the British world seemed to be shattering, the parliament still exercised the democratic right of questioning all governmental leaders.

At the same time, it is rather pitiful to witness the paucity of leadership which has been revealed among the G. O. P. cohorts at Philadelphia. It is to be hoped, for the very safety of the nation, there may come some man among them who will forget partisanship and act in accordance with the tenets of true Americanism.

Italian Glory

The glorious armies of which Il Duce is wont to boast won a glorious victory in a two-week war against France. Added to the empire is a single choice bit of sun-baked desert stretch. Added to the glory of Italian arms are several more wonderful reverses. Now Italy must fight if it wants more of empire.

The manner in which Hitler summoned Mussolini to Munich and sent him packing home with orders was enlightening. If it were not a part of a tragic scene it would be amusing. But the tragedy is that a buzzard should live to take such orders, even when his fare has been so meager.

The terms of the Italian-French armistice are in themselves enlightening. The only territory Italy may keep is that she managed to win in the period of the war—a few miles at a few spots at best. No territory, while Germany took half of France. A few demilitarized zones, which might in time of another combat offer the hope of an Italian advance over that sector. Rights at Tibuti and on the Addis Ababa railroad, neither of which are of major value while England controls the Red sea. Nuisance value, but no more.

If Italy wants more in Mare Nostrum it will have to actually wrest it from French colonial and British unity by force of arms. It will not be a conquest of Ethiopia, or slaughter in Spain, but deadly combat against, at last, an equal.

Should the war be won by Germany, the role of Italy is easy to perceive. It will be another province of the greater Reich, just as France has been wrapped in the bondage of might. Il Duce and his people more than once will wonder at the strange fate that threw them in the orbit of the blitz merchant.

It is not said how Haile Selassie proposes to free Ethiopia, but at Geneva he used to clear a room of Italians by getting up to speak.

An Honored Georgian

On Wednesday, Mark Smith, of Thomaston, came home from Minneapolis. All of his home city, and Upson county as well, turned out to give a welcome suitable for a man who has brought a new and a great honor to Georgia.

Mr. Smith was elected president of Kiwanis International, heading that great service organization all over the world, wherever it is known. The name of Mark Smith, of Thomaston, Ga., will be known and respected wherever a Kiwanis button badge may travel.

It is, perhaps, added distinction that this distinction will not spread into Germany. Service clubs such as are known in America are banned from the region ruled by Adolf Hitler. They are too closely akin to the finest ideals of democracy.

It is to be doubted if any service organization has been more valuable to the nation as a whole than Kiwanis. This is not to detract from all the others—Rotary, Civitan, Lions, etc., etc. All are great groups, working for the highest of human ideals and it would be a fatuous man who would attempt to rank any one above the others.

Today, however, the spotlight is on Kiwanis, in Georgia. For Kiwanis International, in honoring Mark Smith, has also honored Thomaston, Upson county and all Georgia.

It is good for any state to know there are citizens of the caliber of Mr. Smith within its borders.

Who now remembers when there was no axis, and you looked in a box score to learn what Big Poison and Little Poison were up to?

The Same Ford

During the World War, in the fall of 1915, Henry Ford financed and conducted one of the most farcical argosies the world has ever witnessed. He chartered an ocean liner, dubbed it the "Peace Ship," loaded it with futile visionaries and sent it to Europe with the avowed, and highly publicized, purpose of "getting the boys out of the trenches by Christmas."

Of course, it failed, as so fantastic a gesture was bound to fail. It was merely an international joke.

Something of the same inability to see beyond the immediately obvious is shown in Henry Ford's action of today, in refusing to build airplanes in his factory, destined for the use of Britain. He says he will gladly make planes for the use of the United States, but not for Britain. Yet the specifications and plans for the proposed planes have been furnished by Britain, calling for the building of a British developed plane which is considered the finest of its type in the world today.

Henry Ford evidently fails utterly to see that the surest and best protection for this country against any possible enemy attack, is a victory for Britain in that nation's present desperate struggle with Nazi Germany. It would be far less expensive, and far more pleasant, for this nation to send 100,000 planes to Britain and thus make certain the crushing of Nazidom, than it will be, after Britain has fallen, to fight a still further swollen enemy ourselves. Probably on our own soil.

Ford may feel he has acted in simple, downright, straightforward way. But the net result of his dubious argument is to delay, once again, the urgently needed material help for Britain and to cut still shorter the time during which this nation may rearm herself to the state of impregnability desired.

Other factories will make the planes, there can be no doubt. Meanwhile, however, the Ford detour has wasted precious time needed to make certain the safety of America.

Editorial of the Day

COMPULSORY SERVICE

(From The Boston Herald.)

The bill for selective compulsory military training and service which Senator Burke has introduced should have the closest, most conscientious, most sympathetic attention of every American, whether a pacifist or a fire-eater, an interventionist or an isolationist. For the first time since the nation was founded, congress is asked by a responsible group to accept and enforce a principle which has seemed incompatible with our way of life. "Compulsory military service" has been an odious expression. Our freedom from conscription in time of peace has been our constant boast. But various conditions have been vanishing, not because we have deteriorated, not because we have modified our ideals, but because the world which is closing in on us is not the world of 150 years or 150 months or even 150 days ago. A proposal which we would have dismissed instinctively and angrily even a month ago must now be debated in cold blood.

In explanation, the men who have drafted the bill say: To meet the requirements of modern warfare armies must be raised not haphazard and at the eleventh hour, but in advance of conflict by a systematic plan so designed that each man may serve in the capacity where he will be most effective, and the operation of basic industry, of agriculture and of the arts and sciences essential to war may be disrupted as little as possible.

There is a preponderant sentiment in the country for something of this kind. There is a feeling that our fiber has softened and that our morale must be stiffened. There is certainly no disposition to dismiss such proposals as alarmist, unnecessary or futile. The character of the sponsors makes ridiculous any assertion that this is an attempt to pervert democracy, to regiment us and get us into war. The measure is protective and preventive, and the motives are patriotic. The gentlemen who proposed it feel strongly that if we temporize we shall be jeopardizing our souls and our safety.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE PEACE ISSUE PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—Outwardly the Republican convention is still all milling, sweating confusion. Inwardly, however, you begin to find a strange, pervasive unreality.

In Europe, so headlines told the rare delegates who troubled to read them, Winston Churchill was despairingly denouncing the French for handing their fleet over to Germany. But in Philadelphia there were a number of eminent Republicans who appeared to believe their party could march to victory wrapped in the tattered garments of Neville Chamberlain, Sir John Simon and M. Georges Bonnet.

APPEASEMENT The signs of this development were actually rather numerous. In the first place, most of the energy of the other candidates was devoted to trying to stop Wendell Willkie, whose mentality and policies are certainly not of the Chamberlain type. Willkie has specifically and wisely stated to all the hordes of delegates who call on him that he thinks it the duty of a chief executive to restrain the people from any warlike policy until the obvious needs of national defense unite the entire country in favor of action.

Yet the cohorts of Senator Robert A. Taft, who was the strongest of Willkie's opponents, concentrated upon what they call "the peace issue." They not only attacked Willkie as a war-monger; probably without authorization from Taft, they have gone infinitely further. In fact, they preached the kind of "peace at any price, we must be realistic, we can make a business deal with this man Hitler" doctrine once heard from the lips of the very English and French leaders who are responsible for the present world tragedy. Reports are that this appeasement talk, to give it its harsh but accurate name, is beginning to have considerable effect.

On top of the spread of talk of this sort came the behavior of the platform committee. Alf M. Landon had wisely proposed and the drafting subcommittee had approved a perfectly innocuous and meaningless foreign policy plank which left Republican foreign policy to be shaped by the party's candidate. When the Landon plank was presented to the full platform committee, extreme isolationists set up an outcry.

C. Wayland Brooks, of Illinois, and Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were added to the drafting subcommittee to which the plank was returned. After a titanic struggle, Landon managed to prevent the writing of a plank which would have committed the Republicans to the kind of extreme isolationism which began to fade so rapidly in the country after the invasion of Holland. But the foreign policy plank was sufficiently gingered up with isolationist verbiage to make it reminiscent of the forgotten pre-war days when Senator William E. Borah was still proclaiming he had better information than the State Department.

Finally, there was the speech of House Leader Joseph W. Martin, accusing the President of heading a "war party," and the speech of former President Herbert Hoover. Otherwise admirable, the Hoover speech derived an inevitable Chamberlainish flavor from its minimization of the present danger of the situation of the United States.

WORRIED LEADERS If the tendencies revealed by the Republicans choose and the campaign they wage, the issue will be whether or not appeasement will work. The delegates and party leaders not too immersed in the hurly-burly of the convention to think of the future, are disagreeably certain that such an issue will spell disaster. They are grimly warning their fellows that it will be easy for the Democrats to tell the country, "The Republicans want appeasement; look at Europe enslaved and in ruins, and see how appeasement works."

Psychologically, of course, the explanation of the new appeasement talk is fairly simple. Most Republican leaders have not seen how the worsening of the world situation could do anything but help the President. By a rather natural process, therefore, they have managed to convince themselves that the world situation's threat to this country has been greatly exaggerated. This feeling, however, is confined to the leaders. Even the leaders frankly admit that the origin of Wendell Willkie's boom was in the feeling of the Republican rank and file that there was a man who could meet the President on the issue of the world situation without being weak, blind or impotently snarling.

Fortunate

Lack of Progress.

Talking the other morning with a neighbor whose family is in the childish stage—eldest is five and the other one a couple or so years younger—she mentioned the difficulty she had in keeping an alchuck, no, a sheep, in the street in any hour. And there is it, sharp curve just a few doors away around which thoughtful drivers are apt to come too fast, tires screaming. A little boy out in the street in front of such a car could easily go under the wheels before the driver had time to do anything about it.

Which conversation recalled the blessings we enjoyed when our youngsters were at approximately the same age. For we lived on a street as it were, in the last house, and there was nothing to our left save an unused field and the woods. That sort of a place is ideal for raising young 'uns.

Turn 'Em Out

To Pasture.

Automobiles shunned the ridges and gullies of our street, in those days. And, being the last house, it was a rare event when one came so far.

We could let the children out to play, in that old field, without worry save the thought of an occasional stinging insect and the usual misadventures when youngsters get together. Put 'em out to pasture as it were, and know no need for real worry.

Our young son, then, left home for the excitement and adventures of the banks of the field and the trees of the woods and we didn't hear from him again until meal time. He never missed a meal.

Of course, there were misadventures. What family can't recount 'em. There was the time, for instance, when he did stray too far, up to the next street, and tried to hook a ride on the rear of an ice wagon. Well, hit his head on a rock, and the doc had to take two or three stitches. The scar is still there if you look carefully.

And there was the time when one of the girls was knocked down and rather badly hurt by a bicyclist on the sidewalk.

Or the afternoon when young son sent a rock crashing through the windshield of the parked automobile of a neighbor and explained that it wasn't his fault, the rock wouldn't hit the car if the boy he was throwing it at hadn't dodged.

This Was Expensive.

There was the day when the boy and some of his neighborhood pals were playing war. They chose the garage of another neighbor as the enemy fort and attacked it with rocks.

They broke every window—two, I think—in the place but that wasn't the worst. They didn't know it, but the car was inside and I don't think there was a piece of glass in the car that wasn't, likewise, broken.

Of course, I could continue this by recounting some of the deeds of the girls, but I'll refrain. After all, little girls are supposed to be little ladies and—well, let it go.

It's Good Because

It's Natural.

What I'm leading up to is that growing young things are good because, after all, they are normal. The boy or girl who doesn't encounter such things at the age for them, is a boy or girl to worry over. For they are not natural boys and girls. There must be something wrong with 'em.

Every dad must know he'll have to pay for the damage done by a normal, active boy. It's part of the expense of raising a family. One of the reasons why a small town is so much better for the raising of children is this openness and freedom.

If you had to choose, for your son, or daughter, which would it be:

A barefoot, dirty-faced young'un, with a pup, roaming over an old field that, in his imagination, is the Spanish Main and himself a bold buccaneer?

A prim little something, with shoes and stockings and clothes always meticulous, with never a smudge on nose or ear and with polite participation in supervised games for recreation.

From the news columns of Saturday, June 28, 1890:

Democrats

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—If I were handling the bucket in President Roosevelt's corner in this campaign, now that Mr. Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie are to be the nominees, I would lay off that propaganda about Willkie's home address in New York and his being an apostate Hoosier. I would be afraid that Willkie would tear my man's ears off in that kind of fighting.

Willkie's home address is 1010 Fifth avenue, which is just 264 numbers to the south of that humble friend of the people, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who lives on the same street, and not more than a dime's worth of cab mileage from the Communist district represented by Representative Vito Marcantonio, who claims to be no Communist but constantly runs with them, and, by coincidence at best, votes and speaks as they would have him vote and speak. Willkie's home address is a lot closer to the poverty of Harlem than the town address of Mr. Roosevelt, and, moreover, he pays his own rent and brought his own kettles and blankets, whereas Mr. Roosevelt's home was given to him by his mother, completely furnished.

His business address is 20 Pine street, down in the financial district, and 20 Pine is the Chase National Bank building. I can't make anything out of that but I mean to suggest that Willkie, somehow, was mixed up in the Chase National when Al Wiggan was running the bank.

Lay Off

Innuendo

But I wouldn't monkey around with innuendo if I were handling Mr. Roosevelt's bucket, because once you start using that sort of material you invite the other fellow to do it, and I couldn't want to expose my man to innuendo. Not my man, Mr. Big. Ordinarily a man accepting a job with a business firm, as Willkie did, doesn't ask his new boss who owns the building and refuse the opportunity if he doesn't like the landlord's morals.

But, just as straight counter-punching, Willkie could point out that when President Roosevelt was practicing law, back in the wickedest era of big business and all such, that his office was at 120 Broadway, which is just as close to the Stock exchange as 20 Pine. To make it hurt, Willkie might point out that my man was a partner, and to that extent his own boss, rather than an employee of the business, and settled at 120 Broadway for choice. He might even dig up the identity of the owner of 120 Broadway at that time on the off chance that landlord was even worse than the Chase under Wiggan, for purposes of innuendo.

I wouldn't get fresh about the kind of corporations that Willkie has served as a lawyer and executive or his association with the cause of private capital and wealth, either. Because Willkie is a man of good character and I recall some of the publicity company promotions with which my man was identified as a front man, his record as a lawyer—which certainly wasn't hot—and the fact that my man lived on inherited money and allowances from his mother until long after he was married. For extra zing Willkie might recall that the family interest included some coal lands in bloody Harlan county, Kentucky.

This Is No

Alf Landon

Those are dangerous topics to a fool with in a scrap with a man of Willkie's type. I would realize that no Alf Landon but a terrific body-puncher who likes to stand on the flat of his feet, sink his head against your wishbone and belt away until something breaks.

I certainly wouldn't go cracking about his Hoosierism. In the first place, those Hoosiers never do get un-Hoosierized or de-Hoosierized, or whatever you would say. That is one thing I don't like about them. They come down to New York and make a lot of dough, but they never get really naturalized, and whenever they get a little bit tight you hear them yowling about the moonlight bright tonight along the Wabash.

Like some foreign immigrants they are always dropping their Hoosier cousins and fraternity brothers into New York jobs and sending their kids back to Indiana to college for fear they will grow attached to the section in which they were born and where their parents' found opportunities and prosperity that didn't exist in Indiana.

Willkie is still a Hoosier, all right, and, moreover, by raising that issue I would give him an opportunity to get homespun and point out that while my man was growing up with governesses and servants, going to private schools, traveling abroad and sailing yachts which mama bought him, this Hoosier was slinging hash, following the harvest out west and learning a school for the little money that it took a Hoosier to nickel his way through college.

No, sir, if I were handling Mr. Roosevelt against Mr. Willkie I would not mess with that kind of controversy. I would keep my punches well up, use the ring all the time, avoid the clinches and try to box him fancy on lofty issues of the day.

Prodigy Five Years Old

In just under two minutes Borush Dreiser, a prodigy five years old, of Ballystock, Poland, gave the correct answer to this question: "If there are 98 houses in a street, 128 windows in each house, and six panes to the window, how many window panes would there be in the street?" and he worked it all out in his head. Also he quickly gave the answer when asked to multiply 325,635 by 48. This mathematical marvel came to the knowledge of the authorities when his father applied for permission for him to demonstrate his abilities in public.

ONE WORD MORE

THE ELEPHANT FORGETS

It was said of the Bourbons that they never learned anything and never forgot anything.

It may be said of the Republican leaders, as evidenced by their platform, that they never forgot anything and never remember anything.

After almost eight years of attacking the New Deal and all its works, the platform adopts all the major works of the New Deal but weasels by saying it proposes to create certain unimportant and unwise differences in administration.

The most damning indictment of the Republican party is that never once does the platform recognize what is happening in the world, nor seek to meet it.

Trade, more especially South American trade, is one of the principal objectives of this country. The Republican platform advocates the setting up of new tariffs which will destroy any possibility of trade.

This plank is exactly that of the one following the World War when Warren Harding went in on the slogan of getting us back to normalcy.

Tariffs were raised so high that war-broken Europe could not trade with us.

The depression of 1921 came on.

The Republicans then proceeded to make tremendous loans to the countries of Europe. With our own money the nations of Europe then bought our goods. The boom period was made. The depression was ended with a temporary fool's paradise ushering in the real depression.

THE OLD, OLD STORY Now, with a world in flames, with many of our world markets destroyed, perhaps for several generations, the Republicans cling to the old, old tariffs. They would not only shut out trade from South America, but would antagonize most of the countries by the discriminations of the tariffs.

The Republicans of the Harding period found that Europe could not buy from us because they could not sell to us and thereby get the money or credits with which to purchase. Money was lent to Europe.

Presumably, should the Republicans win, they would pass the tariff laws making it impossible for South America to sell to us. They then, on discovering South America could not buy, would make loans to South America. South America would buy as long as we lent them our money. A false boom in trade would result. The end would be disaster.

Apparently the tariffs and policies of 1921-22, and their resulting breakdown of our own and the world's economic fabric, mean nothing at all to present makers of Republican platforms and policies.

Republican leadership had a great opportunity to get away from pettiness. The platform is one of the worst sort of compromises with each and every problem. It seeks to satisfy all groups and therefore has no straightforward plank in its make-up.

After seven and a half years of denouncing the New Deal, the best the Republican party can do is to adopt the major policies of the New Deal and then compromise on every other issue.

We saw the same thing in France. And more of it in England, where the weak-kneed policy of "Chamberlainism" has brought England to the brink of ruin.

The nation had a right to expect some courage at Philadelphia. It got none.

BY ALL MEANS, WILLKIE

Democracy will best be served if the Republicans nominate Wendell Willkie. By the time this is printed, I hope they have done just that. One can't be sure in the late afternoon today what will come of tomorrow. But Willkie would make a campaign of it. He would bring out the real issues.

There is no guarantee the Democrats will meet the real issues in their platform and their leadership. I hope they will and believe they will.

But Willkie would assure it. Willkie stands for trade. He will repudiate, if nominated, that section of his platform which calls for tariff walls which prevent trade. Willkie is a speaker and a debater with much of Roosevelt's own personality and color.

It is doubtful if he can win. He is tarred with several brushes. This makes some of the leaders of his newly adopted party afraid. They are more afraid of Willkie himself. They do not believe they could control him.

If they fail to nominate him, they are doomed. If they do nominate him, they conceivably can win. They assuredly will make of it a real campaign. They will make it impossible for the Democratic leaders to weasel and to practice "Chamberlainism" in a time when courage and directness is demanded by the people who see the faults and slowness of democracy and are wondering if it can stand the test.

The sort of democracy which France and England had stands revealed as narrow, selfish, and entirely lacking in vision. It was as stupid as the Republican platform which is so lacking in vision. By all means let us have Willkie. His turbulent spirit is needed by both parties.

The rest of the Republican party stands in the old, old position of reactionary blindness. It is timorous and afraid to say or do anything except damn the party in power. And then adopt most of that party's policy. Its platform is a house of straw and its foundations are set in sand.

A Prayer for Guidance in the Darkest Hour Mankind Has Known

by Dudley Glass

Learning London.

As a confirmed—and unrepentant—reader of crime novels, of which the largest crop comes from England, I have become fairly familiar with London, a city I have never seen. I used to hope—

New Scotland Yard, Soho, with its foreign restaurants, Piccadilly, with its swells, Mayfair, the Park Avenue of London: Charing Cross station, Limehouse, from which Burke drew his stories of mysterious Chinese. Old Kent Road, whose name gave rise to a popular music hall ballad of a generation or so ago.

But not until last Sunday did I realize I didn't know London except vaguely. I had surmised that the West End was probably in the western part of town. But I couldn't swear to it. Our West End is kind of south. And our East Point isn't east of anything I can think of. In fact, it's on the road to West Point.

But last Sunday The Constitution printed a map which I have cut out and will pin on the wall if I ever think of buying some thumb tacks.

I'd never looked at a map of London before. There's probably one in an atlas somewhere around the house, but I don't know.

So I started studying this one. Not that I have any more hope of visiting London—I used to think I'd like to trace the novels of Charles Dickens—but maybe I'll be able to follow Inspector Bull and his brothers of Scotland Yard around the town without getting mixed up in it.

I can remember my first visit to New York. It was almost as inspiring to see a street sign, "Times Square." Could this possibly be Times Square itself? The "Times Square" familiar to me through newspapers and magazines and books? Was I actually standing in it?

This map of London attracts me in somewhat the same way. It shows there really are such places as Trafalgar Square and the Green Park and the British Museum and Albert Hall and Covent Garden—where they sell vegetables and present grand opera.

Next time I read a mystery story with its scene laid in London I'm going to take that map and follow the chase. Bet I have fun!

Editor's Crime.

Crediting a clever story to "Exchange" has always been distasteful to me. I think that if a chap writes something worth reprinting he should be given due credit.

But the following item must be anonymous, because Edd Burch, of the Dalton Citizen, merely quoted "Exchange," probably because it had been floating around the country until nobody knows who wrote it. Anyway (where are those shears) I'm passing it on:

Once upon a time there was an editor of a weekly newspaper in the little village of Camellia, Kewy. One day Jim Slocum's cow took sick and the editor, hoping to interest Jim's acquaintances, enlist the sympathy of his friends and help stall off his creditors until the crisis had passed, reported the item as follows: "Jim Slocum's cow is sick—sorry, Jim. The Health Dept. read the news, sent and shot the cow."

Jim's friends read about it and, resenting his having a sick cow which might have infected theirs, quit speaking to Jim. The creditors, figurin' Jim was on the way to the poorhouse, hastened his departure by closing him out.

Jim, now desperate, shot the editor and landed in jail, and all these troubles so upset his poor wife that she lost her mind.

The villagers blamed the editor for starting all these things and started out to lynch him, whereupon that poor fellow, seeing all hope lost, took a shot at himself. At closer range than his predecessor, he had better luck—died—and, since self-destruction is a sin, he went to the devil.

And so you see, little playmates what can happen to an editor who is not careful of what he prints.

Berries Vs. Birds.

Jack McAuliffe, who does a column, "Georgia and the Nation," for a number of newspapers, has discovered that at least one south Georgia plantation owner has forbidden blackberry picking on his land. That was a custom from the dim ages. Everybody was welcome to pick blackberries on anybody's plantation.

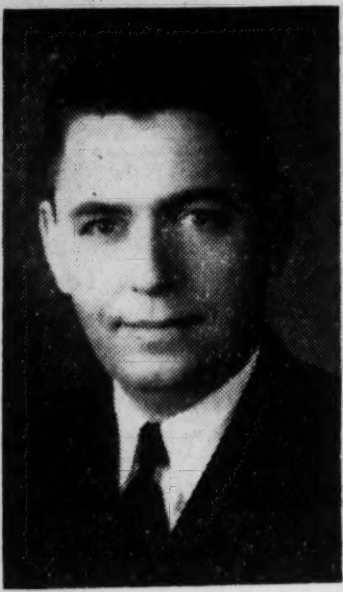

There's a reason, of course. The owner said quail laid their eggs in nests in the blackberry patches, berry-pickers stepped on the eggs—so no new covets of quail. And quail were worth more than blackberries.

Want Good Cats? These Are Free

Fine cats may be had for the asking today at the Atlanta Humane Society's shelter, 980 Howell Mill road.

Officials of the society announced yesterday that a full-blooded Maltese and two half-bred Persians now at the shelter would make handsome additions to any cat fancier's home. Both of the semi-Persians are white, and one of them blue-eyed.

The cats have been picked up as strays by the society and will be given away to any Atlantan who wants them. Atlantans who don't like cats, and there seem to be quite a few, are invited to visit the shelter to view the organization's fine collection of homeless dogs.

SUPERVISES WORK. M. B. Mobley, state director of the division of vocational education of the department of education, will supervise the training of "several thousand" Georgians in specialized jobs for defense industries.

More Buyers, Longer Market Asked for Leaf

Columbus Roberts Makes Request to Tobacco Association of U. S.

Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts wired the Tobacco Association of the United States yesterday urging more buyers and a longer selling season for Georgia markets this year.

The association opened its annual meeting in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to set dates for auction sales in all belts. Markets in south Georgia and north Florida are the first to open.

"Every year," Roberts said, "we have complaints that there are not enough sets of buyers at the various warehouses, causing congestion of tobacco, and also there is general complaint that the selling season in Georgia is too short."

He reported that while Georgia leaf was late starting this season, "it has improved very much recently and is now looking fine."

No one knows how prices will run this year, he continued, "because of the war, as a large percentage of tobacco is exported. However, the acreage this year will be about 80,000 compared with 125,000 last year."

The selling season in Georgia opened July 25 last year and when it closed August 25, planters had sold 98,064,092 pounds for $12,562,078 to average 12.82 cents per pound.

Fifty warehouses operated in 15 south Georgia cities. Bright leaf, for cigarette tobacco, is grown in 50 counties and some shaded or wrapper leaf is grown in south-west Georgia.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

General Jan Christian Smuts, in one of his Rhodes lectures a decade ago, said: "The cardinal fact of geography is the shortening of distance and the shrinkage of the globe." The significance of this truth is brought dramatically before us when we attempt to face facts in these dangerous days. Hitler has won every attack so far by capitalizing upon the truth as set forth in the statement quoted from General Smuts. Napoleon employed the same tactics, but he dealt with a world which had not yet felt the cardinal fact of the shortening of distance and the shrinkage of the globe.

In 1871, Henry Stanley stood on the shore of Lake Tanganyika, at Ujiji, and said to the emaciated white man, clad in a red shirt, Dr. Livingstone, I presume, and handed the missionary-explorer a bag of mail containing letters written by his friends in London more than a year before. Today Ujiji is a wireless station, receiving communications from London in the fraction of a second. Stanley tells us that it required 295 days for his perilous journey from the coast to Ujiji. Now one may fly from London to Ujiji in less than 24 hours. It took Stanley 909 days to cross Africa in 1877. Today one may make the trip comfortably within a week.

This shortening of distance and shrinkage of the globe has been the vital factor in the present war. Added to this, of course, are other factors of applied science which makes war unspeakably frightening. Indeed, these are dangerous days in which to live in a world in which there are so many people trying to kill one another.

But there is another side of this story which I refuse to forget, namely, that this shortening of distance and this shrinkage of the globe may be the means to progress just as truly as a means to destruction. This is our Father's world. He made it for man's dominion in doing His blessed will. And He will not be satisfied, nor will man be satisfied, until every facility of God's creation is employed in doing His will.

Utopia, someone will say. Impossible!

I would prefer to say, difficult, but absolutely possible.

And why do I say possible? Because it is being done. One example is worth a thousand arguments, and we have thousands of examples of the coming of the Kingdom of God today. We have such examples here in America. They have such examples in England and in every other nation of the earth. True, they do not get front page notice, as do the forces of destruction, but that does not change the fact that this is our Father's world in which His children are seeking daily His will to do.

Training To Aid Defense Starts In State Soon

'Several Thousand' Will Study To Fill Technical Jobs.

Specialized training of "several thousand" Georgians to fill technical jobs in defense industries will begin within two weeks in 15 to 25 state vocational schools now equipped to begin classes immediately, M. D. Mobley, state director of vocational education, announced yesterday on his return from Washington.

The vocational training will supplement existing vocational courses offered in state schools and will be financed by the United States Office of Education as a part of the national defense program.

The training is being provided primarily for persons in two groups, Mobley said: (1) Those now unemployed who are selected from employment registers to receive short intensive training courses for specialized jobs in expanding industries, and (2), for those now employed who, in leisure hours, can take needed supplementary training to increase their efficiency on their job.

In Georgia this national defense training will include instruction for machinists, auto mechanics, sheet metal workers, welders, cabinet makers, pattern makers, electricians, blacksmiths, riveters, lathe operators, punch press operators, drill press operators, draftsmen and assembly line operatives.

Mobley said plans for the Georgia program, now being drawn, will be presented to the state board of education for approval next week and forwarded to Washington for final approval. Washington will allot money on basis of these plans, he said.

Can't Buy Equipment. Mobley emphasized that no school would be eligible to participate in the program which is not now equipped to teach these vocational subjects mentioned above as none of the $15,000,000 national appropriation can be spent for equipment, but only for salaries of teachers and supplies. The instruction will be under control of local schools, administered under the supervision of the division of vocational education of the State Department of Education. Applications for the training must be made through local authorities. In Atlanta that would be through Major P. S. Woodward, head of the Atlanta Opportunity school, Mobley said. Mobley has been in Washington the past three weeks helping make policies which will be followed in the national program.

CCC Will Enroll 90,000 New Men

Enrollment of 90,000 replacements is the task confronting the Civilian Conservation Corps during July, H. B. Merriam, supervisor of CCC selection, said yesterday.

The new enrollees will fill vacancies existing on July 1. A CCC enrollee must be between the ages of 17 and 23, unemployed, and in need of employment. He enrolls for six months with the privilege of re-enrolling until he has served a total of two years. Wages are $30 per month, of which $22 is sent home to dependents. He is eligible for promotion to jobs as assistant leader at $36, and leader at $45 a month.

Canal Defense Georgia G. O. P. Believed Topic Fight Delays Of Army Men Ballots Twice

Speculation Aroused When Officer Admits Guns Were Moved.

QUARRY HEIGHTS, C. Z., June 27.—(UP)—Defense of the Panama canal was believed to have been discussed today at a meeting of United States army officers representing the commands of all units in the Panama canal department.

The meeting was said by army leaders to be purely routine and was described as an "orientation conference" for the benefit of recently arrived high-ranking officers.

However, following the admissions of Brigadier General Jacob L. Devers that "live mine" fields have been laid at both entrances to the canal and that heavy railroad guns which guard the vital waterway have been moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic side, the conference aroused speculation regarding its full purpose.

Department headquarters admitted that construction had been started of an underground command post to house the headquarters communications center, but insisted that the project was part of a routine building program planned months ago. Any other interpretation of the reasons for the underground post, army officers said, would be an "exaggeration and a distortion."

The army also sought to dispel any possible alarm over reports that the canal's 25,000 soldiers had been placed on a virtual "war footing." Although the men were on an "alert" basis, it was said, they were only being given "routine practice."

Battle Over National Committeeman Results in Three Polls.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(AP)—The Georgia delegation's dispute over selection of a national committeeman was carried to the floor of the Republican national convention today, delaying two presidential ballots while the 14 members were polled three times on their preference for a candidate.

The delegation was polled twice on the first ballot. Some members questioned the count, announced by Chairman Harry Sommers and demanded a poll by convention Chairman Joseph Martin.

Changed in Recount. Sommers announced the first ballot gave Dewey seven votes, Taft three and Gannett four. J. J. Phillips, of Thomasville, called for a poll. After the recount, the platform announced the delegation cast seven votes for Dewey, three for Gannett, two for Taft and one for Vandenberg. Several in the hall shouted that the count should show three votes for Taft. The clerk then polled the delegation again and this resulted in seven votes for Dewey, three each for Gannett and Taft and one for Hoover.

James W. Arnold, whose contest for re-election as national committeeman was at the base of the delegation's dispute, was absent when the first ballot was taken. The vote for Hoover was shouted from the back of the hall by Arnold's alternate, Josiah T. Rose, of Atlanta.

On the first ballot the delegation divided as follows: For Gannett, Clint W. Hager, Atlanta; J. H. Crumney, Rochelle; Herbert Block, Macon; For Dewey, Ben J. Davis, Atlanta; F. C. Gassett, Atlanta; C. M. Jordan, Glenwood; Wilson Williams, of Woodbury; Harry Sommers, Atlanta; J. H. Rush, Lumberton City; G. W. Bentley, alternate for Clarence S. Wigfall, of Augusta. For Taft, J. I. Phillips, Dewitt C. Cole, Marietta; Luther Cobb, Blue Ridge.

Voted for Absentee. Afterwards Sommers said he cast an absentee vote as he knew the member wanted it and that this accounted for the difference in the roll call.

On the second ballot Sommers announced the lineup as: Dewey 7, Gannett 2, Hoover 2, Taft 2, Vandenberg 1, Clint W. Hager, Atlanta attorney and chairman of the state central committee who recently had advocated Gannett for the nomination, challenged the count and demanded a poll. The roll call confirmed Sommers' count. When the result was announced Sommers called impatiently "exactly the same as announced by the chairman."

On the second ballot Cobb shifted to the Dewey standard; Jordan voted for Vandenberg and Block voted for Hoover. Arnold still was absent when the second ballot was taken.

Sommers let it be known during the afternoon that he had abandoned the effort to get the delegates together for selection of a new national committeeman.

Famous Bridge Engineer, Ralph Modjeski, 79, Dies. LOS ANGELES, June 27.—(AP)—Ralph Modjeski, 79, famous as a bridge engineer, died yesterday. Modjeski was born in Krakow, Poland, the son of Madame Helena Modjeska, famed tragedienne. He became naturalized in 1883 under the name of Modjeski, the masculine form of his mother's stage name.

TELLS HOW GEORGIANS VOTED—Harry Sommers, of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgia Republican delegation, is shown yesterday at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia as he answered the call for his state's vote. Sommers yesterday announced he had abandoned an attempt to convene the Georgia delegation for selection of new national committeemen.

Johnson, Hero Of Baseball 'Loses Control'

Finally Gets to Convention—Martin Shows Him Pitching Secrets.

By EDDY GILMORE. PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(AP)—Walter Johnson, who was one of baseball's great control artists, came to the Republican national convention today and—lost control of the situation.

The former hurler for the Washington Senators arrived in town last night and couldn't locate his hotel for an hour. He headed for convention hall this morning and ran into a traffic tie-up. That made him late.

At the door he had trouble getting in. Finally he made it.

Sits Unnoticed. Ever-modest, the man who has thrilled thousands with his pitching, sat quietly and almost unnoticed in a rear seat on the speaker's platform.

Finally, during a lull in proceedings, Chairman Joseph Martin called Walter. The big fellow, whose ungainly stride to any pitching box used to be the signal for a demonstration, ambled to the speaker's rostrum.

His name was announced. Walter blushed and bowed to the applause, which, however, was nothing to what he received, say, in the World Series against Pittsburgh.

In presenting them he got his signals mixed, for Walter ended up with the cap on his head and the ball in Martin's hand.

But that isn't all. While cameras clicked and the crowd cheered, Martin took a perfect grip on the ball and gave Walter a demonstration.

Johnson looked on with marked attention. "That's the funniest thing I ever saw," said a veteran fan, "Joe Martin showing the greatest fast-ball pitcher in the history of baseball how to throw a fast ball."

The brief ceremonies over, Walter ambled back to his seat. "Whew," he sighed, "I've been in front of some big crowds and in some pretty tough situations, but this is the worst. How do they stand it without getting nervous?"

Auxiliary officers include Mrs. Young, president; Mrs. J. D. Hill, first vice president; Mrs. L. W. Handley, second vice president; Mrs. Norman Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Albert Brooks, secretary; Mrs. Arthur B. Priddy, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. John Carley, chaplain; Mrs. R. M. Young Sr., historian.

Ethel du Pont Roosevelt Lands 35-Pound Salmon

SEATTLE, June 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. can compete with her father-in-law at his favorite sport.

Fishing from a cruiser in Puget Sound, the petite former Ethel du Pont landed a fighting 35-pound salmon yesterday. She and young Roosevelt are spending a week in Seattle as guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger. The latter is President Roosevelt's daughter.

Gallup Spikes Rumors of Late G. O. P. Survey

Purpose of Present Poll Is To Measure Effect of Convention.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP. NEW YORK, June 27.—Contrary to rumors at the Republican convention, the American Institute of Public Opinion has received no ballots and has no figures yet on the popularity of Republican candidates with voters since its last poll, released June 21. There is progress at this time a regular poll of the nation, but the results will not be ready until Friday or Saturday, and will not be published then if the convention has made its selection by that time.

While the Willkie trend has been sharply upward in previous weeks and may continue in that direction, there is no specific indication yet as to what new figures will show. The purpose of this week's poll is to measure for the first time the effect of convention proceedings on public sentiment.

Doyle's Widow Dies in London

LONDON, June 28.—(Friday)—(AP)—Lady Conan Doyle, widow of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, died in London Thursday.

Both Sir Arthur and Lady Conan Doyle were firm believers in spiritualism.

Sir Arthur contended not only that the dead remained in communication with the earth, but also that in some cases spirits were able to materialize themselves.

Lady Doyle had claimed to be in frequent communication with the spirit of Sir Arthur since his death July 7, 1930.

G. O. P. Women Have Big Day At Convention

South Dakota Candidate's Wife in Tears After Nomination.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—(AP)—The women really had a day of it today at the Republican national convention.

They went in for tears, cheers, laughter, told several men "how proud I am of you" (and really meant it), had a big audience for that good-looking new dress and, oh yes, saw one of their sex set a record.

Miss Gladys Pyle, of Huron, S. D., a friendly gray-haired woman, the first South Dakota woman lawmaker, the first Republican woman elected to the United States senate (she was elected in 1938 to finish out an unexpired two-months term), hung up another "first" for the sisterhood.

Preserves Voice. As she stood in the fierce glare of flood-lights on the speaker's stand to toss in the hat of Governor Harlan J. Bushfield, of South Dakota, she became the first Republican woman to nominate a presidential candidate. To preserve her voice, she declined to talk to anyone all morning.

Three wives—Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Harford MacNider and Mrs. Bushfield—heard their husbands nominated.

When Mrs. Bushfield heard "I place in nomination, Governor Harlan J. Bushfield" she turned to him and smiled. Tears came into her eyes.

Harford MacNider, a former ambassador to Canada, with his attractive brunet wife, beaming and happy, sat on the convention floor. But when his name was about to be tossed into the ring, he fled to the rear of the hall.

Mrs. Harrison Attends. Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, accompanied by the senator's two attractive daughters, Mrs. John Bailey Jr., of Battle Creek, Mich., and Mrs. Edward Pfeiffer, of Forest Hills, L. I., slipped into seats in the back of the arena.

And taking it all in from a vantage seat on the platform and viewing it all with the detached air of a veteran was Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, widow of President Harrison. Beside her was former Vice President Charles "Hell n' Maria" Dawes, but minus his upside down pipe.

HOSPITAL AIDE. WEST POINT, Ga., June 27.—The Langdale and Valley hospitals have chosen Miss Margaret O. White, formerly of Atlanta, as laboratory technician. Both hospitals have been equipped recently with complete laboratory facilities.

'New Moon' Opens at Grand; MacDonald, Eddy Are Starred

Colorful Film Features Love And Sea Action

Famed Stars Play in Louisiana Romance Starting Today.

"New Moon" opening at Loew's Grand today with its romantic, picturesque background, provides ideal screen material for its two stars, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

It opens on board ship and moves to early New Orleans during Mardi Gras season. From New Orleans the action again moves to sea, where an exciting battle between two ships, the New Moon and the Lady Anne, takes place.

The remainder of the action confines itself to a desert island where Eddy, as the leader of the group, sets up a republic.

Of particular excitement is the "Trouble Tree" sequence of the production. This tree, a withered magnolia growing on the estate inherited by Jeanette MacDonald in the film, serves as the background for the song, "Lover Come Back to Me," and about it is associated a legend that all those who have troubles may release themselves by touching the tree and concentrating upon their worries.

Miss MacDonald's wardrobe, one of her most expansive since "Naughty Marietta," was designed by Adrian and features many authentic styles and patterns of the 1780's.

A ROMANTIC MOMENT—Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy steal a moment for romance in their new film, "New Moon," a story of New Orleans as a French colony. This is their first appearance together in a film in more than a year. "New Moon" opens today at Loew's Grand theater for one week.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS ITS GREATEST SINGING THRILL!

Of all the stirring musical dramas Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy have ever brought you, here is the most exciting, the most romantic!... Against a vivid background that sweeps from old New Orleans, city of love and adventure, to a lovers' Isle of Dreams in the star-strewn South Seas, this story is told — of a dashing pirate and the greatest treasure he ever plundered—a proud beauty, untamed until he held her in his arms! Here's the treat that will chase your blues!

Freya Promises Olaf That Hans Will Not Come to Their Home Again

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS.

Loyal followers of Hitler and the Nazi regime, Olaf and Emil von Rohn refuse to be present when their step-sister, Freya Rohn, is visited at their home by Hans Breiter, a Communist, who rescued her from a group of angry peasants on the Wetterstein mountain during one of her skiing trips. Return with Hans and her younger brother, Rudi, from a visit to the zoo, Freya is amazed to find her stepbrothers and her aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberg, waiting in Nazi uniform before the Rohn home. When the trio attack him, Hans bravely fights back, and it is only the appearance of Freya's mother, a Gentile, German aristocrat married to Dr. Johann Rohn, celebrated Jewish scientist, that stops the fight. Trying to make her forget this unpleasantness, Freya's parents send her for a vacation to the vast estate of the Mabergs, their very old friends. Here Freya finds herself suddenly pursued by Fritz, but when she compares him with Hans, she finds him far overshadowed by the young Communist. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"My son, I have up till now trusted you," Amelie Rohn said with unrelenting firmness, "but what I have trusted you for has been to make up your mind for yourself, not to make up mine for me! Nor for your father! This 'Trust Hitler! Trust von Papen! Trust Hindenburg!'—it is always the same cry in our poor country! You remember what came of 'Trust the Kaiser!' and it will come again—for we are on the same road, and it will lead to the same place! We must live to see another and more terrible debacle—perhaps involving the world! For we have no right whatever to trust others for what we should decide for ourselves. That faith that is in us—and our actions from it—should be our own affair. Only infants and the insane should trust others, and they should do so only because they have not learned to be reliable. "It is true that you may have information that we are not allowed. If you cannot share it with us, it is unfortunate, both for you and for us; but it would be worse than unfortunate, it would be impertinent for you to try to act in our place. This we must continue to do for ourselves—and face the consequences! While you are under our roof you cannot choose our guests, or strike others—whom we have chosen—from the doorstep. I will consult with my husband about this new danger in our choice of friends, and when he has decided what line to take I shall expect you to act upon it, or to leave this house!"

Freya could not bear to look at their faces—they were so sharpened by pain—and she walked away. "Mother," she said desperately, "you have said that it is for us to choose our acts and our faith! Well, I've chosen mine! I won't ask Hans to this house again. If one of my own family can turn on him and treat him as a traitor, I might lose his hospital, should Hans be known to visit here—why then, it's only sensible to keep him away! I give in about that Olaf—and I give you my word that Hans shall never come here again. But Hans is my business. I know you like him, Mother—and I know Father likes him—that is all I want! He's my friend, and I'll be responsible for the rest. I'll meet him where and when I like—but never here. Only Olaf—Olaf, stay with us! Everything's horrible—but, Mother, Olaf can't help it—I believe he hates it really more than any of us can hate it. It's only that he thinks—to do what he likes—to do what he hates is right!"

For a moment, Freya saw Olaf's face soften—the old tenderness flashed in his eyes, his lips trembled and then set into a hard, straight line.

"It is horrible, indeed," he said quietly, "for you and Mother not to respect our aims, and not to be able, when the time comes, to share the glory of their fulfillment. It is worse than horrible, for it is dangerous. And in this danger that you are bringing upon yourselves, and upon Father, we may not be able to be of service to you!"

"It is, however, something Freya, that you consent not to meet this fellow under our roof—and I can only hope that for your own sake you will extend your common sense a little further, and give up seeing him at all!"

The door opened softly and Rudi put an anxious head round it. "Mother," he reminded them—"the children have arrived! Emil's nose has stopped bleeding, and Father's just coming in! Isn't it time to start the Christmas tree?"

Freya admitted to herself that it wasn't very nice of her to creep away into the woods beneath the Alps where the Mabergs were holding their first picnic of the year.

Olaf and Sophie had already slipped away together; an unfortunate long-winded peasant was grappling successfully with Fritz. This gave Freya her chance. She stole away without warning or excuse, but to share them with Hans, since not to share them with him was to lose their full significance. To leave Hans just now had been like splitting something open the turn of whose very existence depended on its remaining shut. To give up the four whole holidays, out of which Hans could at least have managed two and the evenings of the other two, was practically a form of suicide; nobody, unless they were in love themselves, could understand what such a parting meant, and if they didn't want them to understand, naturally you couldn't explain. How awful, if Freya had refused to go with Olaf, to think of her mother saying to herself: "Ah—it's that boy Hans then, after all!"

How more awful to have had Olaf point out to her the risk everybody was running all around—but surely, and as long as old Hindenburg held out against Hitler, they were still safe!

It was just the kind of weather for Schloss Maberg and so perfect a day that Freya felt she could almost forgive her family for persuading her to come. The sun poured through the larches, not yet green, but with their feathery plumage stirring within its sheath. From a niche of rock above a stream, she could look through the little woods to where the kingcups poured down the south slope in a golden flood—almost to the castle walls.

Wherever the snow had melted from the gray winter grass, little waxen pink crocuses stood up, and trembled to feel themselves alive. They were like frail children, Freya thought, not able to stand alone, but forcibly pulled to their feet by their strong old nurse, the sun.

The river glittered and flickered in the valley, two thousand feet below.

The noon bell, from a toy village hidden in a fold of the hills, swung its deep voice up into the air. The penetrated silence closed itself slowly round Freya again, like a shell. Sometimes, with a little trial of sound, a bee boomed past her, on one of its industrious predatory errands; or a startled bird, coming upon Freya's seated figure at a height he hadn't supposed human beings would break out, gave a surprised flap, changing his course in midair, to a still safer level.

Schloss Maberg rose, white and glistening, on its eyelid of level ground; but looking down at it through the straight larch stems, Freya felt no longer oppressed by its stiff old strength, its ninety-nine rooms, and air of tough finality. The Schloss didn't oppress her, because she knew now that she was seeing it for the last time.

She hadn't known till now, that this was what her visit meant. The certainty deepened and deepened in her, with every breath of the keen, sweet air. She wouldn't see Schloss Maberg ever again—and she didn't care—and that was why she could enjoy it now. She might have had to see it every spring, and watch the kingcups spread their golden sea against its walls, the larches preen their feathery plumage for the plunge they never took. She too might have been tethered to that hillside, always feeling her wings, and always knowing that she could never fly away.

VARIETY—Kate Smith, in her

will repeat the dramatic role in which she scored such a sensation several months ago, that of the parrot-orator in Ben

Schoenfeld's "Johnny Appleseed"

on the "Kate Smith Hour" over

WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

Also highlighting the final show will be Abbott and Costello, who stay on the air this summer in a program of their own place of

Fred Allen; the Ted Straeter Singers and Jack Miller and his orchestra.

The program includes:

"The Lord Done Fixed Up My Soul"

"God Bless America."

CONCERT—Lucille Manners, lovely young American soprano, and Ross Graham, baritone, will

the concert orchestra under the direction of Dr. Frank Black during the broadcast of the Friday

Concert program to be heard over

WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

The orchestral highlight of the program will be a performance of the "Emperor" Waltz by Johann

Strauss II, and "The Russian Sailor's Dance" from the "Red Poppy" by Gileze.

The program also includes:

"The House Blues" by Brahms (ensemble).

"Kentucky Babe" by Gileze (Lucille Manners).

"Pan-American" by Herbert (orchestra).

"My Ideal" by Tosti (Ross Graham).

"Eyes" by Sandoval (Lucille Manners).

"Liebesleid" by Kreisler (violin).

"Rockin' Chair" by Hoagy Carmichael

(ensemble).

"Russian Sailors' Dance" from "The Red Poppy" by Gileze (orchestra).

"When You and I Were Young, Mag-

and Ross Graham).

"Emperor Waltz" by Strauss (orchestra).

"Viking Song" by Coleridge-Taylor

(male chorus).

"Love Is All" by Tomlin (Lucille Manners).

"Oh, Boys, Carry Me 'Long" "Uncle

Ned" "Ring de Banjo" "Massa's in de

Cold, Cold Ground" "Why No One

Love" "Old Black Joe" (ensemble).

COMEDY—Ed and Tom Plahol,

swept them into the top ranks of entertainers in Minneapolis and

St. Paul, will be guests on the "Al Pearce" show during its broadcast to be heard over WGST at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Editor Kitzel (Artie Auer-

screwball newspaper people for another edition of the Pomona

Daily Bugle or "The Screwball

Sun" or what name have they, while Maestro Caro Hoff and his orchestra provide musical back-

of his "Elmer Blunt" skits.
